CRIME BOARD TO AVOID CRITICISM OF PROHIBITION

Statement by Jones Blasts Wets' Hopes.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 1.—The feasibility or wisdom of the 18th amendment is not to be passed on by the Hoover crime commission as a part of its inquiry into law enforcement, Senator Wesley L. Jones [Rep., Wash.], bone dry author of the five year prohibition penalty law, announced today.

In a formal statement the Washington senator asserted that during conferences with commissioners he had been glad to learn that the commission is unanimous in agreeing that its function is to devise the best means possible for enforcement of the 18th amendment. Senator Jones averred that the commission holds that the wisdom or unwisdom of the amendment is not involved in its work. He took an official attitude, indicating that he had constituted himself a mouthpiece of the commission.

Wets' Hopes Punctured.

The Jones pronouncement, indicating a victory for the senatorial opponents to a searching investigation into all phases of the prohibition situation, was the opening gun of the 1930 dry campaign to strengthen dry law enforcement. Apparently it punctured any remaining hopes on the part of the wets that the Hoover commission intends to make any serious effort to determine the practicability of prohibition.

The White House maintained strict silence today on all phases of the present prohibition controversy that has now reached the stage where it threatens to dwarf all other legislative matters during the opening weeks of the new congress. President Hoover and Senator William Borah [Rep., Idaho], outstanding critic of the present enforcement situation, have exchanged letters on various phases of the prohibition situation, but thus far neither has made the correspondence public.

Purse Strings Tightly Held.

The Jones statement was enlightening in revealing the tactics which senatorial drys plan to use in attempts to control the prohibition activities of the Hoover commission. Reading of the document reveals that senate drys intend to shut off appropriations, if necessary, in order to prevent the commissioners from prolonging their inquiry into prohibition.

Senator Jones asserted that the dry phase of the commission's work should be completed by July 1 and warned that a clear and convincing showing of its need will have to be made before funds for prolonging the prohibition inquiry beyond that date are made available.

As Senator Jones is prospective chairman of the senate finance committee, he will be in a position to supervise funds asked for the commission's work.

In view of the Jones position that the commission's dry activities should be confined to devising the best enforcement machinery possible, his statement was interpreted by wets as serving notice that if the commissioners attempt to delve into other phases of the prohibition inquiry, namely, its practicability, expenditures for this work would be withheld.

Delay Cannot Be Tolerated.

"Prohibition enforcement is of vital and immediate concern to the people," said Senator Jones. "It was stated on the floor of the senate a short time ago that a member of the commission had intimated it would take three or four years to work this out. I could not believe it. In my judgment, the President would not tolerate such delay on so pressing and important a matter, nor did it seem to me to be warranted at all.

"I have conferred with several members of the commission. I am glad to learn that the commission is unanimous that the wisdom or unwisdom of the eighteenth amendment is not involved in their work; that it is a part of the constitution and that the function of the commission is to devise the best means possible for its enforcement.

"I find that an important report has already been given to the President. It will be submitted to the congressional joint committee sought by the President as soon as created and ready for work. Other reports will be ready soon.

"All seem to view the industrial alcohol situation as the most difficult one to solve properly, as well as one of the most important phases of prohibition enforcement. In working this out the commission should shield no individual and no line of business.

"Some members of the commission

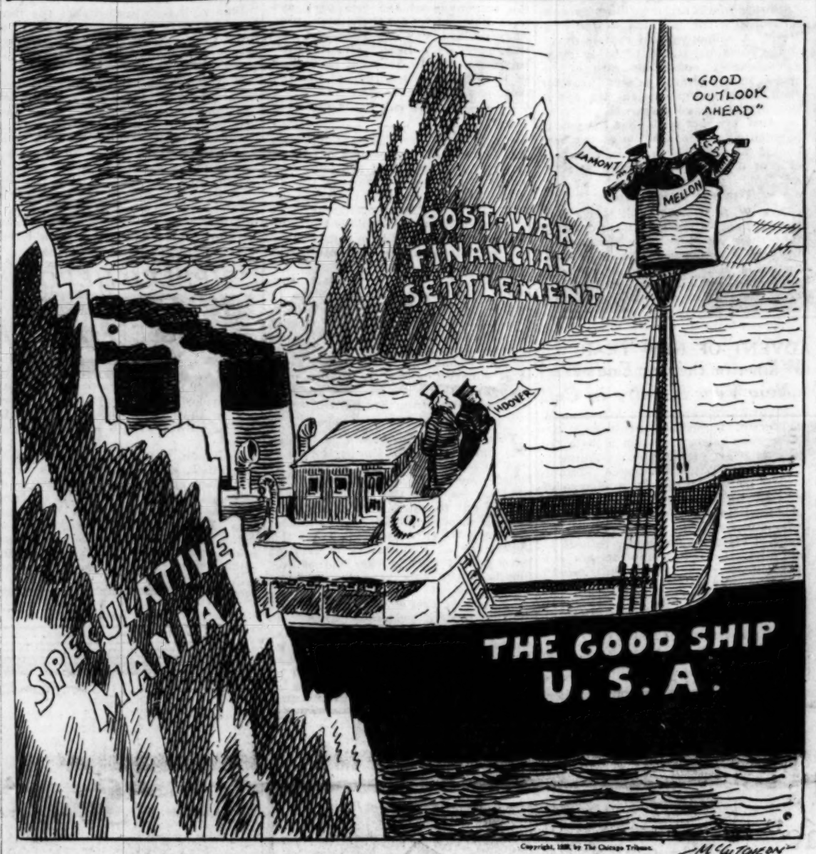
Five Auto Deaths on New Year's Day

CALMER SEAS AHEAD



Copyright, 1930, by The Chicago Tribune.

TRUCE IS DECLARED (FOR DAY AT LEAST) BY DOLLY AND ALICE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—A short truce in the social feud of Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, wife of the speaker of the house of representatives, and Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, sister and official hostess of Vice President Curtis, was declared today in the presence of the President and Mrs. Hoover in the White House.

Mrs. Gann had entered the blue room on the arm of her brother directly behind President and Mrs. Hoover before the White House reception. While the President and Mrs. Hoover were greeting their callers, Mrs. Gann held a reception of her own in a corner of the room.

One of those to greet her was Mrs. Longworth, who has not found it convenient to attend any of the dinners and other affairs to which Mrs. Gann was invited since the Vice President and his sister insisted that Mrs. Gann must rank second to the first lady of the land. For several minutes the two chatted animatedly.

MEXICAN MOB JEERS RUBIO AT DETROIT DEPOT

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 1.—(AP)—A hostile demonstration was staged tonight by about 300 Mexicans as Pascual Ortiz Rubio, president elect of Mexico, arrived at the Michigan Central station here.

The Mexicans booed and hissed as they assembled at the station. Police reserves were called out as a precautionary measure and six of those in the crowd were arrested. They were charged with disorderly conduct.

The president elect and members of his family gave no heed to the crowd. They were greeted by a group of Mexican officials and business men and by representatives of the city. A police escort took them to the Book Cadillac hotel.

60 COLLAPSE AT ROSE PARADE; 4 PERSONS HURT

Wesley Carver, 25, suffered a broken leg and Mrs. Edward Addis, 25, was badly cut when a small grandstand fell to the ground with its load of humanity.

Sadie Wernick, 18, suffered a broken ankle in a fall from another vantage spot. A woman broke her jaw in a fall from a grandstand. Five ambulances were kept busy with emergency calls.

Servant Who Wed Boss Gets His 20 Millions

Port Chester, N. Y., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—A former Czecho-Slovakian immigrant chambermaid, who was making the beds and sweeping the floors in the $6,000,000 mansion of Frank W. Savin, retired broker at Port Chester, three years ago, is mistress today of his $20,000,000 fortune, as a result of his death from an appendicitis operation on Tuesday.

Mrs. Savin, who left the servants' quarters on Jan. 8, 1927, to become her employer's fourth wife, has at her command eight Rolls-Royces and two other expensive limousines, the lot valued at $150,000, a staff of twenty servants, with a monthly pay roll of $3,500, and the right to call the palatial home her own.

Many Kin Enter Claims.

But how long she will remain at ease in this queenly state is problematical, for the legal pot has started to boil with the claims of former wives, cast-off children and others who the old broker left in the wake of his kaleidoscopic 79 years of life.

The present Mrs. Savin, formerly Anna Mary Schleis, 47, who became a domestic in the mansion on the Sound 17 years ago and remained to become the bride of her "boss," has first claim.

But before her proper heritage can be determined, the courts probably will have to go back through the entire stormy history of Savin and weigh the claims of two disinherited natural children, two foster children and the near kin of three former wives.

Built $1 Into a Fortune.

Savin started from scratch, having been cut off with but $1 by his father, a wealthy sea captain. But he quickly built this up through real estate and stock investments, and when he married the beautiful Arriba Wheat of New Haven in 1871 he was reputed to be on the highway to wealth.

His first wife obtained a legal separation in 1898, charging him with being "coarse, tyrannical, brutal, and inhuman" after he had thrown out and disinherited their two children, Frank W. Jr. and Josephine. A young servant girl in their home charged that the pair had stripped her of her clothing and painted her body with crayon and ink.

Savin next married Mrs. Sarah Hamilton West, who later was exposed as the Sadie West of the Lexow investigation of vice and gambling in New York. When she died in 1911, he buried her in an unmarked grave beneath the tennis court on his estate, but his third wife compelled him to exhume the body and bury it elsewhere.

The third Mrs. Savin was, like the fourth, a servant in his house. She was Mrs. Sarah M. Treawell, the housekeeper. She died in 1925. During this union, the broker adopted Muriel Elizabeth Withnall, a 4 year old orphan. And he also adopted Charles Ely Monroe, the former Mrs. Treadwell's brother-in-law, who was 40 at the time.

Monroe, to whom Savin gave his own name and referred to as "my only son," and Muriel, who also took Savin's name, lived at Port Chester throughout his fourth marriage until last fall.

WHEN RUMMERS FALL OUT RUM'S ORIGIN IS BARED

When Joe Gringer, Bob Morrison, and Jack Glass fell out among themselves last night in their flat 4422 Magnolia avenue the police found the source of a large quantity of "bonded whisky" and "fine liquors." There were two ten-gallon cans of alcohol and about ten cases of bottled liquor, bearing labels of several brands of high grade whisky and gin.

Several packages of labels of different brands indicated that all brands came from the same cans and acquired their names according to the whim of the bottler. The Town Hall police raided the flat when neighbors telephoned that a fight was in progress and found Gringer, Morrison, and Glass battling among themselves. They were held for the federal prohibition authorities.

GIFT IS BOMB; WOMAN KILLED AND 7 INJURED

Christmas Surprise Blows Up Home.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—A bomb exploded and claimed the life of a young matron and seriously injured five children and two other women when a Christmas package was opened today in a home at Seat Pleasant, Md., a suburb just east of the District of Columbia line.

Mrs. Naomi Hall Brady, 18 year old wife of Herman Brady of Mitchellville, Md., was injured fatally when she opened the gift in the kitchen of her mother's home. Both her hands were blown completely off and her body mangled.

Fear 2 Children Will Die.

Her mother, Mrs. Nora Hall, wife of a cemetery caretaker, was lacerated and shocked.

Leslie Hall, 16, brother of Mrs. Brady and son of Mrs. Hall, suffered a badly mangled left hand, possible internal injuries and possible loss of his eyesight.

Thomas Hall, 8, another brother of Mrs. Brady, is believed to have been blinded.

Dorothy Hall, 4½, little sister of Mrs. Brady, is believed to have been blinded, and tonight is thought to be dying.

Samuel Hall, 17 months old brother of Mrs. Brady, is believed to have been blinded and tonight is considered in a dying condition.

Mrs. Brady's grandmother, Mrs. Margaret Bromley, 86 years old, also is in a serious condition from shock.

Every one in the room was injured by the blast. The house itself was partially wrecked and the shock was felt for blocks around.

Sender Is Not Known.

The source of the supposed Christmas package was a mystery to officials. It arrived in the Hall home this morning from the home of a neighbor, where it had been left Sunday morning ostensibly through mistake. It did not go through the mail.

The Halls are newcomers in Seat Pleasant, and were not well known. Sunday morning, a neighbor across the street, Mrs. John Buckley, found a package on her front porch when she went out for the morning paper. It was addressed to Mrs. Naomi Hall.

Not knowing the Halls, Mrs. Buckley kept the package. Today Mrs. Buckley learned that the Halls lived near by and sent it to them.

Family Gathered to Watch.

Although the package was addressed to Mrs. Naomi Hall, Mrs. Brady regarded it as meant for her and started to open it. Her mother and brothers and sisters were interested to see what the big brown package contained and so gathered around in the kitchen to watch. She had just removed the last bit of paper when the blast occurred.

The explosion rendered every one in the room unconscious. Neighbors hearing the blast ran in to see what had happened. An alarm went out for help and neighboring fire companies responded. Mrs. Brady was carried to the hospital on a hose truck, where she died in a few minutes.

There was no fire as a result of the explosion, but the house was badly damaged.

Lieut. Joseph Morgan, chief of the homicide bureau of the Washington police department, and Postal Inspector John H. Collier were agreed tonight that dynamite was what was used to charge the bomb.

Broker Killed When Car Hits 3 at Crossing

With five persons dead and eight injured in automobile accidents on the first day of the year, Cook county yesterday started off 1930 at a record breaking pace in automobile fatalities. The toll for 1929 was 1,022, a daily average of less than three deaths, while that of 1928, the highest in the history of the automobile in Cook county, was 1,089, a daily average of 2.9. There were three deaths on Jan. 1, 1929.

The heavy toll of yesterday was attributed largely to the reckless driving of early New Year celebrators, who drove their cars through the streets at high speed while the midnight traffic was the heaviest in years. Sixteen persons were arrested for violations of the traffic laws and a large number suffered minor injuries.

Broker Run Down; Killed.

Among the first victims of the New Year was Irving O. Kosche, 40 years old, 3100 Sheridan road, a broker, who was injured fatally when he, his wife, Mrs. Beulah Kosche, and a stepson, Emmerson Otte, 13 years old, were run down by an automobile as they were crossing Sheridan road at Wilson avenue. Kosche died in the Lake View hospital, where Mrs. Kosche and her son are in a serious condition.

Mr. and Mrs. Kosche and the boy were walking hand in hand on their way to a theater when the automobile, driven by Clark Ross, 909 Argyle street, swung around the corner and turned north into Sheridan road, striking the three who were directly in its path. Kosche died without regaining consciouaness.

The police were investigating reports that Ross was driving at a high rate of speed. He is being held on a charge of manslaughter.

Other Deaths Listed.

The other New Year automobile deaths were:

Swaine Moore, 26 years old, 7018 Stewart avenue. Fatally injured when he was struck by a small coupe while he was repairing a tire on his automobile at 63d street and Oak Park avenue. He died a short time later at the Englewood hospital. The Chicago Lawn police are seeking Titon Powers, 5801 West 64th street, to whom the license number on the automobile which struck Moore was traced.

Peter Kuntz, 5005 Justine street. Killed when he stopped to repair a tire in front of 5455 North Ashland avenue. He was hit by a car owned by Robert Mueller, 4142 North Ashland avenue, who said that Lawrence Fulker, 9044 South Loomis street, was driving it at the time. The police are searching for Fulker, who fled after the accident.

Mrs. Mary Wallus, 4326 South Paulina street. Died of injuries received on Dec. 26 when she was struck by an automobile driven by Stanley Kaspryzk, 152 West 51st street.

Mrs. Caroline Wartell, 65 years old, 4300 Clarendon avenue. Died in the Lake View hospital of injuries suffered on Dec. 7 when she was struck by an automobile driven by Alton Ellick, 5714 Winthrop avenue.

Six persons were injured early yesterday when the small sedan in which they were riding careened into a ditch at 95th street and 48th avenue after it had crashed into a tow-truck driven by J. Robb, 3501 West 95th street. The injured are J. W. Boylan, 25 years old, 238 South Carpenter street, the driver of the car; William Rumbyrt, 24 years old, 5416 South Washtenaw avenue; Ruth O'Malley, 21 years old, 2225 Ridge avenue, Evanston; Louise Johnson, 19 years old, 7614 South May street; George Rumbyrt, and his wife, Josephine.

31 ALDERMEN FIGHT FOR COPS AND FIREMEN

May Reject Budget of Committee.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

It is improbable that the city council, at its budget session this afternoon, will order a reduction of several hundred men in the police and fire departments, as recommended by the finance committee. A substantial majority of the aldermen oppose the proposed slash.

THE TRIBUNE interviewed 34 of the 50 councilmen yesterday. Some of them look upon such a cut in the police and fire departments as highly detrimental to public safety. Others regard it as "poor judgment," a "bum move" or "suicidal" from the viewpoint of politics, especially since the budget provides $35,000 to maintain and operate the aldermen's automobiles. But regardless of the reason, more than 30 said they desire to correct the error.

Would Trim in Other Places.

An even dozen of the aldermen advocated the return of the budget to the finance committee with instructions that the present police and fire departments shall be maintained in numerical strength with no increase in the total appropriations. That would mean trimming other departments more than they have been pared thus far.

Whether enough of those who favor public safety first have the courage to defeat the budget, it is reasonably certain that enough of them will fight for protection of life and property to make a good council battle, if the finance committee does not back up on its reduction program.

Caucus of Committees Today.

Aldermanic sentiment appeared so strong on Tuesday against curtailment of police and fire protection that some of the council leaders decided they would break away from the finance committee recommendation. They agreed to have a caucus at noon today—just before the council session—of the members of the finance, gas, oil, and electric light and transportation committees to devise a plan for obtaining more money.

They argued among themselves that the prospective income from the Illinois Bell Telephone company and the Chicago Tunnel company had not been considered in estimating the miscellaneous revenue of the city for 1930. The phone company paid $1,826,442 in compensation in 1928 and $924,445 for the first half of 1929.

Expect Phone Compensation.

The phone franchise expired last January and the company declined to pay for the last half of 1929 until the basis of compensation in the new franchise is agreed on. The aldermen have been tinkering with the phone franchise since April 8, 1928, and they believe now they will pass it in 1930, and consequently will get about $2,574,000 from that source this year.

That is sufficient to maintain both police and fire departments at present strength, but the councilmen propose to go a step farther.

They expect a revenue of $824,000 this year from the Chicago Tunnel company which has not been included in the estimates. The tunnel franchise expired on Feb. 19, 1929, and the aldermen and the company have been unable to agree on the amount of deferred compensation. The city claims $1,123,033 and the company has offered to settle for $700,000. The present aldermanic plan is to insist upon $674,000 in compensation, plus about $150,000 in interest, or a total of $824,000. The aldermen expect an agreement will be reached this year.

Hope to Pledge 31 Against Cuts.

By getting the three committees together in caucus, the plan is to obtain a commitment for 31 aldermen, who will insist that the finance committee recommendation on slashing the police and fire appropriations be discarded. While not certain, the success of this move is regarded as highly probable. If it does not work, a battle royal on the floor of the council is in prospect.

The possible defect in this plan of "added income," which does not disturb the aldermen in the least, is the liability of appropriating more than the city's corporate income. The finance committee budget authorizes the expenditure of $55,264,140, while City Controller Schmidt estimates the city's corporate revenues at $53,001,824.

Thus, it is apparent that the finance committee proposes to authorize the spending of $2,262,316 more than the estimated income. But some employes die, others are discharged and a few resign so that there is always a salvage in appropriations.

The controller in his estimates of miscellaneous revenue set down $16,000,000 without indicating in his budget the source of the items to make the total. To make their plan convincing the aldermen will have to ascertain that the controller has not already anticipated the compensation from the phone and tunnel companies.

This doubt regarding the proposed plan was inspired by Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman of the finance committee, who said yesterday that he did not know where money could be obtained to preserve the present strength of the police and fire departments. Undoubtedly the prospective compensation from the phone and tunnel company has previously been called to his attention. That idea is no surprise to him.

But if the caucus plan fails, Controller Schmidt has indicated in detail wherein each department's appropriation can be cut to provide sufficient cash for the policemen and firemen. Whether this alternative is adopted or not, seven aldermen interviewed indicated they would vote for the police and firemen anyway and put up to the state legislature the task of giving the city more revenue.

Warning from Goodrich.

Fire Commissioner Goodrich warned each member of the city council in a letter that the proposed reduction of 200 men in the fire department will result in the abandonment of between 20 and 25 engine companies. This loss in companies, the commissioner said, will "greatly jeopardize the safety of the citizens of Chicago and their property."

Besides the loss of 200 men the budget reduces appropriations for materials and supplies deemed absolutely necessary by the fire commissioner.

"Our contention that the department is undermanned at present and that the number of firemen cannot be reduced without grave danger is strengthened by replies from fire officials of large cities showing the average strength of each company to be sixteen men, as compared to the average strength in Chicago of twelve men," wrote Commissioner Goodrich.

Companies Shorthanded Now.

"As each company is shorthanded now we would not be able to reduce our force by cutting one man from each company. That means that entire companies would have to be disbanded and districts of Chicago would lose their present fire protection. There is no method by which the location of future fires can be predicted and, therefore, it is virtually impossible to eliminate any companies."

The fire department had 150 fire stations to maintain during 1929 and was allowed $128,000 for that purpose. This sum has been cut to $75,000 by the finance committee, the commissioner pointed out, although there will be the same number of stations in 1930. The appropriation for gasoline was cut from $34,500 to $26,500, although the department will have the same equipment this year, he said.

Replacement Fund Slashed.

The appropriation for replacements in equipment was cut from a request of $772,000 to $50,000 and the amount asked for operation of the repair shops also reduced, according to the commissioner. The continued use of equipment over fifteen years old will necessitate repairs that are not provided for in the budget.

"It must be apparent that the number of fires is bound to rise with the yearly increase in population," said the Goodrich letter. "Any curtailment would be a serious mistake and an invitation to disaster and I earnestly request that the seriousness of this proposed curtailment be taken into consideration before you vote on the adoption of the budget."

BOY KILLS SERVANT WITH RIFLE GIVEN HIM FOR CHRISTMAS

Seekonk, Mass., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Milton J. Budlong Jr., 13, son of Milton J. Budlong of Newport, R. I., accidentally shot and killed Miss Margaret A. Ahearn, 40, a housekeeper, today with a .22 calibre repeating rifle he had been given for Christmas.

The boy, who had been practicing with the rifle in the yard of the home of Claude R. Branch, went into the house and playfully pointed the supposedly empty rifle at Miss Ahearn. He forgot that when he had removed the clip one cartridge had been left in the chamber. He pulled the trigger. The shot entered Miss Ahearn's neck, and she died within a few minutes.

Medical Examiner Jesse W. Battershall of North Attleboro viewed the body and gave a verdict of accidental shooting after he and State Detective Francis W. Clemley of Taunton had investigated.

Mr. Budlong, whose marital troubles were before the Rhode Island courts for years, had rented the Branch home in order that his two boys, both boarding school students, might have a suitable place to spend the Christmas holidays.

COUPLE DIES IN FIRE; RESCUE GRANDCHILDREN

Hackensack, N. J., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Kirby, prominent in social and church circles in North Hackensack, were burned to death early this morning in a fire which destroyed their home.

Mr. Kirby sacrificed his life getting his two grandchildren to safety. Mrs. Kirby died trying to drag her husband, who had collapsed, to a window. The grandchildren, Leonard Kirby III., 11, and Richard, 9, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Kirby Jr., of New York, were brought to the ground unharmed, due to the heroism of passersby.

Mr. Kirby was 61 years old, and his wife Elizabeth Kent Kirby, 60.

The Hyde Park office of the Western Union Telegraph company, at 1459 East 53d street, was robbed of $105 last night by a gunman who forced the night manager, Miss Mary Felter, 38 years old, 1534 East 64th street, to hand him the money from a cash drawer under the counter. Four messenger boys were in a rear room.

COURT DECISIONS BLAMED FOR RISE IN SCHOOL COSTS

Civil Service Expenses Cited by Hemingway.

Two court decisions were cited yesterday by James A. Hemingway, chairman of the finance committee of the board of education, in explanation of the large increase in the cost of operating the school plant, while the amount paid to teachers has increased only slightly. The decisions, according to the trustee, affected the positions of the teacher clerks and the method of cleaning the schools.

The school board, Mr. Hemingway said, was compelled by a court decision in 1928 to place the school cleaning forces under civil service classifications. This abolished the method of using some of the older pupils to assist in the work. The salaries of the new civil service employés were placed at the union scale, which, with the automatic increases in salaries, added greatly to operating costs, he said.

Civil Service Boosts Costs.

Similarly, he declared, the transfer to civil service of the teacher clerks, formerly recruited from the teaching force, because of another court decision, again increased the operating costs. These two items account, Mr. Hemingway said, for the disparity between the increases of operating costs and instruction noted by Prof. Nelson B. Henry of the University of Chicago in a recent survey.

In one year, 1928, the expenditures for operation of the school plant increased 41.4 per cent over those of 1927, while the instruction costs, consisting mainly of teachers' salaries, increased 5.7 per cent, according to Prof. Henry's figures. In the period since 1924 the operating costs increased 72.8 per cent and instruction expenses 25.6 per cent.

"It is apparent that the increase in the expenses of operation are out of all proportion to the increases in the cost of instruction," said Prof. Henry in his report. "It is obvious that the cost of the services from employés classified as civil service employés has increased at a rate out of proportion to the payments for the salaries of teachers."

What the Survey Shows.

Teachers' salaries in 1925 constituted 80.3 per cent of the total educational fund expenditures while Prof. Henry has estimated that in 1929 that item was only 70 per cent of the total. The salaries of civil service employés in 1925 were only 10.7 per cent of the total educational fund but by 1929 they had increased to 16 per cent of the total, the survey showed.

"The pertinent question in the light of these figures," said Prof. Henry, "seems to be: Is the board of education directing the proper proportion of available funds to the support of those activities which are most directly concerned with the teaching of the children? A school system that is developing normally would probably show a reasonably consistent rate of increase in the annual expenditures for such items as instruction and operation of the school plant.

"Also it would seem that the yearly payments for the salaries of teachers should at least keep pace with the cost of other types of personal service."

Trustees Raise Protest.

Mrs. W. S. Hefferan and James Mullenbach, school trustees, have declared that there are hundreds of unneeded temporary employés on the pay rolls, including assistant janitors, engineers and school clerks. The suggestion to drop these employés was resisted by the school board, although President Caldwell forecast a cash shortage of $7,000,000 in the fall of 1930.

Wilmette Printer Ends His New Year Revelry in Cell

Sigurd C. Sorenson, 972 Ash avenue, Wilmette, a printer, protracted his New Year celebration just a little too long and last night he was winding it up in the Wilmette police station, where he was taken on a charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated. Between naps Sorenson made efforts to find some one to furnish his bond of $100, but his family refused to aid him, the police quoting his son Stanley as saying, "If he doesn't know enough to conclude his celebration by 2 o'clock on New Year's day it will serve him right to stay in jail."

DIES AS RESULT OF FALL.

TACTICS OF JUSTICES IN "AD" CAMPAIGN BRING COMPLAINTS

Complaints have started to reach Chief Investigator Pat Roche of the state's attorney's office, he announced yesterday, regarding solicitation of advertising for an annual yearbook of the Illinois Justice, Police Magistrate and Constabulary association. The prosecutor some months ago raided the offices of the organization, of which Justice of the Peace Sherman S. Knox of Orland Park is president.

Roche said that if the complaints continue he will take action against those responsible for giving the merchants the impression that favors can be obtained by contributing $10 or more for an advertisement.

The complainants so far say that they have been solicited over the telephone by "Judge Knox" who promises them one of his cards to use for "whatever purpose they may see fit" with each contribution. Justice Knox could not be reached last night by the prosecutor to determine just how far he authorized solicitors to use his name.

POLITICIANS EYE JOB CHANCES IN NEW PARK LINEUP

BY PARKE BROWN.

Now that the new commissioners are named for the two park systems under state jurisdiction, the politicians have turned their eyes to the problem of getting jobs on the pay rolls of the Lincoln park and west park boards.

After all, politicians concede, it is the number of precinct captains who can be taken care of that really counts in the long run. Commissionerships, the politicos say, are all very nice, but what they want to know is who is going to man the polls next April. And on that score they seem to have definite information.

The precinct workers, they say, will be Emmerson men for they feel the fruitlessness of attempting to divert the patronage of the two park systems completely to their own uses. They realize, they say privately, that Gov. Emmerson hasn't given a carte blanche ticket to anybody to do just as he pleases with either of the two park pay rolls.

Who'll Give Out the Jobs?

To state it in more specific terms, the politicians say among themselves that with the new boards appointed and ready to take hold the important question with them concerns the selection of the men who really dole out the jobs—the superintendents, the superintendents of employment, and the secretaries. And here they run up against stone walls in both park systems.

Nobody knows, the reports say, whom Gov. Emmerson will place in charge of the physical operation of the parks. The general theory is that the commissioners determine all matters relative to the employés and the contracts that come under their technical supervision; but politically it is recognized that such matters are subject to control from Springfield.

Emmerson Watches Jobs.

This, according to gossip, is just as true under Louis L. Emmerson as it was under Len Small. The accepted belief among the politicians is that not the least of the park employés can be put to work without his card passing through the governor's hands. This may be an exaggeration but the experience of his cabinet is said to have proved that in the field of employment the governor gives nobody a free hand.

Because of this situation, ward and district leaders yesterday were puzzling especially about the question of whom Gov. Emmerson will select as his pay roll bosses for the north and west side parks. So far as could be learned he has given no indication of his attitude in either instance except a generally favorable inclination toward his old friend, Hugh Smith, for one of the important west side places.

Boards to Organize Today.

The new west park board will take the oath of office this noon before Judge David and will hold its first business session this afternoon. W. R. James, whose full name is William Raleigh James, but who is known to his fishing and hunting companions, of whom Emmerson is one, as "Jimmy," had a majority of the new commissioners at his home last evening for a get acquainted meeting. James will be president of the west park board.

Warren Wright, whom Gov. Emmerson has designated as his choice for the Lincoln park presidency, said yesterday that he expects to talk to the governor this morning and, having learned his wishes, call the organization meeting of the new board for this afternoon.

In both instances it is considered a legal necessity for the new boards to organize at once. The resignations of the former commissioners took effect with the fading of the old year.

CONGRESS WILL PASS COALITION TARIFF OR NONE, SHOUSE SAYS

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, issued a statement here today in which he said that either the coalition tariff measure, which attempts to carry out the promise of real tariff benefits for the farmers, will be enacted or there will be no tariff bill at all. "That latter outcome," he said, "is the more probable outcome, which means that months and months of congressional sessions have been utterly wasted because of the effort to jam through a tariff revision that had no reason in economy or justifiable excuse at this time."

CRIPPLED HERO KILLS SELF TO FREE FIANCEE

Council Bluffs, Ia., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Eldon C. Anderson, a war hero who committed suicide yesterday, today stood revealed as one who killed himself so that his intended bride might not be burdened with a crippled husband.

Anderson, city clerk, and prominent in politics, shot himself at his home yesterday. He was in the battle of Chateau Thierry and lost a leg and received bullet wounds in the other leg. Faced with the possibility of losing the "good" leg, Anderson chose suicide, to "free" his fiancée, Catherine Smith of Omaha, Anderson's father said today.

HAITIAN 'TERROR' IS CONVERTED TO U. S. OCCUPATION

BY WILLIAM LAWSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, Jan. 1.—The one man in Haiti really feared by the native government and the American occupation forces is old Gen. Charles Zamor. As Gen. Zamor goes, so northern Haiti will go in another crisis, if he is still alive. His word is law above that of the land to the hundreds of thousands of peasants in the north, and his name is a household word throughout the republic.

Conscious of his power, the last of the old Caco chieftains patiently bides his time in Cape Haitien against a day when, if the American occupation forces withdraw before the job of preparing the country to rule itself is done, he will declare the independence of North Haiti from any government the Americans may leave behind. In the north it is actually believed by many that fear of Gen. Zamor was a large factor in the decision of President Borno not to seek reëlection.

Hunted Down Ten Years Ago.

Ten years ago Gen. Zamor and his band of marauding Cacos and peasants who fled to the mountains to escape being impressed for labor on the roads were being hunted down. A bloody, merciless pursuit finally ended by scattering Gen. Zamor's followers. Gen. Zamor was captured and spent many months in the military prison.

Once he could have been president of the republic, but knowing the sanguinary history of the Haitian presidency, he made his brother president while he acted as the power behind the throne. His brother was killed by a dynamite explosion.

Imagination has fired many tales of his prowess in the Caco insurrection days and has now pictured the chieftain as a huge, almost savage "Groneg," a big black, vindictive leader against the United States marines' occupation and Americans in general.

Favors Principle of Occupation.

Instead, I found a slight little man with an iron gray mustache, closely cropped hair, neatly dressed, and appearing to be just what he has become, a substantial citizen with vast and valuable land holdings.

Gen. Zamor talked freely, expressing sympathy with the major phases of the occupation program, but offering what he believed to be constructive criticism of some of the methods adopted for the salvation of Haiti.

Only once in two hours did real resentment appear. This was when he discussed the Borno administration, from which he was ousted as minister of the interior because, he said, his program was too progressive for the politicians with whom the president had surrounded himself.

Unable to Govern Selves.

Lack of full coöperation on the part of the Haitian government and the inability of the American occupation forces to function completely under the treaty in its present form have left the Haitian people unable to govern themselves if the occupation should be withdrawn, according to Gen. Zamor. He declared they would not be able to govern themselves in less than 20 years, if then.

The one great mistake of the American occupation, according to Gen. Zamor, has been that it has failed to grasp the fact that laws must be made to fit the intelligence of the people. He complained that in the case of the tobacco tax the government deliberately encouraged Haitian peasants to grow tobacco by putting a prohibitive tariff on Dominican tobacco, and then the first year, before the peasant had a chance to harvest his crop to pay his investment, a heavy internal revenue tax was imposed on tobacco.

Gen. Zamor conceded that the roads built in the early days of the intervention and since extended have contributed much to the peace of Haiti.

"But," he said, "after all, they are only temporary roads and enough is spent maintaining them to build a few miles of permanent roads every year."

Gen. Zamor scoffed at tales of atrocities in Haiti which American radicals charge.

"Today the people have forgotten there are marines," he said. "The marines are just big boys, good or bad according to the officers in charge. When they had hard officers the marines were hard. Today they have good officers and the marines are like babies on the street.

"The hardest occupation of Haiti, after all, is the civil occupation. Reinforce the marines, if you will, and cut out the civil occupation."

SEE ARSON PLOT AS FIRE WRECKS HAITI TREATY BUILDINGS

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, Jan. 1.—(AP)—An investigation is being made into the causes of a fire of suspected incendiary origin which threatened destruction to the warehouses of five treaty service departments late yesterday. The discovery of cans of oil stored under baled sisal led to the investigation.

The fire began in a modern building near the waterfront where reserve supplies of the National Guard, the sanitary service and the agricultural service are stored. The warehouses of the public works and customs service are nearby. The fire originated in a section occupied by the agricultural service, storm center of the recent student strike.

Two marines, overcome by smoke, were taken to a hospital. The fire, which caused about $25,000 damage, was under control after three hours hard fighting and was confined to the building in which it started.

AGREE TO PARLEY IN COAL CRISIS; STRIKE IS OFF

Union Workers to Stay on Jobs Today.

Coal merchants and officials of the coal teamsters and chauffeurs' unions held a meeting yesterday at which an agreement was reached canceling the order for a strike that had been called for this morning. The union men agreed to keep their men working pending a peaceful discussion of a new agreement on wages and working conditions to replace the contract that expired yesterday.

It was understood that the Chicago Coal Merchants' association had withdrawn its demand that George Barker, gunman and ex-convict, be ousted as business agent of local 704 of the coal drivers' union.

Swanson Not Interested.

That demand had been made when the coal dealers were told State's Attorney Swanson was insistent that Barker be eliminated from the coal business of Chicago, but Mr. Swanson later declared he was not interested.

Notifications of a strike were given on Tuesday by representatives of local 782 of the union, the members of which haul all the coal west of Cicero avenue and in the western suburbs, and local 704 stood ready to join in the strike until the negotiations yesterday.

Association Issues Statement.

After the conference Jacob Best, president of the Merchants' association, issued the following statement:

"I am advised that the labor committee of the association has succeeded in persuading the Chicago coal teamsters, chauffeurs and helpers' union to postpone the threatened strike pending negotiations for a new wage agreement. Representatives of the two organizations held a meeting last night and again today and another meeting is to be held tomorrow. There has been a call for a special meeting of the Merchants' association for Thursday to consider the union's demands."

The men are asking an increase of wages but neither Mr. Best nor Milton Booth, president of local 704, would state how much money was involved. It is understood, however, that the drivers, who now earn $8.30 a day, will demand an increase of approximately $1 per day.

RENO DIVORCES 31 FEWER LAST YEAR THAN IN '28

Reno, Nev., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—There were thirty-one fewer divorce decrees granted in Reno during 1929, than in 1928, according to a compilation by County Clerk Elwood Beemer. The total for the year just ended was 2,071, while in 1928 there were 2,102 decrees granted. The number of annulments in 1929 also showed a slight decrease from 1928, for there were 35 annulments last year, as against 38 the year before.

FIRST MARRIAGE LICENSE OF 1930 IS ISSUED EARLY

Harry B. Bernfield, 27 years old, 1248 South Albany avenue, an accountant, and Adeline Fischer, 21 years old, of 4829 North Central Park avenue, were on hand at the marriage license bureau yesterday to procure the first license to be issued in 1930. County Clerk Robert M. Sweitzer made a special trip to the loop to issue the license. The marriage will be performed on Jan. 19 at the Hotel Knickerbocker with Rabbi S. F. Mendelsohn officiating.

At the Chicago Lying-In hospital nine New Year's babies were born, seven at Cook county hospital, and two at St. Luke's. The first 1930 baby, a boy, arrived on the stroke of midnight in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Gnatek, 4258 Cortes street. The first twins were sons born to Mrs. M. Pavletich, 2812 Princeton avenue, at Holy Cross hospital.

Toronto Elects Mayor; Record Vote Is Polled

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Bert S. Wemp, member of the 1929 board of control, today was elected mayor of Toronto. In a three cornered contest that brought out a record vote, Wemp had a plurality of 4,376 over Mayor Sam McBride, who sought a third term, while Controller Albert E. Hacker received 3,210 votes. Wemp polled 54,309 and McBride 49,433. A proposal for the expenditure of $19,000,000 for opening new streets and extensions was rejected.

THOUSANDS PAY THEIR RESPECTS AT WHITE HOUSE

Hoover Shakes Hands with Many Callers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—All attendance records in recent years were broken today by the thousands of Washingtonians and visitors in the capital who greeted the President and Mrs. Hoover at their first annual New Year's day reception today.

Warren G. Harding shook hands with more than 7,000 persons at his first reception in the White House. Outside of that year, the statisticians must go back to the days of the Roosevelt administration to find a New Year's day when so many people passed through the doors of the White House to exchange New Year's day greetings with a President.

Late this afternoon, when the last person in the long lines that had cluttered up Pennsylvania avenue since early this morning had passed through the White House door, a final checkup disclosed a total of 6,348 persons had paid their respects to the President and Mrs. Hoover.

Weather Swells Crowd.

Springlike weather and the fact that a new presidential family occupied the White House helped to swell the crowds that annually take advantage of the one occasion during the year when the White House doors are flung wide open in welcome to every one, regardless of their station in life.

All of the customary brilliance and color was in evidence today. During the morning the President and Mrs. Hoover were hosts to the members of the cabinet, the diplomatic corps in resplendent uniforms, members of congress, high ranking officials and officers of the army and navy and other high ranking officials. From 1 o'clock on the day belonged to the people.

Precisely at 11 o'clock President and Mrs. Hoover descended the grand stairway with the cabinet, preceded by four aids in full uniform. The Marine band orchestra struck up "Hail to the Chief" and continued playing while the presidential party moved to the blue room, where the President and Mrs. Hoover took up their position in front of the south window.

Sir Esme Pays Respects.

Sir Esme Howard, the British ambassador, and Lady Isabella were the first of the long line of diplomats to wish the Hoovers a happy New Year.

The chief justice and Mrs. Taft were missing from the White House reception for the first time in years, owing to the death of Charles P. Taft.

Although the public is not admitted to the White House grounds until 1 o'clock, the lines on Pennsylvania avenue began to form in the early morning. In order to give the President a little rest, the line was stopped for fifteen minutes every hour. The President finished the day, however, without complaining of a sore arm or hand.

Start Hearings Today on Rail Workers' Wage Plea

Superior Court Judge William J. Lindsay will commence the arbitration hearings this afternoon on demands of 1,000 employés of the North Shore Electric lines for an increase in wages. O'David Zimring will represent the employés and Bernard J. Fallon will represent the company. Zimring and Fallon selected Judge Lindsay as the umpire in the wage dispute. The men now receive 75 cents an hour, but have not announced what increase they will ask.

MINER'S FAMILY HAS DISASTER FOR ITS NEW YEAR GREETING

Washington, Pa., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—It might be New Year's to some folks, but it was just another Wednesday to Walter Krachek, a coal miner at Meadowlands. Promptly at the midnight hour, as whistles began to blow to usher in 1930, the Krachek family heard a noise in the cellar of their home. The house shook and trembled as though in an earthquake. Rushing downstairs, Krachek arrived in time to see the last of his furnace disappearing into a great hole in the earth. The house began to topple and the miner lost no time in rushing his family outside.

Flames soon licked their way through the lower floor of the frame structure and the edifice became a mass of ruins, as a blazing tribute to the passing of the old year.

Timbers beneath the house had given way and the furnace had dropped into an abandoned mine shaft.

Two killings, a half dozen shootings, 250 arrests for drunkenness, and a large amount of property damage were recorded yesterday by police in surveying the results of Chicago's New Year's eve celebration.

But George H. Hurlburt, deputy administrator in charge of prohibition enforcement, announced:

"My seventy-six agents saw not a single violation of the dry law. No arrests were made, and no liquor seized. It was a quiet, dry, and peaceful celebration, a fitting commemoration of a great holiday. It is refreshing to see how people have accepted the prohibition law at last. Drinking is certainly on the decline."

While the celebration in cabarets and hotels was wet and wild, according to the police, it was at the house parties that drinking brought tragic consequences in some instances.

Confesses Party Killing.

A young man walked into the Racine avenue police station and confessed he had shot and killed William Havenann, 35 years old, 3542 Pierce avenue, at a party in the home of Miss Margaret Durger, 26 years old, 455 North Hermitage avenue.

"Havenann and I quarreled over Margaret," Albert Lambert, 22 years old, 1743 Hancock street, admitted. "We were both crazy with liquor and I shot him."

Ehnlund pushed the men out of the house, but one of them drew a revolver and shot him in the left side. Later Elmer Hanthorn, 3022 Atlantic street, Franklin Park, was arrested as Ehnlund's assailant.

Staying Is Mystery.

The slaying of Fred Leon Roe, 52 years old, 2637 North Troy street, real estate dealer, remained a mystery. He was found dead with a bullet in his body in front of 2324 North Kedzie avenue. Police believe he was killed by a drunken reveler. Money and valuables in the dead man's pockets had not been touched. He is survived by his widow and two sons. Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p. m. Friday at a chapel at 2483 Milwaukee avenue.

Held for Shooting.

Harry B. Payne, 35 years old, manager of a chain grocery store at 3d street and West avenue, Elmhurst, was held at the Maywood police station yesterday on charges of assault with intent to commit murder and intent to commit felony, after he had shot two men on New Year's eve. Payne went to Maywood Tuesday night and shot Frank Satturo in the arm in front of Satturo's barber shop at 1702 West Harrison street. He then shot John Kallmer, 50 years old, manager of a chain store at 1700 West Harrison street, in the body. Payne admitted the shooting but refused to tell his motive. The police believed he was jealous of Kallmer, by whom Payne's estranged wife had been employed, and that he shot Satturo by mistake, thinking that Satturo was Kallmer.

Victoria Curyla, 12 years old, ran out of her home at 1306 North Irving avenue to listen to the blowing of the whistles at midnight. A bullet pierced her arm and entered her side. She was said to be in a critical condition last night. A number of other persons received minor wounds from stray bullets.

COLORFUL MUMMERS PARADE TO WELCOME 1930 IN PHILADELPHIA

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Nearly ten thousand Mummers presented a colorful panorama along a four mile route on Broad street today in Philadelphia's annual show welcoming the New Year.

Countless thousands jammed curb lines to see seventeen New Year's clubs, six fancy, four comic and seven string bands in a spectacle inspired by the spirit of Momus, the god of mirth.

Resplendent capes, a hundred or more feet in length, borne by New Year club leaders and their attendant pages, were followed by pirouetting masqueraders, fantastic clowns, and satiric figures of parody, while over the entire length of the procession rose the lively melodies of the bands.

The paraders competed for $30,000 in prizes awarded by the city.

New Year's Eve Revelers Prove Unruly.

New York, Jan. 1. — [Special.] — Three deaths and seventy-six hospital cases, due to overindulgence in alcoholic beverages, marked the birth of 1930 in New York City. This is an increase of 25 over the number of such cases reported on Jan. 1, 1929, and is 38 more than were reported on the same day of 1928.

While the total number of arrests for intoxication, or disorderly conduct, was not available, the police said that in most public places where crowds gathered on New Year's eve, they were more unruly, more destructive of property and harder to handle than ever before.

None of the three persons, one a woman, who died in Kings County hospital, had been identified tonight. The woman, about 45 years old, was found dead in Brooklyn. One man's body was found by the police in Brooklyn. He was about 43 years old and had several cuts on his cheeks.

The second man found dead from alcoholism was in such a condition that an autopsy will be performed.

Boy Killed, Nine Hurt.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Random gunfire by celebrants brought death to a 7 year old boy and serious wounds to nine other persons, as Detroit greeted the New Year in what police said was a "subdued" manner.

Leonard Volpi, 7, was shot last night by an unknown celebrator as he played in front of his home. He died at 2 a. m., today. Mrs. Adelaide Deman, 24, was wounded in the breast as she stood on the front porch of her home listening to the midnight welcome to the new year. Howard Jones, 31, was shot in the chest as he sat in front of a window in his home. Two other men are near death from similar wounds. None of the persons who fired the shots was apprehended.

Too Rough For Them.

Murray Parr, 25, and his wife, Mary started the new year in a rather lively night club, but thought the place was getting a little too rough when somebody started an argument soon after the arrival of 1930.

Therefore, as became staid and peaceful married folks, they started for home. As they reached the sidewalk, an automobile passed, and several shots were fired from it. One bullet hit Parr in the body, and two others wounded Mrs. Parr in the arm and leg.

Both were in receiving hospital tonight.

GOVERNOR AND WIFE OBSERVE NEW YEAR'S WITH BIG RECEPTION

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—Gov. and Mrs. Emmerson observed their first New Year's in the executive mansion with a public reception. The hours were from 3 to 6 o'clock and a large number of friends from all parts of the state were guests. Other state officers and their wives were in the receiving line.

A program was given at 3:15, including four groups of songs by the University of Illinois Glee club.

Evanston Youth Seized for Zigzag Ride in Automobile

R. D. Cunningham Jr., 17 years old, 1812 Asbury avenue, Evanston, son of the head of an automobile sales company in Evanston, was arrested by the Evanston police yesterday on a charge of reckless driving after Thomas L. Hughes, 144 Fordham avenue, Aurora, charged that Cunningham sped along Central street, preventing other cars from passing him by zigzagging and scraping the fenders of other automobiles. The police said Cunningham admitted the charge.

Dictator Primo de Rivera Offers Resignation to King

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Spain, Jan. 1.—Premier Primo de Rivera's resignation is reported in the hands of the king tonight.

Harassed by the country's financial difficulties and the continued fall of the peseta, the dictator is said to have handed his resignation and those of his ministers to King Alfonso after a cabinet meeting yesterday. That the king will accept the resignations at the risk of plunging Spain into the old parliamentary maelstrom, is altogether uncertain.

De Rivera's gesture followed the resignation of his finance minister when the peseta, during the last few weeks, struck the lowest level in years, and Spanish business was clamoring for relief.

Powers Fight De Rivera.

Powerful political and financial forces were reported to be at work to discredit De Rivera's régime. A large part of the recent internal loan to repay foreign borrowing was bought up by bankers opposed to continuance of the dictatorship, which was invoked after the Spanish disaster during the Moroccan revolt.

Caught in a tight place, De Rivera could no nothing but offer to resign. But that he does not want to step down from his office was fairly indicated today in the Daily Nacion, to which the dictator declares that he still commands enormous prestige in Spain.

It is recalled that King Alfonso brought power to the man whose resignation is in his hands to stave off the verdict of the parliamentary commission which was investigating the Melilla massacre. He feared that he would be held to blame because of the famous order written by him at the baccarat rooms at Deauville, which he personally ordered the fatal drive. A return to a parliamentary régime may mean reopening of the investigations which began in 1921.

May Have Made Bargain.

Thus, it is understood here that King Alfonso lets De Rivera retire, is because he has assurances from old parliamentary leaders, like Sanchez Guerra, that the Melilla affair will be forgotten in return for ridding Spain of the dictator.

De Rivera's powerful Union Patriotica, modeled on Fascist lines, is at work stirring up sentiment in favor of their leader. But what chance they have against the financial combine that is knifing De Rivera and the economic forces that are bringing down the peseta, is hard to tell.

The army, however, is resentful of the dictator's campaigning against the Junkers and idealizes King Alfonso, and it will follow the king, and not the dictator, if the day of parting has come. Complete calm prevails in Madrid.

FRIENDS' TRUST BETRAYED, HE KILLS HIMSELF

Max Dimentz Victim of His Own Remorse.

Max Dimentz, 46 years old, president of the City Installment Dealers' Protective association, shot and killed himself in a room in the Morrison hotel on Monday because he feared to face merchants who had trusted him and whose money he had spent. The body was found on Tuesday and the identification made by members of the family yesterday.

In his seven years in this country, Dimentz, a Syrian, rose from poverty to wealth and a respected position. He disappeared early in November and his friends were shocked to learn that he had absconded with funds the total of which has been variously estimated at from $12,000 to $35,000.

Trusted With Large Sums.

He had married a widow, Mrs. Sarah Shiman, and with her help started his business. Many merchants showed their confidence by intrusting large sums to him for investment. He established a home at 2215 South Ridgeway avenue.

Apparently Dimentz was prosperous and happy and his friends were at a loss to explain why he should have spent the money intrusted to him. Where the money went remained a mystery.

The fugitive broker was found in New Orleans two weeks ago. He was apparently penniless and told police then that he intended to commit suicide. But his friends refused to prosecute him and even paid his railroad fare back to Chicago.

Returns to City; Buys Gun.

Dimentz arrived here the day after Christmas. He telephoned to his wife, but did not go home, it was learned. A meeting of his creditors was to be held and he was to appear and promise that he would work hard in an endeavor to repay what he had taken.

But Dimentz apparently dreaded facing his friends and the difficult task of starting over again. He bought a gun, rented a room in the hotel, and, after attempting to conceal his identity by destroying all his papers, put a bullet into his head.

Admits Robbing Flats to Get Furnishings for Own

Casimir Karcz, 43 years old, was being held in the North Chicago jail yesterday, charged with burglary, after Chief of Police Frank Tiffany found loot valued at more than $1,000 in his apartment in the Killian building, at 16th street and Sheridan road, North Chicago. Karcz admitted that he had robbed the other apartments in the building, declaring that he took articles for use in his own apartment.

70TH CHILD DIES, OTHERS DYING IN MOVIE DISASTER

Tragedy Stills Scotch City Over New Year's.

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

PAISLEY, Scotland, Jan. 1.—The death toll of yesterday's theater disaster was brought to 70 with the death this afternoon of another child in the infirmary.

To this stricken town, tragically turned from New Year gayety to silent sorrowing came expressions of sympathy from the rest of the world today. King George and Queen Mary sent from Sandringham to the provost of Paisley this message:

"The king and queen are greatly distressed to hear of the appalling disaster at the Glen cinema, wherein so many poor little children lost their lives and many others were injured. Their majesties ask to convey to the bereaved relatives their heartfelt sympathy in their overwhelming sorrow and you will keep their majesties informed of the progress of the injured."

Others May Die.

Prime Minister MacDonald spoke for his countrymen and women and sympathizing with Paisley in its "torturing sorrow." Another message was sent by President Cosgrave of the Irish Free State.

Eleven of the 36 children now in the infirmary are in so critical a condition that it is feared some of them will die. These eleven are still unconscious and barely seem to breathe, but doctors are fighting for their lives hour by hour. Throughout the night weeping parents at the mortuary searched among the dead for their children.

Not far away the town council met early at the town hall, deliberating privately for an hour. The councillors individually are visiting the bereaved families and arranging to pay funeral expenses. A special funeral service will be held Friday which the council will attend.

Probe Causes of Disaster.

The home office, with the consent of the lord advocate, is sending an expert to Paisley to investigate the causes of the disaster. The Paisley detective division is conducting searching inquiries into several aspects of the tragedy.

WHITE PLAGUE MAY BE ROUTED BY NEW SUGAR

Tuberculosis Cause Believed Found.

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—The discovery of a sugar substance generated by tuberculosis germs which acts apparently as the agent of union between the tuberculosis bacillus and the human cell and may, therefore, be regarded as the immediate cause of tuberculosis was reported today to the American Association for the Advancement of Science, now in session here, by Dr. William Charles White of the federal public health service.

It is altogether possible, Dr. White said, that by striking at the sugar and interrupting its chemical function, a cure for tuberculosis may be effected.

Dr. White spoke as chairman of a committee of the National Tuberculosis association which is directing tuberculosis research work in twenty universities and research institutions with the object of finding new ways and means of combating the disease.

Many Scientists at Work.

The discovery reported by Dr. White was made as a result of work performed in the Sterling laboratory at Yale and the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research in New York. The committee headed by Dr. White maps out the research work to be done, divideds the work among the institutions in question and collates the results.

"Too much faith is placed in our falling death rate from tuberculosis as evidence that this disease is under control," Dr. White asserted, saying the recent predictions of some statisticians might do great harm in turning the public mind from the task that still confronts the nation. There are probably over 160,000 deaths annually from tuberculosis in the United States, he said.

Two Factors Concerned.

"Tuberculosis is a disease in which two living factors are concerned, one of the body cells known as the monocyte and the other the bacillus of tuberculosis," continued Dr. White. "The latter grows inside the former as a parasite. Each has a living chemistry of its own. When the two are combined as parasite and host a new chemistry is set up which results in rapid growth of both and gives rise to what is known as tubercles, or tuberculosis.

"The sugars of nature in their union with albumins and fats are possibly the key to such closely related chemical factors as the human, bovine and avian tubercle bacilli.

"If this is true, then we are forced in the further study to consider what is the influence of light and various catalysts in swinging the sugar albumin or sugar fat combinations one way or the other. The hope in all this work is that some method may now be found to interrupt the chemical union which is now carried on between the bacillus and the monocyte, so that the sickness can be arrested, the sick person preserved and the bacillus routed."

SANITARY BOARD AND SOUTH PARKS REPORT ON 1929

Review Year's Progress in Improvements.

Annual reports for the sanitary district and the South Park system were issued yesterday, showing that due to the present financial muddle of the county, projects have not been completed as rapidly as had been contemplated. Edward J. Kelly, chief engineer of the sanitary district as well as president of the South Park board, pointed out, however, that more work was accomplished than had been expected under existing conditions.

The sanitary district finances were tied up until October, when special relief was granted by the state legislature to the board of trustees, headed by President Howard W. Elmore. Since that time district projects which had been at a standstill, have moved rapidly forward under the direction of Mr. Kelly.

Work on New Pumping Plant.

The north branch pumping station, the completing link in the north side artificial sewage treatment system, is under construction. It will replace the old Lawrence avenue pumping station.

Four bridges over the canal, which were held up, are nearly completed. They are at Dempster street, Church street, Devon avenue, and Touhy avenue. The Dempster street bridge, although not finished, is now open to traffic.

Work is also going forward rapidly on the Stickney sewage plant as well as the Salt Creek intercepting sewer, according to the report. This sewer will bring relief to 18 suburban towns in the Des Plaines valley.

Mr. Kelly, in outlining the proposed work for 1930, said that $17,716,142 will be spent by the district on projects ordered by the government.

South Park Board Reports.

The south park commissioners expressed satisfaction with the accomplishments of the year even though they did not equal those of the three preceding years. The most important achievement, according to the report, was the agreement of the city, the Illinois Central railroad, and the park board on amendments to the lake front ordinance which will make possible the extension of the present outer drive to a connection with the link bridge which is to be built across the mouth of the river by the south park and Lincoln park districts. It also permitted the immediate starting of work on the new Illinois Central suburban station at Randolph street.

The Lief Erikson drive from 39th to 51st streets was constructed in record breaking time after the litigation which held up the work was disposed of. Another addition to the south park boulevard system was the Loomis boulevard project from Marquette road to 87th street.

The twin bridges at Congress street are described in the report as the year's most important project from the viewpoint of traffic relief. The bridges, in addition to their usefulness, have become a point of beauty to visitors, the report says.

ATTERBURY PRAISES ATTITUDE OF U. S. TOWARDS BUSINESS

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—Describing the changed attitude of the federal government to big business, Gen. W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania railroad, said in an address before the Girard college student body at New Year's exercises today that "the great combinations of industrial enterprise, once feared and antagonized under the names of trusts are now recognized as among our greatest national assets and absolutely necessary to maintenance of our place in the world's trade.

"The voice of the people," said Gen. Atterbury, "has acclaimed the honesty of purpose of big business as now conducted, and the government, ever sensitive to popular opinion, is in all departments giving greater help and less hindrance to business than ever before in our national history."

He dated the changed attitude of the government toward the railroads to the passage of the transportation act in 1920.

"The wisest students of human affairs," Gen. Atterbury continued, "are agreed that wherever statute law and economic law are in conflict, economic law finally prevails—a good thing for the human race. It is this saving principle which is now compelling the modification of our anti-trust and anti-merger laws.

"The railroads have been stabilized financially, which is the best assurance of continued good service. Dividends have been raised to more yearly adequate levels, which has benefited millions of direct and indirect investors, including all savings bank depositors and insurance policy holders. Railroad employés have received the top individual wages in railroad history. Incidentally the nation as a whole has enjoyed great prosperity and we have established for our people a scale of living higher than that ever before known in any land.

"If it is proper to judge by results, then we are on the right road and should keep going."

THERE'S NO SUCH NATIONALITY AS CZECHO-SLOVAK

One Nation, but People Still Are Two Races.

BY ROBERT SAGE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRATISLAVA, Czecho-Slovakia, Jan. 1.—"There is no such thing as a Czecho-Slovak; there are only Czechs and Slovaks!"

This statement, shouted by the late Stephen Raditch, fiery leader of the Croat Peasant party, one day three years ago when an official orator in Zagreb referred to the "Czecho-Slovaks," shocked all of Jugo-Slavia and nearly brought down the Belgrade government.

It happened, however, to be the truth.

Unlike the United States, the little republic of Czecho-Slovakia has not proved to be a melting pot. The two peoples who are represented in the country's name have remained two separate peoples, with a wide chasm dividing them culturally, economically and politically. The Czechs regard the Slovaks as a backward and inferior people, incapable of ruling themselves; the Slovaks look upon the Czechs as unwelcome "foreigners," who have craftily established themselves as the masters of Slovakia.

Both are Slavonic.

Both peoples are Slavonic, but the Czechs of Bohemia, Moravia and Silesia took on a Germanic orientation under the 500 year rule of the Austrian monarchs, while the Slovaks, under Hungary, developed a viewpoint more nearly Magyar-Latin.

The Czechs looked toward the west, the Slovaks were not entirely free from eastern influence. The former were industrialists, the latter agriculturists. Each had a separate history, extending back into the early days of the middle ages, each had an individual literature and tradition. They were friendly neighbors — nothing more—until that eventful day at the close of the war when they decided to cast their lot together.

The new nation was formed during turbulent times. The war was reaching its end and the proud Hapsburg empire was crumbling. Poverty and gloom were on all sides, and the future was uncertain. Into this chaos had come the inspiring plan of Masaryk and Benes to create a Czecho-Slovakian republic.

Opposed by Hungary.

The Slovaks were glad to join the Czechs at this time, feeling that they would thus gain a strength they would not have alone, and the Czechs were only too eager to include the Slovakian territory within the new borders. Hungary was not in the least ready to relinquish Slovakia, and the new state was not formed without additional bloodshed, but it was recognized by the powers, and Hungary had nothing to do but grudgingly give up her claims.

The Slovaks specified, however—or thought they specified—that they should have the right to proclaim an autonomous government within ten years if they wished. Eleven years have now passed and, despite the constant activities of some half million Slovak autonomists, the prospect of loosening the Czech hold is dimmer than ever.

Slovaks Keep Old Ideals.

From the outset, the Czechs have had the Czecho-Slovakian ideal, while the Slovaks, with their strong sense of nationality, have remained true to the Slovak ideal. Claiming that the Slovaks were not sufficiently advanced to govern themselves and that, if left alone, they would quickly fall prey to Hungary, the Czechs invaded the territory, taking over most of the public offices and many of the schools."

This move was passed off as a generous gesture in getting the inefficient Slovaks started along the right path. But, instead of eventually withdrawing in favor of the Slovaks, the Czechs have remained, gradually strengthening their hold on the twin country until today they are in complete power.

Recent statistics showed, for example, that in the Bratislava postoffice 90 per cent of the employés were Czech; 97 per cent of those in the railway offices were Czech, and of the 40 members of the faculty of the Bratislava university only one was a Slovak. The Slovak administration is entirely in the hands of the Czechs, and, according to the Slovaks, the so-called decentralization of the Prague government last fall meant merely slight administrative changes, which left the situation exactly as it was before.

Watch for the AUBURN Surprise Announcement Jan. 5

Again all eyes are focused on Auburn. What will Cord do for 1930? The record of Auburn under his management has been one of amazing progress. Always daring to pioneer—to announce the unexpected. Always keeping ahead of competition. He just recently eclipsed all high-priced cars with his new Front Drive. Now what will Auburn announce? Auburn's policy is different. Auburn thinks only of how to design, build and price the kind of motor cars that the public wants, WHEN they want them. Because 1929 was Auburn's banner year, sales records broken month after month and the only manufacturer continually oversold, Auburn is in the position now to make the most sensational announcement for 1930.

BRITAIN EVOLVES NEW 'TERROR' TO RULE THE SEAS

Makes German Supership Out of Date.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune News Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 1.—The creative talent of the British admiralty technicians has been greatly stimulated by the success of the Germans in producing a ship which is neither a battleship nor a cruiser, but which is superior to both in speed, armor protection and radius of action.

British experts have evolved plans for a craft which, it is believed, will make the German Ersatz Preussen a back number. These experts believe that all of the existing battleships and more than half of the cruisers, in the present British navy, would be better scrapped and the resulting saving used in developing the new type.

Stays Within Treaty Limits.

The experts are confident that they can build a ship within the 10,000 ton limit prescribed at the Washington conference, equipped with Diesel engines, to maintain a cruising speed of 25 knots across the Atlantic and back, and that could make a forced speed of more than 30 knots.

Armor protection is to be a special feature. In the new ship they propose to use a newly invented armor plate on an entirely new constructional plan, intended to reduce weight and bulk. The new plan provides for using armor plate on the sides of the ship and also in the watertight bulkheads, so that the ship will be armored outside and inside.

As a result of this, the technicians are willing to abandon the British and American thesis for reduction of armaments by categories, and accept the French thesis of global reduction. They feel confident that with the new type ship they will be able to produce a ship which will dominate the seas and are, therefore, anxious to concentrate building on this type.

Find Way to Detect Submarines.

Another new discovery is a method of neutralizing submarine attacks, at least in narrow seas, by adapting a system of detecting breaks in submarine cables. They are able now, by laying down grid cables in the channel and around the coast, to locate the position of a submarine passing over these cables within half a mile.

Another British invention which is now being tested out by the air force is an airplane which is supported in the air by gas in the wings. In small models this has worked perfectly with tiny engines which are inadequate to support an ordinary plane.

Floats in Midair.

The nature of the gas is a secret, but it is sufficient to maintain the plane in the air without engine power. The plane, therefore, needs a much smaller and lighter engine for propulsive purposes only. It can hover in the air, drop a cable and be hauled down, and may be eased off into the air before starting without the necessity of a long run to gain speed.

This plane is also crashproof and can carry much heavier commercial weight than the present style of plane.

Spain Denies Asking Bid.

MADRID, Jan. 1.—(AP)—An official note today denied that Spain had sought an invitation to participate in the London naval conference. It was said the government only had expressed its wish to be included as an interested nation in any negotiations toward a Mediterranean agreement.

Curtiss Company Wins $100,000 Aircraft Prize

New York, Jan. 1.—[Special.]—The first prize of $100,000 in the International Safe Aircraft competition organized and sponsored by the Daniel Guggenheim fund for the promotion of aeronautics has been awarded to the Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor corporation for the performance of its entry, the Curtiss Tanager.

Formal announcement that the Curtiss plane had triumphed over its nearest and international rival, the Handley-Page entry, was made today by Capt. E. S. Land, vice president of the fund and its active head in the absence of the fund's president, Harry F. Guggenheim, the American ambassador to Cuba.

'ARF PINT FINDS AIRPORTS SOGGY IN NEW ROUTE

Lands at Baton Rouge for the Night.

BY ROBERT WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Baton Rouge, La., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—Flying out of the beaten path today is attended by many of the inconveniences that beset the motorist in the muddy sections. The 'Arf Pint, THE TRIBUNE'S new air pathfinder to the southland, flew today over a route not visited by regular air transports and found the airports as soggy as country lanes before the advent of hard roads.

Tonight the air yacht was anchored in the Mississippi off Baton Rouge, rocking in the wake of oil barges and sea going freighters from the gulf coast. Pilot Homer Berry elected to land on the water because the airport here looked suspiciously soft as the ship circled it at dusk 1,500 feet up. The ship was forced to lie at anchor because these riverside cities have not yet discovered the feasibility of ramps for docking water going aircraft.

First Round with the Mud.

The 'Arf Pint had its first round with the mud this morning at Memphis, when the fat wheel of the amphibion sunk to the hub as it swung about at the end of the field to start the takeoff. A tractor yanked it out and the ship charged back across the field, went aloft and headed south along the curling Mississippi.

Old man river is well within its banks, but the miles of levees along its ambling course show where the latest flood waters pushed through to engulf the flat lands for miles on either side. Stern wheelers piled back and forth along the yellow river. The side wheelers of Mark Twain's river days have apparently disappeared.

Amid Historical Scenes.

Although a straight course was the shortest cut to its destination, THE TRIBUNE ship picked up the river and followed its windings 300 miles for the sake of "scenery," swamp and forest. Early in the afternoon the ship passed Vicksburg. Champion Hill was barely visible to the east. In the foreground were the bluffs which hid the defenses that rained lead upon Farragut's vessels. Farther on near Natchez, another civil war scene, the ship's passengers noted the first green foliage seen on the trip which began at Chicago yesterday.

Tomorrow the 'Arf Pint will fly to New Orleans, cruise over the Mississippi delta, and may fly on eastward along the gulf coast. New Orleans was the goal today, but a strong head wind blowing up the river cut its speed by thirty miles an hour. Pilot Berry wanted to take no chances with soft landings at night.

"If it's anything like these other fields this four ton ship would sink in to its neck," he said. "We are in no hurry anyway."

Crippled in Auto Crash, Man Ends Life with Gas

Henning Erickson, 55 years old, 3241 Osgood street, committed suicide last night in his room by inhaling gas through a tube attached to a wall jet. The police learned that Erickson had been unable to work since he was crippled in an automobile accident four years ago.

EIELSON'S PAL ILL; FORCED OUT OF RESCUE HUNT

NOME, Alaska, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Wilto Frank Dorbandt, Alaskan airman, out of the search for Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland, American flyers missing in the arctic since Nov. 9, Nome today awaited the arrival of two Fairchild cabin planes from Fairbanks.

Alfred J. Lomen, head of the searching expedition here, said Dorbandt had been given a leave of absence because of ill health. The flyer has been working for practically nine months in the arctic and the added strain of sitting idle while awaiting favorable weather to search for Eielson, a close friend, brought him to the verge of a nervous breakdown. He will not be needed with the Canadian airmen and others here and can have a rest that he deserves, Lomen said.

Although nothing had been heard from Fairbanks, Nome today was looking forward to the arrival of the Canadians, who will continue the search for Eielson and Borland between Teller and North Cape, Siberia, where the fur trading motorship Nanuk is frozen in the ice. Two of the Fairchilds were expected here today while a third was to fly tomorrow with Matt Niemenen at the controls.

Ed Young remained at Teller awaiting fair weather to hop to the Nanuk. At the Nanuk, Joe Crosson and Harold Gillam were making repairs to Gillam's plane, the landing gear of which was damaged when Gillam was forced down after his engine stopped.

Lodging House Dwellers Get Cermak Dinner

Those who inhabit the lodging house district in or near the loop were not forgotten yesterday while the big New Year's feast was in progress in homes all over the city. A bread line passed continually from 9:30 a. m. to 2:30 p. m. at 15 North Wells street where President Cermak of the county board aided by friends had set up a dinner for lodging house men. Several thousand were fed sandwiches, coffee and fruit.

Find No Trace of Six Bandits Who Blasted Safe

The police last night had found no trace of the gang of six safe blowers who early yesterday shattered the safe in a Texas company oil filling station at Clay street and the river and escaped with between $800 and $900. The bandits, all armed, tied up George Harmon, 2151 Southport avenue, the watchman.

OFFICER IS SHOT AFTER RAID ON STILL; 4 HELD

Deputy Sheriff's Wounds May Prove Fatal.

Whiteville, N. C., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Four men accused of shooting Deputy Sheriff Hoke B. Smith of Columbus county in retaliation for a raid he led on a whisky still, were held in jail here tonight while officers awaited the outcome of Smith's wounds before lodging formal charges against them.

The deputy, paralyzed by two bullets which struck his spine, was in a Lumbertop hospital, possibly fatally wounded.

Accused of the shooting are Pope Floyd, Hubert Floyd, Odell Milligan, and Seals Hill. Smith said they called him from his home near Clarkton last night and asked him to accompany them on a search for a stolen automobile. Suspicious of a plot, he refused, he said, and three of the men grabbed him, and the fourth emptied a revolver at him.

The deputy also named the quartet as men he saw fleeing from a whisky still which he with other deputies seized yesterday afternoon in a swamp near here. Five thousand gallons of "mash" and several hundred gallons of whisky were destroyed at the still.

Two Officials Beaten Up.

Halifax, N. S., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Two members of the inland revenue department were severely beaten by a gang here yesterday.

J. E. Smith and J. McLeod were beaten with clubs after their automobile was rammed by a truck while on their way to visit a rum laden boat. Twelve or 14 men were in the gang, Smith said, and the truck was filled with liquor taken from a motor boat lying near several nearby boathouses.

Earlier in the day shots were exchanged in a clash between officers and a group of men who were attempting to salvage the contents of a sunken motorboat near Birchdale. Two automobiles were seized and a third, stolen from the officers, later was found abandoned. It contained a case of whisky. William Gregoire, a diver, who said he had been engaged in salvage work, was arrested.

Coast Guard Tactics Investigated.

Providence, R. I., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Assistant Attorney General Benjamin M. McLyman, in charge of the state's investigation of the slaying of three rum runners by coast guardsmen of Patrol Boat No. 290 early Sunday morning, said today that he was inquiring into rumors to the effect that when the government craft arrived at Newport with the rum boat Black Duck in tow and with the bodies of the victims aboard, the canvas covering on the 290's one pound gun was strapped in place.

Mr. McLyman said that that point is important in the effort to settle the question whether the rum runners were given adequate legal warning before they were shot down by a hail of machine gun bullets. It was pointed out here that the federal statute on the pursuit of smuggling craft requires that a shot be fired in warning before effective firing is started when a suspect fails to halt.

Mr. McLyman will be in charge of the inquest to be held tomorrow at Newport.

No Liquor Found After Capture.

New London, Conn., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Listed by the coast guard as a rum runnning suspect, the fishing sloop Gander was brought to the State pier here today by the patrol boat C. G. 124, whose crew said the vessel failed to heed its command to halt. An examination revealed no liquor aboard, and it was expected the sloop would be freed later today.

New York, Jan. 1.—(AP)—A 60-foot motor boat, the Tenya, loaded with 500 cases of liquor, sank today as she was being towed to port by a coast guard cutter after her crew had run her ashore in Brooklyn to escape capture by a police launch. A large hole had been stove in the boat's bow.

JURY DISAGREES IN TRIAL OF POLICEMAN IN DRY BOY KILLING

Abingdon, Va., Jan. 1—(AP)—After deliberating 18 hours without reaching a verdict, a jury in Washington county Circuit court considering the fate of James McReynolds, Abingdon city policeman, charged with slaying J. W. Kendrick, 16, on the night of May 6, was dismissed at noon today, hopelessly deadlocked.

It was learned that ten jurors stood for conviction with punishment at one year in prison and a fine of $500, and that two were adamant for acquittal.

McReynolds was indicted jointly with W. D. Worley and J. W. Crowe, deputy sheriffs. Kendrick was killed when officers fired at the car in which he was riding with two companions. Worley's trial resulted in his being fined $400 for involuntary manslaughter. Crowe was acquitted.

The three officers maintained they had reason to believe that Paul Phelps, driver of the car, was transporting whisky and that they were justified in shooting in view of Phelps' previously having served a jail sentence on a whisky conviction and of Virginia statutes which make the second major dry law violation punishable as a felony.

Judge A. C. Buchanan, presiding, ordered the case continued until the January term of court, but Commonwealth's Attorney Fred C. Parks said it was probable the second trial would not be held until March.

SLAYING TRIAL OF DORR WILL START TODAY

Samuel Howard Dorr, insurance agent, is scheduled to go on trial this morning in Judge Harry B. Miller's court for the murder of William O'Brien, his neighbor. Mrs. Genevieve O'Brien, the widow, who is co-defendant with Dorr on the murder charge, was granted a separate trial and her case probably will not be disposed of until after the birth of her baby.

Assistant State's Attorneys Harry Ditchburne and Walker Butler are reported to be negotiating with Mrs. O'Brien in an effort to have her testify against Dorr. She has not indicated whether she will turn against her former sweetheart to win leniency for herself. O'Brien was shot to death when he found Dorr in Mrs. O'Brien's bedroom.

The prosecutors, however, say they will prove that money was the real motive for the killing. Dorr is alleged to have been behind in his accounts and, the prosecutors charge, entered into a conspiracy to insure O'Brien and then kill him. The prosecutors have obtained all of Dorr's records, they say.

"DEMOCRATS" OF GANDHI'S PARTY FORM OWN CLIQUE

LAHORE, India, Jan. 1.—(AP)—The India national congress broke up today with a minority rump meeting under the leadership of Srinivass Aiyengar, who formed what he termed a "Democratic party" within the ranks of the congress.

The minority leader compared his new party with the independent Labor party in England, which forms the left wing of the regular Labor party. He said the party was prepared to carry on with the program of the Lahore congress.

The rump session followed a walkout of thirty members from the congress when the minority failed to obtain representation on the new working committee of the congress.

CRIME BOARD TO AVOID CRITICISM OF PROHIBITION

think that the prohibition phase of their work can be done within three or four months and all whom I have seen agree that it can be completed by July 1 at the latest. This should be done.

"Much of the remainder of the commission's work should be done by then, too, and I want to say now that if more money is sought, a clear and convincing showing of its need will have to be made before such money is provided. A full showing as to employes and their compensation will be called for.

"Some expert studies may be desirable to bring out certain facts, but these investigations should not be too prolonged or detailed. If carried too far into detail, the work will die of its own weight. We want the judgment of the commission and not that of experts whose opinion would likely be contradicted by other experts. In my judgment, if the commission can contrive a method by which punishment for law violations can be made more swift and sure, it will have fully justified its creation."

MORROW SHAKES MANY HANDS ON NEW YEAR'S DAY

Englewood, N. J., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—Almost 5,000 persons from all parts of northern New Jersey journeyed to the armory here today to wish a happy new year to Dwight W. Morrow, ambassador to Mexico, at a reception held in his honor by the city.

Political notables mingled with townsfolk in the crowded building and thronged forward to shake hands with Mr. Morrow, Mrs. Morrow, and their daughter, Elizabeth. The visitors filed past for more than three hours.

KILLS WIFE AND SELF; ACCUSES WOMAN'S PASTOR

Sends Suicide Note by Son to Neighbors.

Sandoval, Ill., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Believing that his wife, Patricia, 29, was in love with the Rev. Raymond Rankin, Baptist minister here, George M. Lyons, 31, shot and killed her in their home shortly before 8 o'clock this morning. He then wrote a suicide note to his brother, which condemned the preacher, and ended his life by placing the shotgun muzzle to his mouth and pulling the trigger.

Edith Lyons, 10, one of their four children, testified at the inquest today that her father went to the kitchen where the mother was washing clothes and "asked mother, 'Is your heart all right this morning?' and then raised the gun and fired."

Lyons sat down and wrote the note, giving it to his son, Ferdie, 12, for delivery to a neighbor, Mrs. Weems, and by her to the boy's uncle, Fred Lyons, who also resides in Sandoval.

Mrs. Weems, however, instructed the boy to take the note to another neighbor, Dick Newman, who read it and called Chief of Police Ross Williams. The two hastened to Lyons' home in an attempt to prevent Lyons' suicide, but arrived too late, finding the two bodies sprawled about ten feet apart.

Their youngest child, Naomi, 18 months old, was standing between the bodies, Williams and Newman said, looking from one to the other in a bewildered manner.

Lyons' suicide note said:

"Dear brother: You may be surprised why I done this, but when a woman tells a lie for a preacher that ain't as good as a dog, then you will understand. People don't think I told the truth about this mess, but I did. I hate to leave the kiddies, but she has to suffer, too, and so does that —— preacher. So good-by to all."

This afternoon Mrs. Minnie Rankin, wife of the Rev. Raymond Rankin, said: "My husband absolutely had nothing to do with Mrs. Lyons and his only interest in the family was purely spiritual."

MEXICO REFUSES TO PASS BILLS OF RADICAL "ODOR"

Action by Congress Seen as Good Omen.

Quiet on All Fronts

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Reports from military commanders throughout Mexico to the secretary of war today disclosed the entire country at peace for the first time in several years. The secretary of war announced that not a single governor had reported a military problem of the slightest importance.

BY JOHN CORNYN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 1.—The Mexican congress has adjourned with a long list of important bills still unpassed, which President Portes Gil has made every effort to place on the statute books. The opposition of congress, as well as the people, in part or in whole to the most important of these bills was such that congress became a house divided against itself.

The nonacceptance of these bills by congress is considered as auguring well for the future, since it indicates a decided public sentiment against the exaggerations and inconsistencies of radicalism, which has ruled Mexico since before 1917, when the present constitution of Mexico was passed in a packed radical congress.

Pledge to Settle Problems.

Today both Plutarco Elias Calles and Pascual Ortiz Rubio, president-elect, stand on record to settle the agrarian question as soon as possible by paying for all lands taken for agrarian uses. They also guarantee landowners that their possession of lands will not be disturbed in order to recreate agrarian credit, such as Mexico possessed without limitation in 1910.

The most important bill pending in congress is the group of extensive labor laws over which congress has fought for months. The bill today has less probability of being accepted by congress than when it was presented with all of the prestige and backing of President Portes Gil.

The nonpassage of the labor bill has caused a sigh of relief in all quarters of Mexico employing labor. In several months congress, owing to a division in its ranks, considered only one-fifth of the sections of the labor bill, and even this was neither accepted nor rejected. It is predicted that the labor bill, without the support of the president, will be thrown out by the incoming congress.

Will Rewrite Bills.

Bills regulating agrarian procedure, commerce, trade, commercial code, and the civil code, were not passed by the congress and will almost certainly be overhauled or entirely rewritten when they are presented to the incoming congress. This is considered important and a favorable factor in the coming reconstruction of Mexico, promised by President-elect Rubio.

Lake County Reports Gains in 1929 Births and Deaths

CHILDREN DIE AS REFUGEES TRY TO FORGET HORRORS

Measles Epidemic Rakes German Camp.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAMMERSTEIN, Germany, Jan. 1.—The Russo-German farmers who fled from Russia and found refuge in East Prussia at Hammerstein and who were preparing to celebrate joyously what they call their "first free New Year's day" found their joy dimmed by morning.

Twenty children, all tiny tots under four, have died during an epidemic of measles, which, the doctors state, would have easily been surmounted by normal children.

Specialists in children's diseases were rushed to Hammerstein early this week to assist the regular doctors, but they found the children's constitutions were so weakened by privations that they were beyond help.

4,300 Under Quarantine.

The entire Hammerstein camp of 4,300 persons has been placed in quarantine. At the smaller camp at Moellyn, where 750 refugees have been installed in a former school for noncommissioned officers, the program for holiday cheer was carried out, with "Widow" Bartle, one of the chief organizers.

Last year "Widow" Bartle went into the woods and cut down a Christmas tree for her two sons, and with the children of the neighborhood sang Christmas carols before the tree. On New Year's day she was arrested by the soviet authorities for spreading religious propaganda.

Cheers the Downhearted.

She wanders from room to room in the refugee camp, encouraging the downhearted and those who lost their closest relatives when soviet authorities separated them at Moscow.

A small group of the first refugees who arrived in Germany will leave for Brazil soon.

Baltic Nations Strengthen Defense Against Red Menace

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Jan. 1.—Another year of peace, bringing further opportunities to Baltic states to strengthen their defenses against the bolshevik menace and continuing economic development, is anticipated by Baltic statesmen on New Year's day. Officials interviewed by THE TRIBUNE include premiers, foreign and war ministers, all of whom request their names be withheld, fearing their statements will affect the present relations of their governments with Russia.

One foreign minister, questioned concerning the projected northern Baltic league, including the Baltic states and Scandinavian countries, believes the formation of the projected northern alliance may take another year or two, so that "the Baltic states will probably continue their present policy of strict neutrality between Russia and Europe for another two years."

Stalin's Policy Perils Europe.

"According to our diplomatic representatives in Russia the next two years will likely decide whether or not the present policy of the communist party will succeed," he said. "Bolshevism is proceeding through a decisive phase, and should Dictator Stalin's policy of 'oppression of the peasantry succeed and the campaign to industrialize Russia be partially successful, Europe will be facing the greatest peril in her entire history, and the northern Baltic alliance will become an open fact.

"Today the Baltic alliance, although not on paper, is understood to exist, and officers of the general staffs of Finland, Estonia, Latvia, and Poland are fully prepared to take united action, should Moscow threaten Europe. However, we are awaiting great changes in Russia in the coming two years, and from our extensive knowledge of the attitude of Russian peasantry toward the soviet government, we expect a change in bolshevik internal policies in the near future."

The war minister of another Baltic nation, formerly a member of the Russian general staff, believes the Baltic alliance may become effective sooner because of the growing strength of the red army, which recently astonished foreign military experts by its well conducted campaign in northern Manchuria, which regained for Russia the control of the Chinese Eastern railway.

German Militarists Aid Russia.

"The campaign of the red army against the Chinese, showed Europe that red militarism is efficient and dangerous, and the German name of the commander of the red far eastern army, Gen. Blucher, shows the extent to which the Germans have gone to assist Moscow in militarizing Russia," he said. "German designed planes made in soviet factories under German engineers, bombed Chinese troops, and German poison gases also, manufactured in Russia contributed to soviet victories.

"Because of special treaties uniting Moscow and Berlin, Baltic nations are hoping that the proposed northern alliance will be formed by Sweden and will include Poland, Europe's chief protection against revolution and Moscow."

In discussing the coming year, the premier of another Baltic state hopes that Lithuania will cease her unofficial nine-year war with Poland over the seizure of Vilna, and will unite with Poland, Latvia, Estonia and Finland in making the union of Baltic states an accomplished fact.

"The most threatening danger point in Europe today is the Lithuanian and Polish frontier, where war could be provoked within 48 hours by either Russia, Poland, Lithuania or Germany," this premier said.

Jersey City

New Year Greetings

"Ring out the old, ring in the new"—Jersey City rings out the old with justifiable pride; rings in the new with warranted confidence in its future.

United States Department of Commerce statistics provide much evidence upon which Jersey City may justify its confidence in going out for "new business":

Industrial output for 1929 (estimated) $271,000,000, an increase of 271 per cent since 1899's $73,000,000;—

Manufacturing plants paid $36,000,000 in wages in 1929; $8,000,000 in 1899;—

Manufacturing output, $1,681 per capita, as compared to $979 for Philadelphia, and $967 for New York;—

Jersey City is a SAFE place for business and residence:

Traffic Hazard, Low (Per 100,000 Population)

Jersey City	18.5	Paterson	22.2
Philadelphia	16.4	Newark	23.7
New York	17.6	Camden	24.5
Pittsburg	17.9	Chicago	24.9
Detroit	21.7	Wilmington	29.7

Fire Losses, Low (Per Capita)

Jersey City	$ .76	New York	$3.66
Cleveland	2.46	Chicago	4.36
Detroit	2.72	Newark	5.66
Philadelphia	2.93	Boston	6.50

Chicago	923	Wilmington	689

Jersey City's growth is due in large measure to efficient, forward-planning municipal government and helpful officials; is due in large measure too, to its location (in many respects unrivaled) on the Atlantic Seaboard.

HOOVER POLICIES TO BE ISSUES IN 1930 CAMPAIGN

Tariff and Farm Relief Among Them.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 2.—[Special.]—Issues for the approaching congressional elections are taking shape.

The major questions which promise to arouse controversy both in primaries and elections include the tariff, agricultural relief, arms limitation and related matters bearing on national defense and world peace, prohibition, tax and debt reduction, the Wall street crash and economic conditions in general, and the world court. There are a host of other subjects which will be drawn into the discussions of campaign speakers. Inasmuch as the congressional elections will serve as a curtain raiser for the presidential fight of 1932, Hoover policies will figure prominently in the contests over seats in the senate and house.

Conditions May Decide.

Regardless of the issues which may be most emphasized, the leaders on both sides recognize that the outcome in many states will hinge upon the condition of industry and agriculture. If the present uncertainty as to business outlook passes and the Republicans are able again to capitalize the prosperity issue they profess little fear of the outcome in industrial sections. If agricultural conditions continue to show improvement the Republicans feel certain that they will be able to check the disaffection in farm sections. On the contrary, if there is unemployment in industry and if agriculture continues to be a sore spot the trend can not fail to be against the party in power.

The Republicans are admittedly somewhat at a disadvantage in the primary stage of the campaign due to factional troubles. The split in the majority party ranks which has been constantly widened in the senate controversy over the tariff will be reflected in primary fights. The attacks which the radical Republicans will make upon regular Republicans will supply ammunition for the Democrats in the election. The Democrats, on the other hand, are able to forget minor differences of opinion in general attacks upon the Republican administration.

Tariff Fights Impend.

In the Republican primary contests different issues will make the greatest appeal in various sections of the country. Radicalism is not likely to get far in the eastern states. The manufacturers and industrial workers of eastern states are aroused over the riddling of the tariff bill by the coalition of Democrats and western radicals. Candidates who stand for a sky high tariff will be most popular in such states as Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Connecticut, and Massachusetts. In some of the western states, opposing candidates will represent varying degrees of radicalism, all of them exclaiming in horror against the tariff raid of eastern manufacturers as typified by Grundyism and Binghamism.

President Hoover will personally keep his hands off the Republican primary fights. This will not, however, stop his friends from making support of Hoover policies an issue. Virtually the only present radical Republican senator who is likely to be involved in a primary fight is Senator George W. Norris [Rep., Neb.]. The President will make no avowal of opposition to Senator Norris, but if Samuel R. McKelvie or some other outstanding Hoover man becomes a candidate, it cannot fail to be a battle centering around Hoover policies. There are various other states where Hoover senators will be on the defensive in the primaries and under the same policy the President will take no aggressive action in their behalf.

Hoover Record to Be Cited.

The Republican campaigners who support President Hoover's policies in the primaries and in the election will lay stress on the enactment of his farm relief program, his efforts to provide increased tariff protection for agriculture and for needy industries, the tax reduction approved by congress on his recommendation, his activities in the direction of continued prosperity through the massing of industry in support of a program for a stimulation of construction work, and his efforts to promote world peace through the Kellogg-Briand war renunciation pact and to reduce military expenditures through agreements at the coming arms limitation conference in London. Undoubtedly, the President's attempts to tighten prohibition enforcement will be stressed in dry territory and passed over somewhat lightly in the wet areas.

The prohibition issue will be brought into primaries of both parties. While both Republicans and Democrats declared for enforcement of prohibition laws in their 1928 platforms, in neither party are candidates foreclosed from advocating modification of prohibition laws.

The extent to which the world court will figure in the campaign depends upon whether the senate takes up the matter at the present session. Senators who voted for American adherence to the court when the subject was up previously are already being made the targets of primary foes. Some think that if the senate disposes of the question this winter it will tend to eliminate it as an issue in November. Others believe that it cannot fail to be a factor both in primaries and the election, regardless of whether it is still banging fire.

The Democratic national committee has been actively on the job throughout the consideration of the tariff bill. Its publicity organization has issued a daily statement by a senator or representative attacking the Republican tariff measure for months past.

The Democratic position is that a tariff which is high enough to maintain present wage scales of American labor is proper, but that higher rates than necessary are designed to put excessive profits in the pockets of contributors to Republican campaign funds and tend to build up monopolies.

CALLS STUDENT SLANG BARRIER TO CHURCH WORK

Language of Campus Not Learned by Pastors.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Urbana, Ill., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—The language of American religion is slang—two kinds of it—and in this fact lie most of the difficulties between the churches and students, according to Dr. James E. Clark, Nashville, Tenn., editor of the Presbyterian Advance.

Dr. Clark addressed the conference of professional religious leaders of all denominations from most of the central western colleges and universities meeting here today. He described the slang on the campus, football field, and classroom as the language of the student, whereas the language of American religion is the slang of the theological seminaries. Dr. Clark pointed out that these two languages are foreign to each other, and that with the proper interpretation of them the religious demands of college students are discovered.

"College youth and adult life completely misunderstand each other," said Dr. Clark. "The great work of the college pastor is to translate the language of the churches into the language of the campus."

Student Demands Frankness.

Philip Tuttle, Illinois graduate, winner of a national essay prize on the subject, speaking just before Dr. Clark, declared that the churches are stagnant—do not possess a reality upon which the student may lay hold.

"The American college student declares, with absolute frankness, that the churches are not necessary," Tuttle said. "It will not make a person any better or any worse by belonging to them. The students believe that it is in you to become better or worse. The churches have cluttered up the life of Jesus with formalism and disfigured him with ecclesiasticism.

"Youth wants reality, romance, adventure in religion, and the churches have extracted these elements by their lack of open mindedness. Youth feels that church leaders have closed minds which completely shut out the new elements of understanding in the world."

Discuss Best Message.

When the subject "What Is the Religious Message of Students?" was discussed, leaders from various denominations seemed to agree with young Tuttle's declaration that "there is no difference between the beliefs of denominations," yet there appeared little unity about the theology which ought to be taught to students.

In general, three positions were advanced: First, the echo of Luther's declaration, "Here I stand, God helping me I can do no other," was affirmed by the Rev. Dr. C. P. Harry, Washington, D. C., as he faced the divisions of opinion with St. Paul's creed of salvation through faith in Christ.

"Every generation has its pet foibles; ours is the scientific method," said Dr. Harry. "It is probable that we are only beginning to realize that good will come of it. It is well to recognize that it has distinct limitations. The church cannot take her message from the very meager and contradictory results which it gives."

Humanist Position Given.

On the other hand, the humanist position was presented, declaring that a conception of God is not necessary, and that human life is the final reality. The Rev. Carl A. Nissen of Kansas Agricultural college declared that prayers could be helpful without referring to God at all. Dr. William P. Lemon of Minnesota university stated that humanism has much to offer, but that it falls short of giving the individual "the sanction of the universe."

ASKS REVAMPING OF GOVERNMENT TO SAVE CHICAGO

Sullivan Advises Move for New Charter.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Solution of Chicago's and Cook county's financial and allied problems was proposed by a new route yesterday. Boetius H. Sullivan, Democratic leader and son of the late Roger C. Sullivan, party boss of Illinois for many years, was its sponsor.

In a typewritten statement to the press, Mr. Sullivan announced his readiness to propose to the Democratic organization at its next meeting that it coöperate with other organizations looking toward the calling of a Chicago charter convention with a consolidation of local governmental agencis as its immediate object.

Mr. Sullivan mentions that he already has consulted with other Democratic leaders and has found them in sympathy with his project.

Calls System Archaic.

"Chicago's plight challenges us," wrote Mr. Sullivan. "No bank or business or even a modest household could survive under a like system. The trouble is partly fundamental—an archaic, unworkable and wasteful form of transacting the taxpayers' business.

"Chicago needs a new charter, constructed on efficient and workable lines that will consolidate overlapping departments, centralize responsibility, and balance the budget by the stoppage of waste at the bunghole instead of mainly trying to economize at the spigot.

"Chicago could give the world an exhibition of equitable, efficient, and honest government that would reflect upon her citizens the highest of honors flowing from the Century of Progress exhibition. This establishment of the local government on such a basis is in my opinion of far greater importance to the citizens of Chicago than even the exposition.

Urges Charter Convention.

"A charter convention could be convened almost immediately by resolution of the city council with the approval of the mayor. Such a convention could construct a new mechanism for the handling of the city's business. Taxing bodies could be consolidated. A smaller ballot could be provided for and many costly and useless elections eliminated. If deemed advisable, park districts could be consolidated under a single bureau and the very form of municipal government itself changed.

"The voters would have the opportunity in a referendum to accept or reject any charter recommended by the convention. If adopted, the present obsolete, buck-passing system of local government could be displaced by a responsible government visible to all citizens in all its activities.

"Under present conditions a multiplicity of taxing bodies chase each other and themselves around in circles with resultant confusion, divided responsibility and unconscionable waste.

"Financially the city is bankrupt. Public officials go from bank to bank seeking loans. The school teachers stood in the shadow of Christmas uncertain whether they would receive their meager salaries. Public improvements are at a standstill.

"The unhappy state in which the local government is in is in part due to a system of government designed for a crossroads town and not for such a city as Chicago.

"It is regrettable that local government must sink to such a low level before the people have stirred themselves. But now the shoes pinch on both feet. The hour is here. In our chagrin lies the strength with which to tackle the job we should have settled a quarter of a century ago.

"After consulting with several Democratic leaders I am of the opinion the greatest and the most enduring aid the Chicago citizens can render in preparation for the Century of Progress exhibition and for themselves is to replace, municipally speaking, the city's swaddling clothes with a full grown system of self-government commensurate with the greatness of our city and its people by adopting a new charter."

HUSTON, G. O. P. CHAIRMAN, TO BE FETED HERE

Claudius H. Huston of Chattanooga, Tenn., chairman of the Republican national committee, will make his first appearance in Chicago since his election last August at a dinner to be given for him at the Chicago club on Jan. 9 by George Woodruff, chairman of the board of directors of the National Bank of the Republic.

Other guests at the banquet will include the Republican governors and senators of Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, Michigan, Iowa and Ohio.

BENCH ADVISERS MEET SATURDAY; SEEK REFORMS

Will Use Ideas Found on Recent Trip.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Methods of cutting red tape in the courts, reducing "the law's delays," and confronting the criminal class with speedy trials and increased certainty of punishment are to be taken up Saturday by the Illinois judicial advisory council.

The conference, called by Senator A. S. Cuthbertson of Bunker Hill, chairman of the council, is to be held at the Chicago Bar association. Chief speakers on the program are Chief Justice Harry Olson of the Municipal court and Hiram T. Gilbert, "father" of the act which established that court.

Suggestions Being Taken Up.

Information gathered some weeks ago on the tour of Toronto, Montreal, Boston and New York on improved technique in the courts is being classified by the council. Members point out that some of the suggestions given publicity during the tour are being taken up by other organizations which enhances the prospects of getting somewhere with court reform, when the council presents its report to the legislature next year.

Among the matters which have impressed the investigators in their study of the Canadian and Massachusetts courts are the following:

1. Short indictments, a few lines sufficing instead of the bulky typewritten pages in vogue in Cook county.

2. Reclassification of crimes so as to destroy the chief legal distinction between felonies and misdemeanors and thus expedite prosecutions without affecting penalties.

3. Simplification of the system of calling juries.

4. The jury is judge of the fact, but not of the law as in Illinois. The judge interprets the law and orally instructs the jury.

5. Shorter pleadings.

6. Abolition of terms of court, thus quickening trials.

Features Found in Canada.

Outstanding features in Canada which impressed the investigators were:

1. Juries in murder cases are impanelled in less than half an hour. There is no examination by the lawyers. There are plenty of peremptory challenges but objection for cause is almost unknown.

2. The cutting away of legalistic verbiage and red tape, and the use of plain, blunt English.

3. No bail in serious offenses. In murder it is denied, and in some other cases it is put at a prohibitive level.

4. The old system of pleading has been abolished.

5. The old conflict between law and equity has been settled by abolishing separate common law and equity courts and unifying them.

Get Idea at Harvard.

On the other side of the scales, judges in Canada and Massachusetts are appointed for life. In Canada they have powers of a magnitude that would hardly be tolerated in Illinois.

Some important remedies, it is held, could be put into practice by the judges themselves without waiting for legislative action. The investigators are pondering over one thought given then by the Harvard law school faculty, to the effect that the courts can apply substantial correctives by using the powers inherent in the judiciary as a coördinate branch of government.

When the program of court modernization is prepared it will likely be divided into groups, improvements which the bench can make, others that would require legislation, and others, if any, which would require amendment of the constitution.

One thing the investigators point to is that in New York they got a good line of what not to do. Leading jurists and lawyers told the Illinois council that when New York's simplified practice act was passed more than a dozen years ago it was so loaded down with stuff from "advanced thinkers" that it is not much improvement over the old, if at all. The investigators are arguing for simple, direct reforms which will cure without revolutionizing the entire system.

Recall New York Cases.

Some of the judicial investigators yesterday recalled the visit which the Illinois advisory council paid to the New York court of special sessions, where three judges sit. During the visit three cases were heard, and in two of these some of the judges and lawyers on the Illinois council said the finding appeared to them to be a miscarriage of justice. Too much arbitrary power in the hands of a judge, it is argued, tends to breed autocrats on the bench and crimp strict administering of justice.

On the other hand, they contend, to make the jury judge of the law as well as of the facts in Illinois, ties the hands of the judge until he is practically without power to dispense justice in his court room save as a referee between the lawyers. Between these two extremes the advisory council expects to draft a workable compromise.

DELAY IN CHOOSING U. S. CENSUS MEN IS BLAMED ON DENEEN

Washington, D. C., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—Delay in the selection of seven persons as supervisors of the 1930 census in Chicago and Cook county is causing concern on the part of officials of the census bureau, it was learned today.

Although 500 of the 600 supervisors who will oversee the nation-wide enumeration have been officially appointed, including the 21 for other Illinois counties, those for Cook county have not yet even been recommended. Responsibility for the tieup is laid upon Senator Charles S. Deneen [Rep., Ill.], whose recommendations as senior Illinois senator are being awaited by Director William Stuart. Latest advices are that Senator Deneen may forward recommendations from Chicago within the next day or two.

HOLD SON AFTER MOTHER DIES OF STRANGE MALADY

The Gary police last night were holding Raymond McPherson, 28 years old, while medical authorities were investigating the death of his mother, Mrs. Kathryn McPherson, 63 years old, who died yesterday in the Mercy hospital at Gary. McPherson was arrested on Tuesday night after his mother had been taken to the hospital suffering from a mysterious malady. A bottle of poison liquor had been found in the McPherson home. An autopsy, performed by Dr. W. H. Behn, coroner's physician, indicated, however, that Mrs. McPherson had died of a brain tumor.

Dr. Behn's examination was not regarded as conclusive and the woman's vital organs were to be sent to the state chemist at Indianapolis for analysis.

The son was arrested for questioning after his sister, Mrs. Patrick McMahon, told the police that he had brought the bottle home recently and asked her to keep it for him, warning her not to let her husband drink it. Several days later Mrs. McPherson became ill and when she was removed to the hospital suspicion was directed at her son because of the presence of the bottle and the fact that he was a student of hypnotism. He denied that he was responsible for his mother's death.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients, naming them Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, causing a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a place face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, take one of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.

THE JUDGES AND THE CRIME COMMISSION.

The controversy which has arisen between the judges and the crime commission is regrettable. Our judiciary in Cook county is as conscientious and competent as any in the country, and the crime commission has performed and is performing one of the most useful and essential services the community receives. That these two agencies of law and order should not coöperate for their common ends would be deplorable and we trust a friendly and open minded conference to that end will be held. The judiciary is rightly jealous of its own credit and prestige, but it cannot expect and should not have immunity from responsible criticism. The crime commission, on the other hand, is composed of human beings and therefore is not infallible. It may have erred in some respects, and so have judges, and their common and mutual duty is to work together for the correction of faults and the improvement of their respective services to the community. We respect both and believe they should respect each other.

The problem of efficient law enforcement in this country and this community is complicated and difficult and both the judges and the commission should work together, as we believe they will, for its solution without supersensitiveness, pride of opinion, or recrimination. We cannot afford to have either of these important agencies of public protection discredited and greatly need their wise coöperation and essential services.

FOREIGN RIGHTS IN CHINA.

Following the news that the central political council of the Nanking government has voted to issue a mandate abolishing all extraterritorialities Jan. 1 the minister of foreign affairs, Mr. C. T. Wang, explains that the mandate must not be taken literally, but rather as a step toward the solution of the problem.

This explanation is not untimely. Sympathetic as the United States government and people are with Chinese aspirations, the summary and premature submission of the rights and security of Americans lawfully in China to whatever authority China in its present stage of general disorder and instability may from time to time exert is not to be tolerated. China has rights, but so have we, and if China expects to be regarded as a responsible member of the family of civilized nations it must take account of its own conditions and responsibilities. The Nanking and Manchurian governments have not been able to prevent invasion of Chinese soil by the soviet army and have been compelled to accept a restoration of the status quo ante which the Nanking government had denounced and tried to abolish by force. On the heels of this defeat we have this government denouncing the whole régime of extraterritoriality in which substantial interests of several great powers are involved and proposing to take over the situation summarily on Jan. 1. This proposal does not seem to us well timed or likely to impress world opinion with the candor or responsibility of Chinese statesmanship.

The immediate abolition of concessions and extraterritorial rights, which have grown from past conditions and are in the most important instances justified by present conditions, would be not only injurious to legitimate foreign interests but to the peace and prosperity of China itself. Chinese laws and legal agencies have not yet reached a stage of modern development which justifies confidence. Chinese governmental conditions are not yet sufficiently stable and responsible to justify the surrender of foreign concessions to their administration and protection. A period of transition should be agreed upon, but it should be limited not by time but by actual accomplishment. China needs foreign aid, loans, commercial intercourse, even occasional military aid. The great task of modernization which its most enlightened classes have undertaken would be seriously compromised by premature and unreasonable demands.

There is, for example, in north and northwest China a vast area in which a large part of the population of some thirty million people are almost or quite utterly destitute. This catastrophe has been brought about partly by chronic conditions which it is the responsibility of government to remove or mitigate and partly by the political and military chaos which has prevailed for months and which has recurred from time to time for years. Through this disorder, for which the Chinese themselves are responsible, reserve stocks of food, grain which has been saved for planting, draft animals and agricultural equipment have been destroyed or drawn away, and the transportation facilities essential to adequate relief have been seriously crippled. To these deplorable conditions has been added a protracted drought. The China International Famine Relief commission has been working for months in this region, having spent a million dollars thus far. While the commission reports that Chinese authorities have given all practicable coöperation, the situation cannot be substantially relieved until the spring crops of 1930. This is but one of the problems confronting government in China, racked with recurrent civil war and endemic banditry, but it suggests that the precipitation of a conflict with nations upon whose commerce and capital modern China must very substantially rely as resources of order and progress would be an expensive salve for Chinese national pride.

That extraterritorial rights and privileges should be modified is not denied and the American and other governments have expressed willingness to negotiate reforms. But summary and sweeping action is neither desirable from the viewpoint of Chinese prosperity nor practicable.

BOOMERANGS IN THE SENATE CHAMBER.

Mr. Borah's contributions to the current debate on prohibition enforcement are particularly amusing. He says that open, shameless, and continuous violation of the law is a national phenomenon. Violation is not confined to the great cities. Saloons, he says, are operating "in the jurisdiction of district attorney after district attorney" and nothing is being done about it.

Exactly. Mr. Borah has annoyed his fellow drys of the senate and they have attempted to exonerate the Hoover administration by saying that the fault is not wholly with the federal machinery of enforcement. That is an inadequate reply because it avoids the fact that the federal government, if not wholly responsible, is at least largely so.

There is a devastating reply to be made, but the dry Republican senators dare not make it. The reply is simply that Mr. Hoover is far less responsible for the state of enforcement than are the dry Republican senators themselves. The enforcement of the law is in the hands of the various United States district attorneys. In Republican states they, in turn, owe their appointments solely to the senators. So do the United States marshals. So, until recently, did the prohibition agents.

Mr. Borah says the saloons are running openly and notoriously. Then the senators cannot be wholly unaware of the facts, nor can the district attorneys, who owe their jobs to the senators and have the responsibility for prosecuting infractions of the law, nor can the marshals, who also owe their jobs to the senators and have the power to arrest for violations of federal statutes. If there are too few prosecutions, the blame can be pinned on the senators.

Mr. Hoover did not select these office holders in Republican states. The senate will not let Mr. Hoover select even the candidates he names for federal judgeships. The case of Hopkins in Kansas is exactly in point. Mr. Hoover was forced to appoint Hopkins in spite of the adverse recommendation of the attorney general because the Kansas senators, Capper and Allen, wanted Hopkins to have the position and the senate backed them up in defense of their patronage rights. Perhaps that is why Capper is actively defending Mr. Hoover now against Borah's attack.

The spectacle is an engaging one. The law, as Mr. Borah says, is being flouted throughout the land. This gives dry Republican senators the opportunity either to join in the attack, thereby damning themselves, or to deny the fact of wholesale violations, thereby laying themselves open to embarrassing questions regarding affairs in the home state. Dry Democrats have less responsibility for the personnel of Volstead enforcement, but they may not so much as peep without opening themselves to questions about the sacredness of the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments. If those amendments were enforced, most of the southern Democrats would be back home trying personal injury cases against the railroad companies for contingent fees.

Editorials of the Day

MR. HOOVER SHOULD KNOW.

[Baltimore Evening Sun.]

Mr. Hoover is so disturbed over Senator Borah's attack upon the personnel of the dry enforcement units that he has had a long conference with the senator to get at the basis of his spleen.

And yet it is difficult to believe that Mr. Hoover doesn't understand the situation as fully as Senator Borah. Mr. Hoover, after all, is an educated and experienced man. He took his bachelor's degree at Leland Stanford back in 1895. He has received honorary doctor's degrees from Brown, Pennsylvania, Harvard, Yale, Columbia, Princeton, Johns Hopkins, George Washington, Dartmouth, Rutgers, Alabama, Oberlin, Liege, Brussels, Warsaw, Cracow, Oxford, Rennselaer, Tufts, Swarthmore, Williams, Manchester, Prague, Ghent, Lemberg, and Cornell. He has advantages which come to few men to attain worldly wisdom, and his understanding and grasp of affairs have been recognized throughout the world.

A man with such a background should surely be able to understand the root cause of the corruption which has dogged the prohibition unit from the beginning without consulting comparative provincials, like Senator Borah. Other educated and intelligent men know that high grade men won't do low grade work. They know that men of decency won't sniff around their neighbors' houses nor snoop and spy upon the rest of the community. Since decent men won't do such work, it follows that the indecent flock to it, and graft and corruption are the inevitable result.

But still we don't understand why it should be necessary for Senator Borah to explain all this to Mr. Hoover.

THE GYPSY.

[Des Moines Register.]

Two men known as gypsies have been sent to the reformatory at Anamosa for swindling an Iowa farmer out of several thousand dollars. No gypsy had been confined in that institution for fifteen years.

The wandering gypsy has practically disappeared in this country. He has gone the way of the medicine show and the one-ring circus. Those who remain travel in big cars and have usually found a more lucrative business than telling fortunes and stealing horses.

Since their first appearance in Europe in the fifteenth century, gypsies have been wanderers and thus have been foreigners wherever they were. The early European bands claimed to be Egyptians [thus the name "gypsies"] exiled by the Saracens. But they have long since been more definitely traced to India, and they are still numerous only in Hungary, Turkey, and other parts of eastern Europe. The true gypsy never made any great appearance in the United States, but dark-skinned immigrant bands who preferred to roam this country adopted the romance and color of the gypsy life as well as its method of sustenance. And as the rural folk became less and less susceptible to this gypsy's wiles, he has gradually withdrawn to the centers thickly populated by his own races.

We who used to run to the cellar and hide, for fear of being kidnapped, when the cloth-covered gypsy wagons filed through town may lament his passing, for he furnished a picturesque background to our childhood. But after all, his disappearance represents a step upward in the social average.

AN ITCH ON THANKSGIVING.

IN a letter dated Thanksgiving day, G. M. asks for a prescription for winter itch. This would indicate that G. M. was not certain that he was thankful. In all probability he remained indoors all that day. Somewhere about two o'clock he ate a heavy dinner, starting with a meat soup, peaking with turkey, and ending with mince pie. After that, feeling torpid, he proceeded to hibernate. He slept two hours and then lolled around the house. The house was snug and the air was warm and dry. Before bedtime he was itchy and scratchy. He sat down at his desk and, alternately scratching and writing, he sent out his S. O. S.

The answer sounds simple, but the prescription is costly and troublesome. Winter itch results from prolonged exposure of the skin to warm, dry air. The proper place to apply treatment is the air. If that is tried the skin gets well without treatment. On the other hand, treating the skin and leaving the air as it is proves unsatisfactory two-thirds of the time.

The most effective treatment consists in going to Florida, southern California, or somewhere else in search of moist, cool air and opportunities to remain out of doors. That treatment is not possible for the rank and file. A few people are in a position to spend their time among the flowers in a conservatory.

Such people escape winter itch wherever they are. The great majority of people must depend on less expensive and more convenient methods. Remaining out of doors most of the time is possible for some. I have known woodsmen, however, who have fallen victims to winter itch because they would occasionally come indoors and sit around a hot stove. The worst of all sufferers are the members of the hot stove league. If the house is heated by a system the air can be kept around sixty-five and never above sixty-eight.

If this is done there will be very little winter itch. If enough moisture is added to the air to hold the humidity at fifty-five per cent there will be almost no symptoms of the disorder. However, a pan of water on the stove will not supply enough moisture to save the day.

When it comes to treating the skin there are many prescriptions to choose from. Grease is the basis of all of them. If the skin is intact, carbolic acid in the grease adds to its efficiency. This chemical is a powerful sedative to skin nerves, but, like other powerful sedatives, it is somewhat dangerous.

GALL STONE MAY BE EVADED.

Mrs. A. B. H. writes:

1. What is bile?
2. What must one eat to produce bile?
3. Does gas in the stomach mean that a person has gall stones?
4. Can the formation of gall stones be prevented?

REPLY.

1. Bile is the secretion of the liver. It is a complex liquid, consisting of several substances with different properties.
2. Bile is formed naturally, just as is sweat or any other secretion. When we speak of producing bile we generally mean causing it to be emptied into the intestine. Eating any food causes bile to empty. Eating fats and oils is very effective in this respect.
3. One of the symptoms of gall stones is explosive belching. However, this symptom may be due to other causes.
4. Yes, in many instances. Avoid alcoholic beverages and condiments. Avoid heavy meals. Keep the weight down. Lead an active life.

SMOKING WILL NOT HELP.

Miss N. writes: I am a young girl and bothered with bad breath constantly. It is worse when I first wake up and after eating. I attend the dentist regularly. Is there any help? Would smoking help me?

REPLY.

Smoking will not help you.

If your teeth are all right what about your tonsils and your nose?

If neither is at fault your diet must be wrong.

Live largely on milk and foods made from it. Eat some breads and other starchy foods. Eat liver or kidney occasionally to supply iron. Eat plenty of fruit and vegetables.

HAVE GOOD WARM STOCKINGS.

Mrs. A. G. F. writes: I have a 2 year old baby. Would it be better to keep her in mercerized stockings or silk and wool socks for the winter?

REPLY.

SIDEWALK REPAIR.

Chicago, Dec. 18.—[Friend of the People.]—Last winter a section of the sidewalk at 2865 Keeley street was broken up by the water department to repair a water main, with a promise that it would be repaired in a very short time. Almost a year has elapsed since then and the sidewalk has not been repaired. F. R.

Our inspector reports that this cement walk has been repaired. J. J. BUTLER, Deputy Superintendent of Streets.

Chicago, Dec. 29.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A fire we had burned up a dining room suite which I was buying on the installment plan. The furniture company says furniture belongs to them until it is paid for, but they say they carry insurance on furniture only while it is in the store. E. M.

SEARCH.

Oh, I have tried to find a song like snow,
To fill the black depressions of my heart;
(A stormy valley's often covered so;)
But I have torn the words of kings apart,
Regarded heavens holy men have vowed,
And found no shroud of silver peace. It seems
I cannot call down crystal from a cloud,
And there is only music, only dreams.

But every poet I have known has said,
"I have the secret you have sought so long;
My words will cover you; be comforted;"
And straightway he has made a cloak of song
As gold as heaven, and as white and tall,
Or quaintly consummated for an elf;
A mantle I could never wear at all,

WATER WAGON FOUNDERS ON SPEAK EASY REEF.

Uncharted Shoals and Cold, Stormy Night Bring Disaster.

Crew and Passengers All Saved, but Wagon a Total Loss.

(BY IMA LYER, SPECIAL STIFF CORRESPONDENT OF THE LINE.)

The good ship Water Wagon lies a battered wreck on Speak Easy Reef. The voyage, which started in such high hopes, ended disastrously fifteen minutes from the time the Water Wagon departed so gayly from the Chicago Water Tower at the precise moment the clocks sounded the end of the old year and the beginning of the new. The wagon was crowded with passengers, all of whom had promised that during the year 1930 they would never again drink of hootch, white mule, or canned heat. The passengers were singing "Little Drops of Water," the official song of the cruise, when the Water Wagon hit on Speak Easy Reef and immediately sank. Probably all of the crew and passengers would have been lost had it not been for the presence of mind of a New York reveler clinging to a lamp post on the shore. Seeing the heads of the survivors bobbing in the cruel waves the scofflaw waved a bottle, presumably containing the Demon Rum, and shouted, "I'll give greash big drinksh to first guy wot gits ashore." The crew and passengers fought like demons to be the first to reach the scofflaw. They all seemed to get on shore at the same time and every one claimed the prize. "April fool," shouted the scofflaw, "thersh nusshin' in bottle but shody washer." The scofflaw would have been lynched by the maddened crew and passengers only for the timely arrival of the police. It is deeply regretted that the cruise of the Water Wagon came to such an unhappy end. However, not daunted by the calamity, a new and bigger Water Wagon will be built and sail again next year.

NOW that it's all over—Christmas, New Year's, and the happy (oh, more or less) days between, what is there to look forward to but January freezes and February thaws? Ah, but you will probably go to Miami or the Bermudas? No; well, we told you to leave Amalgamated Birds' Nest alone. However, be cheerful; Valentine's day is coming and Washington's birthday and the Fourth of July. Ah, be like dear little Pollyanna, and give us a sweet smile. Oh, hurrah for the Fourth of July!

SCIENTISTS in convention in Des Moines announce that the world is traveling at the rate of 200 miles a second on a journey that it will take three hundred million years to complete. THE JILT.

I have sent him away.
See, there he goes!
Not much I could say,
But every one knows

Love isn't as pretty
As he believed.
Of course it's a pity
To be undeceived—

But, then, what could I do . . .
I wish that he Hadn't smiled in that new
Quiet way at me.

His feet seemed to stumble
Under the sun.
His eyes were so humble . . .
Well, what's done is done.

He will laugh at a kiss
When he understands.
Dear God! What is this—
But blood on my hands.

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 2, 1865.

NEW YORK.—[Midnight dispatch from Richmond.] — Deserters report that the rebels are moving heavy machinery from arsenals and other public works at Richmond preparatory to evacuating the city.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—Hon. George M. Dallas, ex-Vice President of the United States, died at his residence at 9 o'clock this morning. He was well enough to be about yesterday.

NEW YORK.—The Juarez government of Mexico offers a bounty of $900 to volunteers from foreign countries who will enter its military services.

DECATUR, Ala. — Gen. Steedman transferred his command to the south bank of the Tennessee above this place night before last and threw it rapidly upon the town. The enemy under Hood rapidly retreated. Our cavalry, under Col. Rolly of the 15th Indiana, captured two twelve-pounder guns with horses and a number of prisoners. Trains run from this place to Chattanooga.

NEW YORK.—Gold has taken a downward turn after the bull movement of the last few days and the market is dull from an indisposition to make contracts extending over two days in which no business was transacted.

CHICAGO.—J. Thomas Carter and Miss Rhoda Snow were married on Dec. 26 by the Rev. Robert Collyer.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 2, 1900.

LONDON.—The British have won a victory finally. The results are small but none the less welcome as the first encouragement to the queen's troops in the field and the public at home for several weeks. Gen. French is the man who led the successful charge and the place was near Colesberg. The British losses are reported as slight, and the Boer losses are not given. The Boers were forced to retreat and the British occupied Colesberg.

NEW YORK. — "Kid" McCoy knocked out Peter Maher at the Coney Island Sporting club in the fifth round with a left punch on the side of the chin. It was a decisive victory and left no loophole through which the Irishman can escape the full stigma of defeat. McCoy has agreed to meet Joe Choynski in a 25 round bout at the Broadway Athletic club on Jan. 12.

CHICAGO.—TRIBUNE employés attended the eleventh annual dinner given by THE TRIBUNE company at the Auditorium hotel. Special guests were Robert S. McCormick, R. R. McCormick, A. T. Galt, W. T. 10 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 2, 1920.

CHICAGO.—Starting the new year with a determination to end bolshevism and anarchy in Cook county, State's Attorney Hoyne and Chief of Police Garrity dealt a heavy blow to all Chicago's radical activities. In a series of raids nearly 150 alleged Reds were arrested. More than 300 open and secret gathering places of the seventy or more radical cults in the city were visited.

DORPAT.—After nearly a month of preliminary conversations the soviet Russians and Esthonians signed an agreement to cease hostilities for seven days. The protocol includes recognition of Esthonian independence.

CHICAGO.—Taking of the United States census begins today, when 2,100 enumerators, under direction of sixty-one field supervisors, will swoop down on Chicago, armed with twenty-eight questions.

PARIS.—In an interview Marshal Foch says he was divinely inspired to defeat the Germans, and that the allied victory was willed by God. In religion Marshal Foch is a devout Catholic.

CZECHO-SLOVAKIA TODAY.

Chicago, Dec. 30.—In regard to Mr. Sage's articles on Czecho-Slovakia I would like to say that they were very instructive, although there might be a few minor details not correct from the standpoint of a certain class of Czecho-Slovak citizens which, nevertheless, ought not to create the impression that the articles are not favorable to the new republic.

Today I read an article in a Czech daily here exhorting its readers to mail protests to your office against TRIBUNE'S supposedly inimical attitude towards Czecho-Slovakia. Such an action, however, would show only oversensitiveness and lack of sense of criticism.

The oversensitiveness toward any kind of criticism is one of the principal reasons why the republic did not show as rapid progress as was expected, and the resulting autocratic measures are again directly responsible for 19 political parties, which is the only way permissible to express dissenting opinion.

Practically pathological ambitions, autocracy under the disguise of democracy, personal jealousies on the part of high political figures are important reasons why the situation in Czecho-Slovakia is very complicated, becoming more so every day, and why minor mistakes in Mr. Sage's articles were unavoidable, but in general these articles are highly appreciated by unprejudiced students as a fair attempt of sound criticism not regulated by biased orthodox opinions from the Hradschin Castle at Prague.

DR. J. J. PELC.

PEDESTRIAN RELIEF.

Chicago, Dec. 23.—I wonder if it ever came to your mind to use your influence to help pass a city ordinance forcing property owners to keep their sidewalks clean. In the last few days the writer has seen some serious accidents to old folks and young children on account of the sidewalks not being clean.

It seems very funny that a building owner can afford a thirty, fifty or one hundred thousand dollar building but cannot afford to hire some one to keep his sidewalks clean once or twice a year as weather conditions may occur.

In my opinion the city should enact such a law and enforce it by either a fine or do the work themselves and charge the property owners as taxes.

L. S. PONCHER.

PERMUTATIONS IN BRIDGE.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—In your paper today I noticed the article headed: "Loses Bid After Dealing Self Hand of Thirteen Hearts."

In this article I note statement the statisticians have figured out that such a hand could occur only once in 653,013,559,600 hands.

I have figured out the problem and according to my figures there are 635,013,559,600 hands in bridge.

C. A. MEHLICKA

LEADER WANTED.

Chicago, Dec. 30.—I read a great deal in your paper about the deplorable financial condition in Chicago, with no suggestion for its solution. All this publicity just adds to the already existing disrepute of our city not only in the country but abroad. I also read in the papers that Senator Norris demands the resignation of the greatest secretary of the treasury that we have had in my lifetime, while I hear no demand for the resignation or impeachment of our city officials who put us in this condition. It seems to me with the present situation what we need is some powerful leadership to pull us out of the morass. Why can't you be that leader? G. B.

PATIENT TEACHERS.

Chicago, Dec. 30.—We teachers work independently, Mr. Scanlan, not as a group. Your informant is in error. The delayed pay day is only one of many inconveniences being borne by Chicago teachers with the patience of their profession while waiting for the time when Chicagoans will realize that it takes more money to keep children in school until they are sixteen years old than it did to keep them in until they were fourteen. Each year the shortage becomes greater, of course, no matter who is mayor.

And we who are in the schools have known for a long time and have taught many little boys that it doesn't pay to cut off your nose to spite your face.

SOUTH CHICAGO TEACHER.

SPECULATION BY ANALOGY.

Chicago, Dec. 29.—The war of 1776 was required to free the country, the war of 1812 freed the sea, and the civil war gave liberty to the slave. No one can say what will be required to free the country from the present rule of prohibition fanatics. H. E. WALKER.

SYNOPSIS.

John Andrew Kellogg, heir to millions, asks Barbara Thornton to marry him. She agrees, but not very graciously. When she hears that he has just lost his job she scolds him and calls him a playboy. He calls on his attorney, David Craig, who tells him that he will never inherit the money his father left if he doesn't prove himself capable of managing his life in a sensible way. He tells him that since he has lost one job after another he will have to double five thousand dollars in thirty days or live on an income from a trust fund for the rest of his life. John Andrew telephones this to Barbara and she offers to give him five thousand to turn over to Craig. He refuses and tells her he is going out to Hollywood. She is furious with him and breaks the engagement. He decides to go to San Francisco and starts for California. On the train he meets Anne Ames, who is on her way to Hollywood with a letter of introduction to a movie producer. They become interested in each other. Before saying good-by in Utah John Andrew tells Anne that he will see her in Los Angeles in a few days.

Arrived in San Francisco, John Andrew meets an old school friend, Peter Merriam, on the street. Pete is selling Mercury cars and tries to sell one to John Andrew. They go for a trial spin and, with John Andrew at the wheel, have a slight smashup. In order to keep Pete from losing his job Andrew buys the custom built roadster for $4,980. He also gives all but a hundred dollars of his expense money to an old man with an invention without asking what the machine is. He drives to Los Angeles in the Mercury and sees Anne at the Consolidated studio, where she is being tried out. He makes an engagement to take her to dinner. Before starting out he looks at the old man's plans and learns they are for a noiseless camera. He goes to Consolidated to interview the chief engineer and finds him in the midst of a crap game with his assistants.

INSTALLMENT XXII.

A GOOD BUSINESS DEAL.

John Andrew's fingers went to the two round dollars and came away.

"I came here to get money out of you fellows, not to be trimmed properly," he grinned. "O, well, easy come, easy go; I'm done, but don't let me stop the game"—as two of the engineers came to their feet, brushing their knees vigorously—"I'll hang around and observe your technique a little more closely——"

"We start a game as soon as we hear some one's comin' to the department," a man told Kellogg. "If it weren't for us Consolidated 'd be on the rocks. We're looking for meat all the time . . . but we're going to stop before Fitz loses the fifty he just won. He's the boss, and this'll make him happy enough to raise our pay."

"You birds go to work," Fitzgerald said. "I wouldn't have you around at all, except that it makes my own job look more important. I want that batch of figures this morning, too."

"Did 'em last night, Fitz."

"Well, go do 'em over in A-B-C so I can get the idea across to that fathead in the purchasing department. . . ."

Kellogg was not [as yet] mourning his exhausted exchequer. He had taken a fair chance at increasing the money to two hundred (provided it would prove to be worth while sending additional cash to Blake in San Francisco, which he would find out now) and had, fairly, lost. However, Fitzgerald was obviously in a friendly mood and felt that Kellogg was one who belonged with the engineering gang. Since Kellogg must approach his mission cautiously, this might recompense him for the lost money.

Fitzgerald asked, "What can I do for you, old man?"

"It took twelve to beat your natural, but I've done it."

"It's like this," John Andrew began slowly, almost as if timidly.

The engineer cut him short. He glanced at John Andrew swiftly, appraisingly, and then said, "Where're you from? Cal? Cal-tech? Purdue? If you want a job I can fix you up temporar'ly, 'specially if you had plenty of light lab-work in physics——"

"No——"

"Too bad . . . it's a tough game, but pretty good fun if you can keep away from goin' wild here. You don't want to break into the pictures?"

"Don't do it," Fitzgerald advised.

"I'm just trying to sell you something," Kellogg said directly.

"You aren't the fellow Houseman-Jerome were going to send out? Because, if you are, you tell the company that we aren't going to stand for any partially insulated stuff, even if the purchasing department buys it——"

"No," John Andrew interrupted. "I've got something which I believe you fellows need pretty badly——"

"A savings account?"

"Your name Blake?" he asked.

And with that John Andrew's heart missed a beat, although he said quietly, "I'm representing Mr. Blake."

"You're all wet on your choice of lenses," Fitzgerald said. "I don't like the way you've put things together. Too damn clumsy."

"But, for the sake of argument, I'll admit this," Fitzgerald went on. "I'll be hanged if I see why we didn't think of experimentation with metal substitutes, nor how such an elaborate outfit can be so perfectly silent——"

"Isn't it?" John Andrew asked.

"You know it is," the youthful department head snapped. "So do we. Don't you think I had the boys put it together?"

"Hmm," John Andrew said.

"You fellows offered it to any one else?"

"Not yet."

"Don't. But you know that. Our letter covered that point. We'll stick to our offer."

Knowing nothing of letter nor offer, John Andrew decided to try. "I left San Francisco a couple of days ago, and while the wire from my partner was fairly specific——"

"We'll raise the ten thousand to twenty," Fitzgerald suggested. "It's worth that to us . . . to any one. Just to get the edge on the rest of the companies. I'll tell you this frankly, old man; the patent isn't fool proof. But we can raise the devil with any one who tries to play with it . . . just as you could do with us if we tried the same game. And this makes my department look pretty good . . . what do you say?"

"We'll take twenty-five thousand," John Andrew said soberly. "I suppose you want our camera, ready to work, as fast as we can get it to you?"

"The devil with your camera," the engineer objected. "It looks like a perpetual motion machine; it's got enough cogs and levers to run a couple of tractors. We're buyin' what we hope's pretty close to a basic idea; we'll do our own manufacturin', or have one of the big eastern companies do it in our name."

"Didn't you write my partner to get one down as quickly as he could?"

"No; just told him we'll come across with ten thousand, and to go see our representative in San Francisco to sign things . . . that'll have to wait now until you both sign, of course; even an engineer knows that both partners' names are necessary . . . well, fella . . . I'll go you twenty thousand if I roll higher dice than you do; twenty-five if you top me. That's better than arguin', because I might get pigheaded. . . ."

"I'm Scotch myself," said Kellogg. "Get out your dice."

Save for the old inventor, John Andrew did not care which way the cubes would show; he was already figuring on sending Blake later a check covering his own half of the transaction, so that the old man would have all of the money accruing from the soundless camera. He said to Fitzgerald, as the engineer pawed through a drawer looking for dice, "This is a pretty lucky break for me. I'm not usually lucky. . . . this has sort of taken the wind out of the old sails——"

Fitzgerald warmed the dice between his palms. "Goin' to win the girl, and all that sort of thing?"

John Andrew went back several years for his answer: "You'd be surprised," he grinned.

A moment later, reading the total of the dice he had rolled, he said, "My luck's changed . . . it took a twelve to beat your natural, but I've done it."

"Consolidated," said Fitzgerald, "have a lot of jack. Twenty-five grand does it."

"The Blake-Kellogg camera——"

"'S good a name as any other. Getting the Blake-Kellogg cameras in shape. As soon as the papers are signed you get your check."

"There won't be any trouble about that," John Andrew informed him. "I'll wire Blake to do whatever your San Francisco office wants, and have him send the documents to me here; I'll sign 'em, and then the heavy eating begins. My partner must have been excited when he heard from you; he wants to make a regular size outfit instead of this model, and—here, scribble me some sort of agreement; just write, 'Upon receipt of legal transfer of patent by the Consolidated Picture corporation I agree to accept $25,000 in full payment thereof,' and sign it like a good egg . . . take my word for it, you're getting every cent the thing's worth, especially in its form of development; we've got to do a lot of hard work to perfect it."

"How about coming out and having lunch with me?" John Andrew asked.

"Not a chance," Fitzgerald said. "Wish I could, but now that we've got this idea sewed up I'm going to do a little tinkering around, and then go get my chest out down in the front offices and let the bosses know what a bright boy I am . . . besides," grinning and walking to the door with Kellogg, "I nicked you good in the other room, but we'd prob'ly match for the lunch, and you'd take me like an actor does his public'ty. See you in a day or so. You'd better put your roll, soon's you get in, where we can't get you into another li'l game. . . ."

Smiles Mark Hindenburg's Line for 1930

Crowds, Envoys Wish Him "Happy New Year."

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 1.—A new feature was added to Germany's New Year celebration today. One thousand Berliners assembled before a building in the Wilhelmstrasse and called for President Hindenburg until the president himself appeared on the balcony and bowed to the crowds. His appearance brought ovation after ovation. While the crowds cheered, the guard band gave a serenade, playing his favorite marching tunes.

Hours later, in their gala uniforms embroidered in gold and crimson, with ostrich feathers in their hats, the diplomats accredited in Berlin called on President Hindenburg and presented their New Year's greetings.

This formal visit was preceded by a fight for precedence similar to the Dolly Gann-Alice Longworth struggle. Only here, men were the contenders. For years Papal Nuncio Eugenio Pacelli, was dean of the Berlin diplomatic corps, but he is in Rome now as a cardinal. The Russian ambassador, Krestinski, is his successor as the ambassador who has been accredited in Berlin for the greatest number of years.

As the United States and several other important powers have not recognized the soviets their ambassadors cannot be expected to follow the lead of a representative of the communist power.

The diplomats argued. Finally they agreed to accept the pope's representative, the nuncio, as dean of the diplomatic corps. Then the nuncio became ill. In his absence the French ambassodr, De Margerie, presented the good wishes of the diplomats to President Hindenburg, inadvertently or not neglecting to include the German people in his message.

President Hindenburg in his reply, whether inadvertently or not, accepted Ambassador De Margerie's greetings in behalf of the German people instead of for himself personally. President Hindenburg reminded the younger men of all nations grouped around him that "peace and security of the world, which we all desire, is founded on political equality of rights and the economic health of all states. Heavy payments have been imposed on Germany. Germany will be able to fulfill her obligations only if she has political freedom and possibilities for economic development."

Political liberty also was the keynote of the speech in which Chancellor Hermann Mueller presented his New Year's wishes to the German cabinet and to President Hindenburg.

"On Jan. 30 the third zone is to be freed by the army of occupation, and Germany thus will become free again, the goal toward which all Germans have been looking longingly," Chancellor Mueller said.

Herbert Hoover Jr. Says Radio Will Protect Flyers

New York, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Herbert Hoover Jr., in the first of a series of articles appearing in the January issue of the Aero Digest, says radio eventually will give to commercial air transportation "just that added degree of positive safety and regularity of service which characterizes well operated railroads."

He tells of weather broadcasting stations and directive radio beacons installed by the airways division of the department of commerce. He says he would "not be at all surprised" if the department of commerce requires at least a receiving set on every mail and transport plane.

"But quite aside from any government regulation to this effect," the article continues, "every transport company, every professional pilot, and every private flyer owes it to himself to make use of this service every time he undertakes to make a cross-country hop."

PARIS, Jan. 1.—A fossil skeleton of a dinosaurus measuring 38 feet long and more than 6 feet wide is reported to have been discovered at Rio Martin near Tetuan, North Africa. The discovery is regarded as important in helping to establish the geological history of North Africa. The skeleton is estimated to be more than 300,000 years old.

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send your name and address with your question to "Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question Mrs. L. J. Vegel, 1541 White street, Dubuque, Ia., was awarded $5.

The Question.

What incident this last year gave you the greatest joy?

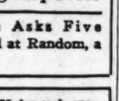
The Answers.

W. C. Johnstone, Hotel Morrison, clerk—I have just come from Winnipeg to Chicago, where I hope to be a useful and successful citizen. Well, my shooting of five wolves last fall gave me the greatest pleasure of the year. One has to outwit a skillful opponent to do that, but there's a substantial bounty for it.

Miss Alice S. McDermott, 977 Edgecomb place, stenographer—My motor trip in Wisconsin with my sister during my vacation last summer. The trip was especially wonderful when we got up into the northern woods. The forests, lakes, winding trails, the quietness, all were so novel and restful.

William E. Anderson, 1400 Lake Shore drive, lawyer—In the early part of the year my wife and I spent considerable time on a ranch along the Mexican border. However, my greatest joy was not experienced while we were down there, but upon our return home when my baby took her first steps to me.

Mrs. Ilean Huddleston, 1856 West Chicago avenue, factory work—The treat of the year for me was a friend's Christmas gift of a doll buggy, and beautiful doll with it, for my 6 year old daughter, Maxine. It is a lovely big reed buggy almost as large as a baby buggy.



Marshall Goldstein, 5418 East View park, brokerage cashier—The stock market's upward turn last Thursday. I like to see cheerful faces, not sad ones. I expect the market to be dull for a while, with no great changes during the early part of 1930, but by the end of the year I expect to see prices at a substantially higher level than they are now.

It's Vacation; Try This on Your Parents

For Prof. Angell Opposes College "Grinds."

The youth who becomes a "greasy grind" in college is a "grind" because he is "greasy" and seeks success in scholastic activities to compensate for his failure socially. At least, that is the view of Prof. Robert C. Angell of the University of Michigan. He just has completed a survey of a group of undergraduates, to be published by the University of Chicago press as a "Study in Undergraduate Adjustment."

"Mediocre students evidently are the best adjusted socially," Prof. Angell said. "The poor student is next and the good student is worst. There is another factor which handicaps the best students; that is, they come from smaller families than the other students and perhaps are not so experienced socially.

"Nevertheless, it is quite apparent from a careful scrutiny of the case records that frequently those who find difficulty in making an adequate social adjustment put themselves into their academic life with redoubled vigor, with the hope that they may compensate for ill success in one field with good success in another."

Prof. Angell found that while women excel in the social intelligence test, the information test showed that men, as a rule, are much better informed on general subjects than are the co-eds.

Prof. Angell's survey also showed that men students are more apt in the natural sciences and in the social sciences and that women are superior as students of art, literature and religion. Only about one-third of the students examined in Prof. Angell's survey showed any serious interest in religious subjects.

Two Western Military Posts Assume New Names

Cheyenne, Wyo., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Known for sixty-two years as Fort D. A. Russell, the military reservation here today officially changed its name to Ft. Francis E. Warren in compliance with a presidential order issued Dec. 6, 1929. The name was changed at the suggestion of President Hoover as a tribute to the late Senator Francis E. Warren of Wyoming. At the same time, Camp Marfa, at Marfa, Tex., changed its name to Fort D. A. Russell.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Occasionally the Civic Opera company turns aside from the contemplation of soulful passion and ingenious crime to pause for a moment in the more ingratiating scenes of comic opera. When it does so in the manner that it did last night, comic opera can rightfully be known as grand opera.

As a matter of fact, "The Barber of Seville" has for a long time been one of the items upon which the organization bases its reputation. For a number of seasons we of the audience have been gladdened by the presence of expert specialists like Mr. Rimini, Mr. Trevisan, and Mr. Lazzari, artists who put the final stamp of authority and the final finish on their rôles. Last season came Miss Salvi to join that worshipful group as another expert in the art of comedy.

Last night came Mr. Manuritta to make his first bow before an American audience and to prove during the evening that the tenor part of the opera is still in good hands.

He is young, he is personable, his way about the stage is certain and graceful. He was intensely nervous during his first scene—many another artist has suffered the same sensations under the same circumstances—and it was not at all helped by confronting a passage wherein the orchestra was cut down to the merest thread of sound. At such times clinging to the pitch becomes something of an adventure.

Once that obstacle was hurdled, he began to reveal himself as the possessor of a high and rather fine voice of medium weight, but with a clarity that floats it plainly to the ear. The tricky vocal ornaments with which the part is besprinkled seemed to give him little concern; he sailed along with them as blithely as though they had been the simplest melody.

As has been indicated, he was in fast company, and therefore he is the better for having held up his end. The rollicking humor with which Mr. Rimini does Figaro, the machine-gun rattle of syllables in aria and recitative, has always been one of the greatly entertaining points about this performance. So is that marvelous performance of a former period, Mr. Trevisan's Dr. Bartolo. Not within memory has any one else ever approached him in the part. So is the abysmal absurdity, that gigantic piece of clowning, Mr. Lazzari's Don Basilio. These three raised the humor of the piece to great art. Curiously, they never seem to get the performance set into unchanging durability. Always they find some new details, some fresh bit of nonsense to add to the joys of the occasion.

And Miss Salvi was a Rosina in whom to take delight. She has never yet failed to be competent in any of her rôles, but when the rôle is a comic one she is exquisite. Her deftness of voice and manner are notable assets in the fine art of being amusing, and it would not be a bad idea for the company to dig out a dozen or so other comic operas so that she could sing their soprano characters.

Public Library Here Reports 14,500,000 Borrowings of Books

The Chicago public library during the last year increased the number of book loans by nearly 400,000. It opened two new branches despite a budget of only 75 per cent of the normal income, Carl B. Roden, librarian, reported yesterday.

Books issued to borrowers in the first eleven months of the year were equivalent to 13,381,364. On that basis, the twelve month total will be approximately 14,500,000 as compared to 14,128,771 last year.

Library shelves now contain 1,800,000 volumes, as compared with 1,687,000 at the beginning of the year. Borrowers' cards are held by 675,000 persons, or about 21 per cent of the population.

U. of Michigan Gets Gen. Gage's Private Papers

Obtains Added Lights on Revolution's Causes.

Durham, N. C., Jan. 1.—(AP)—The papers of Gen. Sir Thomas Gage, British commander in chief in America from 1763 to 1775, have just been obtained by the University of Michigan. The papers are the gift of William L. Clements. This was announced to the American Historical association here today by Randolph G. Adams, director of the University of Michigan library.

"The documents naturally cover the North American continent, from the West Indies on the east, to the Mississippi on the west, and from New Foundland on the north, to Pensacola on the south," Mr. Adams said.

"Involved in the documents is the correspondence between Gen. Gage as the king's principal representative in America, and all of the colonial governors; all of the British commanders, both on the eastern seaboard and the frontier posts; and thousands of letters with the disgruntled merchants and business men, whose irritation caused the American revolution.

"The University of Michigan library already contains the headquarters papers of the British army in North America throughout the revolution; that is, the papers of Gen. Sir Henry Clinton, the papers of 'The Man Higher Up,' Lord George Germain; the papers of the British prime minister who ended the revolution, Earl Shelburne; the papers of Nathaniel Green, the American general second only in importance to George Washington; and hundreds of similar collections."

Its Bulky Collection.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 1.—(AP)—The documents of Lord Thomas Gage comprise about 20,000 letters and maps. Gage was commander of the British forces in America at the beginning of the revolutionary war.

Whether he was an able commander facing unusual conditions with which he was wholly unfamiliar and unable to cope, or whether he was so undiplomatic and inefficient as to have bungled his job, has long been disputed.

Gen. Gage was born in 1721. After service in the Scotch campaign, the climax of which was the battle of Culloden [where a Stuart revolt was put down in 1746], he was sent to America and in 1755 participated in the disastrous expedition of Braddock. Following his operations against Montreal, as a subordinate of Geoffery Amherst, he was made governor of that teritory and in 1774 was transferred to the governorship of Massachusetts.

There his troubles began in earnest. He was intrusted with enforcing the Boston port act, by which Great Britain forbade the "landing or discharging, loading or shipping of goods, wares, and merchandise at the town and within the harbor of Boston" until its citizens had paid for the tea destroyed and had promised submission to the tax laws. A move by Gage to enforce that blockade failed.

Historians have said it was Gage's action in sending 800 soldiers to capture the colonial supplies at Concord which really precipitated the war of independence. After the battle of Bunker Hill, Gage was superseded by Sir William Howe and returned to England.

Mr. Clements is a regent of Michigan university and the donor of the Clements library, which contains in a beautiful building on the campus one of the best collections of books and pamphlets on American history to be found in the world.

Communist Party Said to Expel Scott Nearing

New York, Jan. 1.—[Special.]—Scott Nearing, whose radical activities cost him professorships at the University of Pennsylvania and Toledo university, has been expelled from the communist party of America, it was reported today. While no confirmation of the report was obtained from either communist officials or Dr. Nearing, some of the economist's friends said such an action of the party was not unexpected.

Jean MacLeish Engaged to Wed John Dern II.

BY THALIA ——.

The tea Mr. and Mrs. Bruce MacLeish gave yesterday afternoon at their residence, "Birkencraig," in Hubbard Woods, was more exciting than the numerous other New Year's day "at homes." It served also as an occasion for the felicitous announcement of the engagement of Miss Jean MacLeish to John Dern II., son of Gov. and Mrs. George H. Dern of Salt Lake City, Utah. Miss MacLeish attended Westover and Wellesley college. Since her debut last season she has been active in many of the affairs of the younger set. Mr. Dern is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, its law school, and now is practicing law in Chicago. No date is set for the wedding.

The English Speaking union's accomplishments for the last year include an enlargement of the common interests committee. Mrs. Chauncey Blair is chairman of the group, which now numbers 40 members. The committee arranges hospitality for visitors and is modeled after the committee of the same name in England, of which the Viscountess Bryce is president, and the Hon. Mrs. Alfred Lyttleton, the chairman.

The union's winter program includes a luncheon at the Blackstone on Jan. 13 at which Mrs. Mary Agnes Hamilton, a member of parliament for the Labor party, will speak, and another luncheon on March 4, at the Palmer house, with S. K. Ratcliffe, journalist and lecturer, as the guest and speaker. The Chicago branch boasts a membership of 2,200.

A cable from Paris announces the birth on New Year's day of a son to Count and Countess Louis de Danne. Countess de Danne is the former Elizabeth Stone, and is the daughter of Mrs. Masters Stone of New York City and Bar Harbor, and a niece of Mrs. Secor Cunningham. The countess hasn't set foot in the city of her birth for more than 10 years. She is the granddaughter of the late Mrs. H. O. Stone, and a niece of Edgar Lee Masters.

The Woman's Athletic club has issued cards for one of its popular Thursday morning programs a week from today. Frank Parker, diseur, is to appear in his "Chansons Mimes," and each member may invite one guest.

Christmas festivities notwithstanding, the Amateur Thespians who are to participate in a program at the Remany club on Jan. 11 and 12 are hard at rehearsals. Mrs. Howard Van Doren Shaw's charming little mystical one-acter, "The Desk of Simeon Dark," and Mrs. Franklin Miller's "Making Rosie a Cook," also a one act play, are to compose the evening's entertainment which has been set, in imitation of the New York idea, for 9 o'clock, allowing ample time for dinner parties beforehand.

Helen Walton, Gerald Frank, and Howard Cox constitute the cast for Mrs. Shaw's play, and Dorothy Braun, Bess Munger, Jessica Swarts, and Marshall Kruse will appear in the other offering.

Mrs. Shaw has asked the players in her production to give a private performance at her apartment at 2450 Lake View avenue on the evening of Jan. 17, following a dinner party to be given by her daughters, Mrs. Clay Judson and Mrs. John T. McCutcheon.

Miss Alice Gerstenberg, who has been in New York City all fall, will be here about the time the plays are given as she has a speaking engagement in Grand Rapids, Mich., early this month. Her dramatization of "Water Babies" had its premiere in Boston during the holidays and is reported to be a great success. She has not decided yet whether she will return to the east or whether she will remain here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Erich Gerstenberg.

Mrs. Joseph Schreiner of 3330 Sheridan road is to give a luncheon for 60 friends of her young daughter, Lura, at the Woman's Athletic club today.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Robert Johnston of Hinsdale are to give a dance for their sons, Goodwin and Robert Jr., at the Hinsdale club this evening. Goodwin is a freshman at Princeton and Robert Jr. is a student at Phillips academy at Andover, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. John V. Farwell, like several other owners of Lake Forest places, have been spending the holidays in the country. The Farwells have had with them their daughter, Mrs. W. Dow Harvey, and her family of Macomb, Ill., and another daughter, Mrs. Katharine Farwell of New York City. They plan to return to their apartment at 229 Lake Shore drive the last of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick McLaughlin, who have been staying with Mr. McLaughlin's sister while their place on 104 Mill road was remodeled, have moved back into their own house.

The Bernard A. Eckharts of 1530 Lake Shore drive are departing the end of next week for their annual winter sojourn at the Huntington hotel in Pasadena.

SCIENCE OF FLYING KEEPS PACE WITH ALL PROGRESS, LINDY SAYS

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Science in flying kept well abreast of other progress and development in both North and South America in 1929, in the opinion of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, and he believes that progress will continue at the present rate, and perhaps at more rapid pace, in 1930.

Pausing here over New Year's day on a flight across the country with Mrs. Lindbergh, the trans-Atlantic flyer conferred with officials of the Transcontinental Air Transport, Inc., with which he is connected, paid a surprise visit to a historical memorial maintained here in his honor, and in an interview took stock of the status of aviation.

Col. Lindbergh believes that commercial aviation, particularly passenger transport lines, has developed in America to the point where it compares favorably with European air lines. He said he was especially impressed with the possibilities of aviation in South America, and, incidentally, announced his intention of again flying to that country.

He expressed belief that South America is developing airmindedness more rapidly than the United States.

Nebraska Pastor Accepts Wisconsin Pulpit Call

Appleton, Wis., Jan. 1.—(Special.)—The Rev. Ernest Hasselbad, pastor of the Baptist church of Peru, Neb., has accepted a call to the ministry of the Baptist church of this city. He will come here Feb. 1, succeeding the Rev. E. M. Salter who has resigned to become head of the Dodgeville, Wis., congregation.

Teachers of Art at Institute Show Their Own Paintings

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

For the first time in its history the Art institute is holding an exhibit of work by the teachers of the Art institute school. Up to now we have judged these men and women chiefly by their pupils' success, as seen in the annual school exhibits, or by paintings or sculpture exhibited in exhibitions open to all artists. To have them grouped like this is unusual and profitable.

Among the painters Davenport Griffen stands out as the modernist par example. His work is extremely good. He submits a daring street scene, clear and hard and definite, "Rue de la Borne," and a sardonic realistic slice of life—"Translation." Edmund Giesbert is another of the newer men and he offers a strong piece of painting in the portrait of Prof. H. C. Cowles and another interesting canvas in "Building."

Boris Anisfeld is a third modernist and here we find a man with a strong sense of color. His self-portrait is sturdy; the "Flowers" is gorgeous; and the "Contrasts" is intriguing. Camille Andrene, remembering her one man show recently at the Chicago galleries, is a modernist, but in the current exhibit one may judge her only by the adorable infant "Joan."

Karl Buehr shows several brilliant canvases; Laura Van Pappelandam offers two or three sunny paintings; George Oberteuffer presents an excellently conceived portrait of his wife; Allen Philbrick shows "The Hill Top," lovely in its blues and yellows; J. Allen St. John gives us a charming "Portrait"; J. Wellington Reynolds offers an exquisite canvas in his "Decorative Head" and Elmer Forsberg is represented by two fine portraits and two beautiful snow paintings.

In the department of sculpture Albin Polasek surpasses even the paintings by the marvelous grace and delicacy and witchery of his conceptions. Among the most entrancing are "Mother and Child," "Aspiration" and "The Spirit of the Wood." Elizabeth Haseltine has two clever animal studies, "The Prodigal Son" and "Maltese Cat," and Zettler offers several very fine figures.

The exhibition will continue into January.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—Washington has seldom seen a more perfect New Year day as to weather. And never have there been more people calling at the various homes where receptions were held.

Vice President Curtis and Mrs. Gann, however, had no reception. Those who did included Speaker and Mrs. Longworth, while Secretary and Mrs. Stimson entertained the members of the diplomatic corps at breakfast. Postmaster General and Mrs. Brown were called south by the serious illness of the latter's mother.

Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick, widow of the late senator, Medill McCormick, poured tea at the reception of the secretary of the navy and Mrs. Charles Francis Adams this afternoon.

Secretary and Mrs. Lamont have taken possession of their new home on Kalorama road, but it is not in readiness, following many improvements they have made.

DOUBTS RUINS ARE THOSE OF SODOM; SEEKS MORE DATA

JERUSALEM, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Father Mallon, who directed excavations that yesterday were reported to have brought to light the biblical city of Sodom, today said the identification of the ruins as those of Sodom was premature.

The ruins were discovered by accident when members of the expedition sent out by the Pontifical Biblical institution of Jerusalem found some flint objects and potsherds on the exact spot where their tents were located.

The findings caused closer investigation, which brought to light ruins of a town that had never been observed before. The remains of an ancient wall, built partly of stones and partly of bricks, much broken pottery, a few vases and flint instruments were subsequently unearthed. All were said to be of the early bronze age. Layers of ashes covered the ruins of the houses.

Several British archaeologists have been hunting in the region for the site of the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah, which the Bible says were destroyed by fire and brimstone because of the great wickedness of their inhabitants.

Palestine Asks Britain to Send 200 More Police

LONDON, Jan. 1.—Palestine authorities have asked London officials to enroll another 200 men for the special constabulary service. The new force will leave for Palestine within two weeks. A force of 100 men left for Palestine on Sept. 11.

FARM and GARDEN BY PAUL POTTER

"Death warrants" are being signed by flock owners for thousands of baby chicks which will die next spring after the hatching season opens, according to H. H. Alp, poultry specialist of the college of agriculture, University of Illinois.

"Chick mortality, one of the worst thieves of poultry profits, is thought by the majority of flock owners to be caused by some factor during or following incubation. This is partly true, but mortality in chicks often is the result of bad conditions in the parent flock previous to the time of incubation. Some flock owners still expect good results in hatching and brooding chicks which have come from parent flocks poorly mated, improperly fed, worm infested, weakened through disease or poorly housed and managed. Flock owners who aren't doing everything possible at this time of the year to favor good hatching and brooding in the spring are actually signing away the lives of their chicks."

Good mating comes first, this poultryman believes. High ancestral egg production is an important point to consider in all breeding males, but the health, the vigor, and development and the breed type are more important. Every male used this year in all breed flocks should be selected on these points first of all. The puny, undersized, whipped rooster is a real liability in any flock. It is just as important to see that the hens and pullets are in good physical condition.

Good feeding is next. About all that need be said on this point is to see that every bird has plenty to eat of a balanced ration. Cod liver oil has proved a worthwhile addition to the ration for a breeding flock. Be sure to provide grit as well as oyster shell and two feet of feeding space for every ten birds.

A flock that is free from diseases and parasites is another important point. Wormy hens or pullets and birds with roup, colds or any other disease will not be in condition to transmit strong vitality to the young chicks. This condition often is the cause of early mortality and slow development in the chicks.

Good housing and good care for the parent flock are other important points in keeping down chick mortality. Above all, the house should not be overcrowded and should be kept clean.

A Little Early.

My first position was as secretary to an executive who believed and lived a life of promptness. Long before Christmas he had me go over his lists of names and prepare his greeting cards for mailing.

One evening as I was hastily departing from the office I gathered up a bundle of letters and posted them.

Imagine my embarrassment a few days after Thanksgiving when my boss called me into his private office and allowed me to read several acknowledgments of his kind Christmas greetings.

The letters I had mailed were his Christmas cards, which we had prepared to be mailed a few days before Christmas! R. C. S.

Take One Step Instead of Trying to Be Perfect

By Mrs. Gladys Huntington Bevans

A booklet by Mrs. Bevans on "Books to Be Read to Children or by Them" will be sent free on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

"The thing can be done." That's the feeling we must have to do our best work with our children. A sense of discouragement, of being overwhelmed never hastens results.

One of the greatest causes for mothers to grow discouraged is that they make for themselves an ideal of perfection, and of course, being human, they fall far below it.

It seems to me our progress toward our aims should be something like going up a flight of stairs. Our objective is the top, but we know we can't reach it in one bound. We must go step by step.

In the same way we may hope to be a perfect mother to our children some day. But we can't become one all at once. Some one asked a great psychologist, the other night, if in the face of heredity and the pressure of environment he believed in "free will." He answered, "I can't say that I believe in the absolute freedom of the individual to make himself and his life absolutely what he wishes. But I do believe that everybody has enough free will to take the next step." This question and answer did not bear upon parents and children—but it can.

Especially for the mother who knows she is making or has made many serious mistakes, this is a really workable plan. Get a few fundamentals firmly in your mind. Then decide on your next step along the new way, instead of trying to make yourself and the children over at one fell swoop. You can't do it, so why try? Habits don't change in a hurry. Patience has to be your handmaiden, and a sense of strong conviction has to be your dynamo.

TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

On Making Potato Bread.

In studying a great many potato bread recipes one will notice that in general a good deal of salt is called for in most of them. You do not have to use all that some recipes demand, but, on the whole, the bread is probably more palatable if more salt is used than for an ordinary loaf.

Recipes for potato bread may really seem much more precise than they can possibly be, because one way of boiling potatoes may get a better product than another.

The following recipe gave a bread that kept well and for a considerable time: One pound mashed potato, three and one-half cups flour, one tablespoon sugar, one tablespoon salt, one-half cake compressed yeast, some shortening of from a tablespoon up, according to your idea of what you like.

Mash the potato, add sugar and when the mixture is lukewarm add the yeast dissolved in a tablespoon of water and half the flour, stirring all thoroughly. Cover closely and let this rise till double, or triple its size. Have the rest of the flour and salt in a bowl, turn the sponge on it, knead for ten minutes or until the dough forms an elastic ball. Let rise again till double or a little more in a closely covered utensil, make into loaves of any desired size, let them rise till double, just moisten the top with cold water before putting the bread in the oven. Bake about one hour in a moderate oven, that is, bake one pound loaves for that time and vary others according to their size.

It is quite a task to master the ideas in all the different recipes for making potato bread, which undoubtedly originated with the use of potato yeast, but we eliminate one uncertain element when we do not try to use potato water, which necessarily contains different amounts of the potato starch, and so it is difficult to gauge its thickening power.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Sun Lamp Would Help.

"I wonder if you could get me a heat or sun lamp. I have a severe case of asthma and think this would help me. I am a widow and cannot afford to buy one. MRS. M. H."

Have you the lamp which may be instrumental in curing this unfortunate woman of her ailment? If it does not effect a complete cure, it is bound to offer some relief.

Best Remedy for Cough Is Easily Mixed at Home

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough or chest cold can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in millions of homes, because it gives more prompt, positive relief than anything else. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to make a full pint. This saves two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough medicine, and gives you a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes good—children like it.

You can actually feel its penetrating, soothing action on the inflamed throat membranes. It is also absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. At the same time, it promptly loosens the germ-laden phlegm. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief even in severe bronchial coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

French Costumes Are Comfortable and Chic

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Paris is having a hard row to hoe, and not making much headway, in trying to divorce us from our clothes' comfort. Comfortable costumes that leave legs and bodies free appear in the grand salons, sneaked in between the gorgeous attire that is the grand mode, to be immediately spotted by the eagle eye of Mrs. World, and chosen tout de suite. Paris has such clothes properly tagged for country consumption, but what avails this? The very next day the ladies sail into the Ritz wearing them, and making their corset and mystery bound sisters groan with envy for those who will not suffer in the cause of chic.

Woman, these days, is the base of the triangle that makes fashions, and so, in spite of all the style changers would do, comfortable, short skirted ensembles remain chic—the kind of ensemble shown in the sketch herewith. Chanel made this outfit for sports, and she keeps, as you will notice, the silhouette which made her famous, with a few small alterations that add the spice of novelty. It is being worn all around Paris for whatever sports city life provides on a wintry day. Heaps of women wear such clothes just to the "five to eight" hours of dancing, cocktails and whatnot, when more elegant costumes fit the changed tempo of what we do.

The dress is loosely knitted black and white wool, with just a suggestion of lace in its composition. The music of the knitting needles is the rhythm to which daytime chic dances more and more these days. Everybody ought to take up knitting for idle hours because the smartest practical clothes are made this way.

Observe the concessions to the new silhouette in this dress. They are gracely important. The high waistline, with its peplum flare and the jabot of the material that makes the waist, give to the upper half of this frock a waistcoated air Paris adores. The skirt is loosely flared from the hips, and only extends four inches below the knees. The double breasted jacket, made of rough black woolen, with its big pockets and collar and cuffs of white pique is the kind of inside wrap Parisiennes prefer to wear under their heavy coats with such dresses.

A new daytime bag from Worth is shown here also. This is made of black antelope and is extra large—almost big enough for a week-end case. The closing of a polished wooden bar, passing through loops of leather, and the wooden links that piece out the handle are chic details.

Here's Preparatory Course for Slipping Into Princess Gown

It was that waistline that you were trying to locate we promised to help you out on today, wasn't it?

All rightee, now what did you have for breakfast this a. m.? Something no more crowding than this, it is hoped:

Half a grapefruit or juice of one orange or stewed apricots or stewed prunes.
One slice toast thinly buttered.
Coffee with hot skimmed milk [no sugar]

And is your luncheon menu worked out on this reasonable calory basis:

One glass of buttermilk.

Or, if you don't like that—then this.

Clear soup or broth.
Lettuce and grapefruit salad.
One small roll.
Tea with lemon.

Or, we'll give you another:

One poached egg on thin toast.
Lettuce salad with limited oil dressing.
Glass of milk.

Then for dinner, here are a few suggestions:

Broiled lamb chop.
Cooked celery and string beans.
Whole orange for dessert.

Or, maybe you'd like this better:

Broiled chicken.
Small baked potato [no butter].
Brussels sprouts.
A gelatine ice or sherbet for dessert.

Or, this:

Filet mignon.
A couple of mushrooms.
Vegetable salad.
Tea with lemon.
A pear eaten whole.

Sometimes during the day, put on the walking shoes and do a mile at top speed. Tomorrow or the day after do two, and keep on walking till you can work up three in fast time.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Objects to Smoking.

"Dear Miss Blake: I love a boy who loves me, but he doesn't want me to smoke. Please advise. "GRACIE."

Smoking in moderation is not harmful, but there is little to be said in its favor. However, he can't expect you to accept his views.

A day that might have meant so much—and she has to be excused. What a pity there's a woman left who does not know of Midol! One or two tablets in time, and not a twinge of pain throughout the natural process. Or an end to such suffering at any time, five to seven minutes after Midol is taken. Yet this merciful medicine is non-narcotic. Its wonderful results are due to the fact it acts directly on the organs affected; so it's utterly harmless, and it is only common sense to use it. Midol comes in a clever little metal case that you can slip in the smallest purse. And the cost of this comfort is fifty cents.*

*Midol's comfort is not confined to any certain days or age. It relieves at any time of life. Its ease is felt immediately in cases of nervous headache, backache, cramping, hot flashes and all febrile pain peculiar to women.

The New Feminine Gowns Represent Romance to Men

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Said a man, one of those frank ones, to a girl who introduced the subject of getting married: "This is the best year you have had in a long time to play your charms, Betty!"

"Why, this year, Big Boy?" she inquired.

"Sure, I know. But you're not—well, you're not exactly clinched yet, I take it, or you wouldn't be generalizing on marriages as you just were!"

"O, you mean I haven't any of the spoils—rings and thinks like that!"

"Call 'em spoils," Big Boy came back. "Call 'em whatever you darn please. They're what you want, aren't they?"

"You mean I want to get married, I suppose! Well, I do. What do you think of that?

"Great!" responded Big Boy. "Lucky boy, whoever he is! But you had better change your technique, Bet! Grab off some of that new dress stuff. It'll pipe down that too-straight-from-the-shoulder stuff you're now handing out. I like it. It keeps us good friends. But—well, there isn't any romance in it, if you want to hear it straight."

It is a question (to our sex, anyway) whether you can change a personality with a change of frock style. But obviously men believe it possible. Some men. Big Boy for one. Of course men talk regret at the threatened disappearance of the ankle behind long skirt folds. But I noted one, the other night, loud in his disapproval of the new mode, clinging like a burr the evening long to a girl done up in the 1930 mode.

In retrospect, it is said, we get a clearer view of events. That flapper, flat-chested, garcon-cut era now seems like a particularly bald period. The directness of speech and the consciousness of self-value behind it may have been more disconcerting to the sentimental male than we realized. We're not guaranteeing better results for the particular type recommended to the mode a la femme—but Big Boy, though frank, is a pretty wise male and a susceptible one, under certain circumstances.

NATURE'S SUPREME CURATIVE FOR RHEUMATISM, ETC.

U. S. GOVERNMENT SUPERVISES THESE SPLENDID BATH HOUSES

Bath House Row at Hot Springs comprises a group of health building institutions which are admittedly the most complete and efficient of any in the world. Each bath house draws its waters from Hot Springs Mountain under special lease with the U. S. Govt. which owns the waters and supervises the operation of all bath houses.

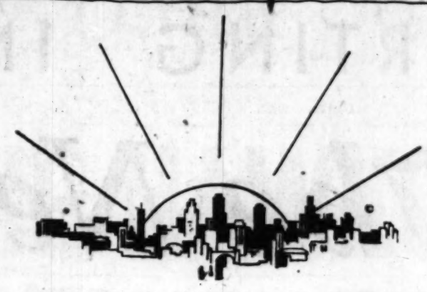
CONCENTRATE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE IN 1930



A NEW DAY DAWNS FOR ABILITY

NINETEEN-THIRTY flings a challenge to business. The coming months hold aloft the bays of success for those who will seize them. And only the fit may expect to do so.

This is no time for dubiety and slackness. America is again entering a year when the outlook is obscured. The tide which swung many to such high levels in 1929 is running out. And the incompetent will ride withit.

Business will be good during the coming months for those who make it so. The American consumer has given up no whit of his ambitions. But 1930 will be a year of strenuous competition. Those who bank on easygoing face disaster. Vigorous ability will close the year with profit.

THE graph line of total sales is slowly turning downward. Its course still has months to run. Soon will be seen evidences of the forced economies of selling organizations caught unprepared.

As never before executives must turn to the elimination of waste—waste in production and distribution.

Commodities that were added to fill out a line now must make way for the real profit makers. Salesmen that have gone stale must give place for the hard-driving producers. Markets that have cost more to serve than they paid in profit must be wiped off the sales map. All down the line of operation business must answer the question: "Does it pay?"

METHODS geared for flush times need overhauling. Selling practices tolerated when sales came easy are now intolerable. Advertising pampered by vanity and bought without consideration of market conditions must go back to work.

This is the time to review the reasons for methods and means. This is the time to lop off the dead timber that accumulates in all organizations and systems. This is the time to get back to first principles and to clear for action. For coupled with any move to reduce waste must be the determination to drive ahead.

Now is not the time to quit. There should be no trimming of the effective and profitable in advertising and selling. Business in 1930 must fight or go under.

OUT of difficulties real ability emerges. Expedients which seem so suddenly infallible in tight corners cannot serve business in this period. Success will continue to be built upon true merit, upon values which such times as these make more apparent. Thus 1930 will be rich in opportunity for men of courage, vision and aggressiveness. It will be the proving ground of character and of judgment.

To those executives upon whose shoulders rests the responsibility for business progress 1930 will be a memorable year—a turning point for success or failure.

It is to the attention of executives, primarily interested in profit essentials, intent on achieving selling efficiency, tuned to the needs and the spirit of 1930, that the Chicago Tribune brings the great market of Tribune Town and the power of its circulation.

WHEN advertising and selling effort can no longer be aimed at the horizon but must concentrate on those markets where profits are commensurate, Tribune Town offers the tremendous purchasing power of 12,000,000 people resident in a small, compact area. When competitive conditions demand the most productive and economical in methods the Chicago Tribune provides blanket, dominant coverage. When other markets dry up or selling costs become prohibitive, Tribune Town consistently rewards redoubled cultivation.

When extra power is needed to carry a company or a sales staff over the fighting months of 1930, the Tribune with 800,000 circulation on weekdays and over 1,200,000 on Sundays stiffens the attack and produces immediate sales returns.

In Chicago, the hub and capital of Tribune Town, Tribune coverage of all families on Sunday is 76% and in the 124 other key centers of the market coverage of all families is 50%. Throughout the entire territory Sunday Tribune coverage of all families is 44%.

HERE is one market capable of responding to intensified and sustained development. Here is one advertising medium that returns rich rewards to aggressive concerns, alert to sales possibilities and ambitiously determined to swing into high gear in 1930.

Ask a Tribune man to give you the details.

The New WAXFREE HAVOLINE

A RICH FLUID LUBRICANT
FROM 5° BELOW ZERO
—TO 500° ABOVE!

WINTER driving is revolutionized by the New Waxfree Havoline, produced by the recently perfected Govers Process—acclaimed by impartial oil experts as the greatest improvement in refining since the invention of the automobile.

It is the oil refiners have vainly sought for years to produce—the first and only pure unblended paraffin-base oil with all the wax removed!

Wax, you know, causes oil to congeal in cold weather, stiffening your motor until the starter groans and dies. Wax turns water-thin with engine heat, reducing the protective and lubricating value of an oil. Hot or cold, wax has no lubricating value.

Because it is refined from paraffin-base crude, this great new oil withstands engine temperatures up to 500° F. (Your engine generates terrific internal heat even in winter driving.)

Havoline dealers have the correct grade for every car and every season —that it has better cold weather lubricating value than any other oil!

—that it is the only oil that meets all requirements of the ideal lubricant!

What does this mean to you and to your car?

Now you can put a pure lubricant in your crankcase—the New Waxfree Havoline is not a blended oil.

It means that your engine will turn over at the first touch of the starter in sub-zero weather—that every bearing will be protected with a fluid lubricant at starting temperatures when ordinary oils refuse to circulate through the oiling system.

It means greater power—a smoother running motor—more miles per gallon of gas—because this oil defies consuming heat!

It means complete engine protection—and assurance that your car will be always ready to "go" in the coldest weather.

For your own peace of mind, fill your crankcase with the proper grade of New Waxfree Havoline today.

Rose Bowl, Pasadena, Cal., Jan. 1.—Southern California defeated Pittsburgh, the undefeated eastern eleven, here today in the Rose Bowl, 47 to 14.

The Trojans' stronger attack gained ground when yards meant scores. Their defense was almost as strong, although they permitted Pittsburgh to score by two forward passes.

Pitt had no forward pass defense and three of the Trojans touchdowns were the results of aerials thrown over the back men of the box defense. In the second half, Pitt resorted to the diamond defense, which was more successful.

Third Coast Victory.

This game, the defeat of Carnegie Tech by the Trojans, and the victory of Stanford over the Army is a boost for the caliber of football as played in this section. The eastern elevens were defeated decisively and today's victory by Southern California is a severe shock to football as played along the Atlantic seaboard.

The game was played before a colorful gathering of more than 70,000, the largest which ever attended a Tournament of Roses game. The weather was warm, but neither Pitt nor any other eastern partisans can blame the weather for the decisive victory of the coast eleven.

Southern California, displayed a good running game and powerful line attack. Saunders darted inside and outside to make his tackles for substantial gains, while Edelson and Shaver seldom failed to make yards through the line or off their tackles. It seems that the only team in the country which can stop the elevens out here is Notre Dame.

Uansa Runs 68 Yards.

The game started out like a thriller. Capt. De Meolo of Pittsburgh won the toss and elected to defend the north goal. Anthony kicked off for the Trojans to Uansa, who ran the ball out of bounds on his 21 yard line. Parkinson made a yard at center. On a double pass, Parkipson to Uansa, the latter circled Tappan's end for 68 yards. A Pittsburgh touchdown seemed certain, but the Trojans braced and took the ball on their 20 yard line after a Panther forward pass was grounded in the end zone for a touchback.

Southern California punted the third down after two line drives had failed to gain. The ball rolled to the Panther 3 yard line. Parkinson immediately kicked to Saunders, who was stopped on Pittsburgh's 38 yard line. Saunders and Shaver made three

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 1.—(AP)—The east rode roughshod to a 19 to 7 victory over the west today in as smashing a triumph as ever has featured the annual New Year's day charity game between elevens of picked eastern and western football stars.

More than 55,000, banked high around the stadium's edge, saw a great collection of all American players grouped on one team smash and crash their way through the western line for huge gains and take to the air for long advances time and again.

Only once during the contest did the west, which entered the game as favorite, show any semblance of the form expected. That was at the start of the second half, when brilliant dashes by Benny Lom of California and Clair Sloan of Nebraska brought the ball to the two yard line. From there Sloan crashed over guard for a touchdown, and Clark of Colorado college kicked the goal to give the west its only points.

Peters Kicks Two Goals.

A nonchalant young man known to his Illinois classmates as Frosty Peters, played an impressive part in the eastern victory. Twice during the game he booted the pigskin between the uprights for field goals. Standing on the west 35 yard line in the second period he calmly lifted the ball to a score. Rushed into the battle again in the final period, when the west had fought the easterners to a standstill, he repeated to chalk up the final tally for his team.

Jack Cannon, Notre Dame's all American selection, closed his college career with an outstanding exhibition at guard. He was here, there and everywhere time and again, breaking through the western line to throw ball carriers for losses. His team mate, Twomey, and Booma of Dartmouth, Glassgow of Iowa, and practically all the other eastern players turned in performances that compared favorably with Cannon's.

The east made its first score with a forward pass, Peters to Booma, the Dartmouth end romping 25 yards to a touchdown.

Glassgow Crashes Over.

Shortly after the second period opened the east got the ball on the west 24 yard line as the result of an intercepted pass by Peters and line plunges by Nagurski and Glassgow. Peters then booted the team from the east to its second score.

Long dashes through the line by Nagurski and Glassgow with Cannon and Twomey clearing the way led to the east's second touchdown, Glassgow crashing over right tackle from the six yard line to score. Peters kicked the goal.

Coming back in sensational fashion, the west marched forward and Peters again drop kicked successfully,

McQuade May Use '24 Scandal for Ammunition in Giant Row

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 1.—In the game of squawk and countersquawk between the major and minor owners of the New York Giants the Hon. Francis Xavier McQuade has intimated that he will ask John McGraw to give further details of the famous scandal of the good natured kidders when the lawsuits come to trial. The scandal of the good natured kidders may be remembered as one of the diverting incidents of the baseball season of 1924, the year the Giants won their last pennant, but lost the world series to the Washington club.

Shortly before the date of the world series Mr. Heine Sand of the Philadelphia National league club reported that Jimmy O'Connell, a second string outfielder of the Giants, who was regarded as being not especially bright, had approached him with an offer of $500, which he said the boys of the Giant team had raised by general subscription to refrain from bearing down in a final series of the regular league season. The Giants were what is termed a moral certainty to win the National league pennant at this time, but the members of the team could not feel at ease until the moral certainty had become a practical certainty. Although the Philadelphia club was regarded as a setup, the history of the baseball business was strewn with disasters caused by setups.

Naively Admits Report Is True.

As soon as the information was communicated to K. M. Landis he called a drumhead court, at which Jimmy O'Connell naively admitted the truth of Heinie Sand's report, and said he had acted as spokesman for the Giant players as a group. He named George Kelly, the first baseman; Pep Young, the outfielder, who has since died, and Frank Frisch, then the captain and second baseman of the Giants, as among the players who had participated in the plan, and also named Cozy Dolan, the broken down outfielder, then attached to the Giants in the ostensible capacity of coach, but serving more often as a slugger or bouncer and house detective. The slugging and bouncing duties of Mr. Dolan were a rather fulsome flattery to his merits as a fist fighter, which were purely nominal.

Your correspondent discovered this two or three years later when Mr. Dolan undertook to make a physical protest against some observations in these dispatches which he construed as willfully unfriendly. Mr. Dolan was lucky to get a draw with your correspondent, who was experimenting with a brand of cigarets which were being indorsed for athletes by football coaches in a billboard campaign at the time. The advertisements were quite misleading and, although your correspondent smoked about eighty of them every day for some weeks prior to the fight with Mr. Dolan, he was in very bad shape the night of the contest. So Mr. Dolan got a draw.

Found Guilty by Inference.

However, Mr. Dolan had served quite effectively with the baseball firm, being of the old school of ball club bouncers who pointed their arguments with a sawed off fungo bat, and up to the time that Judge Landis called him in to testify he enjoyed a good reputation to the extent that nothing ever had been proved against him. On this occasion, however, he faltered horribly and was found guilty by inference. That is to say, when the judge popped Heinie Sand's accusations at him and followed these up with Jimmy O'Connell's bland re-

POT-POURRI.

THE WAKE always did like Coach Glenn F. Thistlethwaite, once of the Northwestern and late of Wisconsin. Now we almost love him. For "Gloomy Glenn" came out against the point after touchdown at the coaches' annual meeting. For years that point after touchdown has irritated us, especially when it decided a game—not infrequently in favor of the poorer eleven.

We hadn't changed our opinion but had just about given up hope the rule ever would be changed. Now there are other opponents out in the open. No change will be made next season, but, anyway, it's something to get agitation officially started.

Coach Thistlethwaite produces figures to show that a team ordinarily averages 7.6 plays to produce a point while the kick after touchdown, if made, produces a point in one play. If celebration is not too unlawful, we promise to celebrate if the day ever comes when that point after touchdown is eliminated.

Dates for the Chicago racing season have been allotted on practically the same basis as 1929, which means 158 racing days. That is too long for high class sport. Of course modern tracks are expensive to build and maintain. There are five tracks in the Chicago district. The average, therefore, is about 32 days each. Possibly they need meetings of that length to show profit on their investment. We're not quarreling with the financial side of the picture, but ninety days, or at most 120 days, would be better for the sport. A community can stand too little racing better than too much racing.

The date for presentation of THE TRIBUNE silver trophy to Bill Glasgow, adjudged the Big Ten player of greatest value to his team in 1929, has not yet been determined by Coach Ingwersen of Iowa. Some time this month, probably.

COLLEGES TOLD FREE GATE IS GRID GAME NEED

President Assails High Paid Coaches.

New York, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Elimination of gate receipts and highly paid seasonal coaches and the organization of a new league or conference in which such innovations could be put into practice were proposed today by President Frank Parker Day of Union college in an address prepared for delivery before the National Collegiate Athletic association.

Speaking on "the challenge of the Carnegie report," Dr. Day announced himself "glad to negotiate with nearby colleges of good academic standing and similar athletic strength for the formation of such a league." He mentioned as a nucleus for the proposed association of New York state and New England institutions Williams, Amherst, Wesleyan, Hamilton, Rensselaer Polytechnic institute and Union.

"I have been hoping for some years," said Dr. Day, "that the big and well established universities in the east, like Harvard, Yale and Princeton, would lead the way out of this athletic maze in which we are now wandering.

"There seems to be no sign of this, however, and it was with a sinking heart that I recently read in the paper that the great University of Columbia has engaged an $18,000 coach to train its squad of football players."

Advocates Amateur Coaching.

"It is no good shouldering the blame upon coaches or graduate managers," he declared. "We, the administrators of colleges, must take the burden upon our own shoulders.

"Here is what we might attempt: First, to have no gate fee to our games and to admit by invitation; second, to do away with high priced seasonal coaches; third, to ban all scouting, subsidizing, proselyting, and see to it strictly in our own circle that no undergraduate in college or university receives material gain and is appointed to no position simply because he is an athlete on a team."

Amateur coaching among the colleges of the league he suggested was advocated.

While no definite workable plan was laid before the delegates from 250 universities and conferences in attendance at the twenty-fourth convention, the president today was given power to appoint a committee to draw up a practical and promising reform program.

Dr. Storey Heads Committee.

Approval of the Carnegie report that shocked the athletic world in the middle of the football season came at the conclusion of the presentation of the set of resolutions by Dr. Thomas A. Storey of Stanford university. Dr. Storey headed a committee composed of O. F. Long, Northwestern; R. G. Clapp, Nebraska; Fred W. Marvel, Brown; M. J. White, Tulane, and D. B. Swingel, Montana State.

The association's action on the Carnegie report culminated in the resignation of Brig. Gen. Palmer E. Pierce as president and the election of Charles W. Kennedy of Princeton as presiding officer. In honor of the retiring president, who held the position from its inception 24 years ago, the office of honorary president was created and Brig. Gen. Pierce elected for life. Dean Frank W. Nicolson of Wesleyan, Middleton, Conn., was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

15,000 See Midwest Eleven Win at Dallas; Welch Stars

Dallas, Tex., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Gridiron stars of the central states, a husky, hard driving group, proved superior to the Southwest All-Stars in a wild scoring battle here today. The score was 25 to 12.

More than 15,000 saw the big midwest eleven, coached by Jimmy Phelan, come back to batter across three touchdowns and sew up the decision after the Southwest had loosed a sharp passing attack to tie the count, 6 to 6, at the half.

There never was much doubt of the outcome once the invaders opened up with power plays in the second period. Ralph (Pest) Welch, Purdue's all-American full back, failed to score a touchdown, but he battered the lighter Southwest line to bits.

The Midwest turned to the air, the department at which their opponents were supposed to excel, to score two touchdowns in the third period and take the lead. Within five minutes Herman Young, end from Detroit, snared long passes from Allan Holman of Ohio State and Welch and trotted across the goal line. Rebholz of Wisconsin ran 20 yards for another score in the final quarter. He had made the first touchdown in the opening period.

Except for their passing attack, with Grubbs of Texas Christian on the throwing end, and Geis of Arkansas receiving, the Southwest eleven was more or less helpless. This combination accounted for both of the team's touchdowns. The first was scored late in the second quarter. In the closing period Grubb pegged to Geis, who ran 30 yards for the score.

BLUES BEAT CARDINALS.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Buddy Hackman of Tennessee flashed brilliantly across the gridiron here today to lead the Blue eleven from the northern division of the Southern conference to a 21-12 victory over the Cardinals in the Shrine charity game. An estimated crowd of 20,000 attended.

Hackman scored all of the Blue's touchdowns. Two of his goalward jaunts resulted from rifle like passes from his Tennessee teammate, Bobby Dodd. His other scoring venture followed a 44 yard off tackle run through the entire Cardinal team.

NORTH CENTRAL TEAM WINS.

Denver, Colo., Jan. 1.—(AP)—The invaders from North Central conference outclassed the Rocky Mountain conference gridders today, 13 to 6, in one of the fastest games ever played here. The teams were all star aggregations from their respective conferences, playing here for charity.

North Central scored a touchdown in the second period, when Jarret, a substitute player, caught a lateral pass after the ball had been taken to the Rocky Mountain two-yard line. The extra point was allowed because Rocky Mountain was offside on the try for point. In the third period, North Central scored again when a forward and lateral pass with L. Smith on the receiving end netted 38 yards, advancing the ball to the Rocky Mountain five-yard line. Smith went over for the goal on the next play. The try for point failed.

The Rocky mountain squad scored a touchdown in the last minute of play. Thorn carried the ball over. The try for point failed.

BY HARLAND ROHM.

On the evidence offered at the Chicago Stadium last night a Frenchman can fly faster than a hawk. Before 12,000 hockey fans who gave an exhibition of marathon community yelling during the last 40 minutes of the game, Les Canadiens of Montreal outsped the Blackhawks, 3 to 2, in an overtime game.

The Flying Frenchmen deserved to win because last night they were a better hockey team, no faster but with the experience the youthful Hawks couldn't match. The game couldn't have been faster, for the two speediest teams in hockey were given all they had, but in cleverness in passing, especially on defense, Les Canadiens had an edge. Their victory regained them first place in the Canadian division, while the Hawks remain tied with the Rangers for second in the American division.

Referees Ignore Rules.

That extra experience of the Frenchmen helped not only in out smarting the Hawks, but in out smarting the referees more than once. They got away with ragging the puck time and again, while the officials ignored the anti-defense rule, and little Auriel Joliat's slashing with his stick drew him only one penalty because he was clever enough to bounce it off a Hawk's head when the puck had drawn the referees' eyes elsewhere.

Those lapses probably wouldn't have had any difference in the result, however, and though the 12,000 fans groaned in unison time and again when the Hawks missed goals by a hair's breadth, they went home after 70 thrilling minutes of hockey without a slow second. The speed of the Hawks' drives and the brilliancy of the Frenchmen made the stadium sound like the loop as the new year is being cheered in.

Howie Morenz, famous center of the Frenchmen, lived up to his reputation, not only for his blinding speed on skates, but through breaking up plays. In so far as being hard boiled is concerned, he met his match in Art Somers of the Hawks, who waddles on skates but does so with amazing speed and charges like an elephant gone "must." Vic Ripley and Harold March did some brilliant work, but Leo Couture undoubtedly was the hero of the fans, for he scored both the Hawks' goals.

Canadiens Grab Early Lead.

Les Canadiens grabbed a two goal lead in the opening period, which was fast, although it failed to reach the velocity of the two later ones and the overtime. Ripley barely missed a goal in the first seconds, and Joliat retaliated by trying to bring his stick down on Vic's head; but there wasn't a score until the period was half over.

Then the brilliant Pit Le Pine scored from a combination of the other "L's," Le Duc and La Rochelle. The latter made the drive around the right of the Hawks' defense and passed to Le Duc in front of the goal. Gardiner got in front of it, but Le Pine came in from the other side to push in the rebound.

Less than a minute before the end of the period Morenz staged his most brilliant play. With the speed for which he is called the fastest man in hockey, he raced down center ice, sliced between the defense men after a hip-feint pulled them apart, faked Gardiner out of the net, and pushed an easy shot past him.

So far it seemed Les Canadiens' packed defense and "ragging" of the puck when they were a man short would prove too much for the Hawks, but with the period nearly over Leo Couture slapped in his first goal. Somers, who had drawn what he deemed an unfair penalty, came back on the ice with a burst of speed and smashing power that amazed even his mates. He carried the puck into the Frenchmen's defense territory and passed to Couture on the left. Swinging in Leo

The same Couture tied the score a minute and ten seconds after the third period opened, this time with a brilliant individual sally and a shot from just inside the blue line which Hainsworth might have saved. Leo came down left ice alone and dodged the defense. Though Morenz body checked him just after he passed the blue line, it was Morenz who went down and Chicago's blond left winger shot just after the crash, a high shot that whizzed past the goalie's shoulders.

That tie turned loose every bit of speed and cleverness Les Canadiens had and they almost scored at half time, when La Rochelle got competently through the defense. But Gardiner, Abel and Dutkowski rove on the puck simultaneously, covering it with a tangle of bodies. Immediately after Gardiner gave a jumping jack exhibition, making four brilliant saves in 20 seconds, but the period ended without further score.

Mantha Wins Game.

To the Chicago fans the overtime was a tragedy for Mantha scored without apparent effort in 20 seconds and thereafter the Frenchmen played purely defensive hockey, brilliant but maddening to a team trying to take the puck away from them and score. Mantha slanted down the right side and, bouncing off the defense, drew Gardiner out of his goal and twisted past him to shoot into the unprotected net.

From then on the Hawks smashed and skated, while Les Canadiens ragged the puck and shot it the length of the rink. The game was stopped once when the puck, lofted over the sideboards into the press box, hit Percy Colton and knocked out two front teeth. With three minutes to play Mantha drew a penalty and the Hawks' hopes rose, but their shot went wild.

THE EDITOR of a powerful Chicago Newspaper before his death, challenged this statement of Dr. Keeley that "Drunkenness is a disease and I can cure it." He defied Dr. Keeley to cure the men whom he would send to the Institute. The results were so convincing that, through his great newspaper, he was personally responsible for thousands of men and women taking The Keeley Treatment for Liquor.

Montana State Rally Defeats Purdue, 38-35

Lafayette, Ind., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—After piling up a 25 to 14 lead at the half, Purdue faded in the second period here tonight and lost to the Montana State, 38 to 35. The Boilermakers, after showing their first real flash of basketball this season in the opening half, went to pieces in the final period when the far westerners sank shots from all over the floor.

In the second half the Worthington-Ward combination started functioning and within seven minutes had sent Montana into the lead, 31 to 28. A field goal by Murphy and a free throw represented Purdue's scoring the while.

Murphy grabbed the high point honors with six field goals and three free throws. Lineup:

KING TUT WINS TECHNICAL K. O. OVER WALLACE

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—King Tut, Milwaukee, won from Billy Wallace, Philadelphia, at the end of the seventh round on a technical knockout in the main event of the Cream City Athletic club's New Year's bill before over 7,000 spectators.

Wallace wrenched his right side when he and Tut fell through the ropes in the fifth round, and the bout was stopped for a minute to allow Wallace to recuperate.

In the fourth Tut, however, crowded Wallace through the ropes and he fell into the press row, newspaper men and Tut helping him back into the ring.

In the fifth, after forty seconds of fighting, both fell through the ropes, Tut scrambling back into the ring, and the referee, Louis Fielder, helping Wallace to his corner. After a rest of a minute the bout went on.

Trojans Overwhelm Pitt in Rose Bowl Rout, 47-14

yards and then Russell Saunders hurled a perfect forward pass to Harry Edelson, who scored the first touchdown. Shaver kicked the goal and the score was 7 to 0 in favor of the Trojans.

Another Pass Scores.

Anthony kicked off for Southern California to Uansa who returned to his 30-yard line. Parkinson made two yards at center and then Walinchus fumbled and the Trojans recovered on Pittsburgh's 30-yard line. Saunders, Shaver and Edelson made six yards in three tries and then Saunders shot a forward pass to Pinckert who scampered over the goal line for the Trojans' second touchdown. Shaver missed the goal and the score was 13 to 0 in favor of the Trojans. That ended the scoring in the first quarter.

In the second quarter Pittsburgh took the ball to the Trojan 18-yard line after obtaining possession of it in midfield. The Panthers lost it on their 16-yard line after a forward pass was incomplete on fourth down. Duffield who had replaced Saunders at quarter back for Southern California, pulled a quick kick which rolled to Pittsburgh's 28 yard line. The Panthers fumbled and the Trojans recovered. On a wide end run, Duffield scored a touchdown and Hoff failed to kick goal. The score was then 19 to 0 in favor of the Trojans.

The Trojans' remaining touchdown in the half came as a result of a forward pass, Duffield to Mortensen. The latter was stopped on the Pitt two-yard line, but on the next play Duffield crashed through center and Baker kicked the goal for the extra point, making the score at half time 26 to 0 in favor of Southern California.

Southern California kicked off to open the third period and Pinckert intercepted a Panther forward pass in midfield. The Trojans then made a nice march to the goal, Saunders going around the Pittsburgh right end for a touchdown. Shaver kicked goal and the score was 33 to 0.

Trojans Excel in Punting.

Southern California rooters were massed in the east stand and the eastern fans were in the west side of the stadium. Both teams were reported to be in superb condition.

The Trojans used a six man line defense and a short box. They tackled and charged in a manner which stopped the star Pittsburgh backs before they reached the line of scrimmage. In the punting end of the game, Shaver of Southern California had a decided advantage over Parkinson of Pittsburgh. When Duffield succeeded Shaver in this department, the quarter back also outkicked the Pitt booter. The Trojan punts were covered well by the ends and tackles.

Shortly after the next kick-off Pitt got the ball on the Trojan 40 yard line and made 12 yards by rushing. A forward pass, Uansa to Walinchus, was good for a touchdown. Parkinson kicked the goal and the score was 3 3to 7 in favor of Southern California.

Pittsburgh kicked off to Shaver who brought the ball back to his 30 yard line. An exchange of punts and a penalty of fifteen yards against Pitt for roughness left the ball on the Panthers' 46 yard line. Saunders made two yards off his right tackle and Shaver hit center for two. Saunders then shot a forward pass to Edelson, who scored another touchdown. It was the same pass that Edelson scored on in the opening quarter. Baker kicked goal and the score was 40 to 7, in favor of the Trojans.

Both Score in Fourth.

In the fourth quarter both teams scored. Pitt counted on a long forward pass, Williams to Collins, and Southern California on another beautiful pass, Duffield to Wilcox. Both coaches used most of their reserves.

It was near dark when the game ended, and it was a happy throng which filed out of the bowl.

Hansen Rules 8 to 5 Favorite Over Chastain

Most of Chicago's boxing fans are of the opinion that Haakon Hansen, heavy hitting Norwegian, will knock the tar out of Clyde Chastain in Promoter Jim Mullins' show at White City Monday night.

It might have been too much New Year's day cheer that caused the ring followers to think that way but wherever there was any betting Hansen was held as the 8 to 5 favorite. A few wagers even were made at even money that he would win by a knockout.

Stevenson Talks Big Money.

It is possible that the enthusiasm of Ed Stevenson, who manages Hansen, had something to do with the betting odds, for Ed evidently had plenty of steam and noise left on New Year's morning. He was about the loop. Among other things he announced he would claim the world's middleweight title in the event Mickey Walker tosses away the crown and decides to become a light heavyweight.

Stevenson talked in big money and declared he had $10,000 in cash to post as a stake that Hansen will whip all the middleweight challengers. "And I hope Dave Shade, Rene De Vos and George Courtney are among the challengers," Ed declared. Of course, it was the morning after New Year's eve and if Ed was talking out of turn there were others doing the same thing.

Resume Drills Today.

Chastain's followers were endeavoring to find out the source of all the Hansen backing. Chastain is a terrific body puncher and will go into the struggle with Hansen carrying quite a record. He knocked out Jackie Horner, beat Bobby Tracey and My Sullivan and got a draw with Jackie Brady. He has been beaten recently only by Jackie Fields.

Both battlers observed the holiday and did not engage in any training rehearsals yesterday. They will get down to hard work this afternoon.

New Orleans, La., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—The racing season opened at the Fair Grounds track here today with a thrilling contest in the New Year's handicap which resulted in a narrow victory for George Collins' Patricia Marian.

The six year old mare got home a head in front of the fast closing Paul Bunyan, which suffered such interference that many were convinced he was the better horse even though he was second. Two lengths back War Instigator crossed the line and then finished Old Slip, coupled in the betting with Patricia Marian, and Calf Roper, Chancellor, Yam Toy, and Col. Bell, ...han in the last few seconds ...d Illinois Wesleyan to victory.

Fans See Bumping.

The field was one of the best of the winter season. A large holiday crowd was present for the opening. The bumping took place in the stretch run in full view of the club house and grandstand spectators.

Patricia Marian, under the light weight of 103 pounds, ran in front from the start. She was still in front when straightened out for home, but here Paul Bunyan began his drive. He had Calf Roper to pass and in going by he was badly bumped. The horses caromed apart and again came together further, halting Paul Bunyan's advance. Calf Roper was a tired horse when the mishap occurred. Patricia Marian carried on in even stride while all this was happening back of her and just lasted to win because Paul Bunyan recovered gallantly and still had speed in reserve when he just failed to catch the mare on the post.

The race was at a mile and a sixteenth and was its twelfth running. Timed in 1:48 1-5. Patricia Marian earned $4,670 and paid $11.10 for a $2 ticket.

BROWN WISDOM WINS

AGUA CALIENTE, Mex., Jan. 1.—The Reichert stable of Illinois attempted to score a triple victory here today, but when the fast sprinter, My Dandy, failed in the Pasadena handicap the Illinois turfmen had to be content with two victories during the running of the holiday program.

Brown Wisdom carried the Reichert silks to their first victory of the afternoon when he won the New Year's Day handicap handily from the eastern horse Negopoli and the far western star, Scimitar. Brown Wisdom was the shortest priced favorite of the season here, paying only $2.60 for a $2 ticket when Jockey Turk drove him home. The race was worth $2,500 and was at a mile and a sixteenth.

Plater Also Cops.

The second Reichert victory was pulled up by the plater Torch. He was also piloted by Jockey Turk and put up in the last strides to nip Rip Rap and Star Prince. Torch paid $12.40 in the two dollar betting. My Dandy did not show any of the speed which marked his numerous victories in Chicago tracks last season, and was never a match for Infinity in the 1⅛ furlongs of the Pasadena. Shasta Bullet took down second money and the Nevada farm stable's Kulaman was third.

TORCHILLA SCORES.

HAVANA, Cuba, Jan. 1.—(AP)—Torchilla, Clyde Van Dusen's speedy son of Torch Bearer-Chilla, beat out his stable mate, Little Torch, to take the Cuban New Year's handicap at 1 1-16 miles, worth $2,500 here today. Clear Sky, another favored runner, was third.

Carrying 126 pounds, Torchilla flashed early speed to open up a lead of five lengths at the first turn. Jockey McCrossen held him under restraint through the rest of the race, only letting him out to stave off the driving finish by Little Torch.

17 Rugby Players Knocked Out as French Beat Scots

PARIS, Jan. 1.—(AP)—France defeated Scotland, 7 to 3, in the first international Rugby match of 1930. It was one of the roughest contests in years on a Paris field. There were seventeen knockouts in the course of the game.

Jacobs, Hecht Win Indoor Tennis Titles

New York, Jan. 1.—(AP)—In a dramatic five set struggle, Billy Jacobs of Baltimore City college today won the National junior indoor tennis championship by conquering John Richardson of Dartmouth, 6-3, 6-2, 2-6, 7-5, 6-3.

The National boys' indoor championship went to a little New York stylist, Marcus Hecht of De Witt Clinton High school. Defeating Bernard Friedman of West Philadelphia High school, 6-3, 6-2, Hecht gained the honors formerly held but not defended by Kendall Cram of Nashville, Tenn., without having lost a single set in the entire tournament.

Frankie Parker of the Milwaukee Country day school and Giles Verstraten of the McBurney school, New York, won the boys' doubles final, defeating Friedman and Hecht, 7-5, 6-3. In junior doubles the honors went to Sandy Davenport and Richard Downing of the West Side Tennis club, who turned back Donald Frame of Harvard and Fred Roll of Mercersburg academy, 6-4, 6-4, 6-8, 7-5.

Richardson Turns Tide.

The more experienced Jacobs, his playing marked by perfect form, clicked off the first two sets without great difficulty before Richardson struck his stride and launched a furious volleying attack.

After the intermission, Jacobs applied more pressure and reeled off the first four games in a row but the scrappy Dartmouth sophomore, who has been spilling favorites all through the tournament, rushed the net for smashing overhead kills or deft half volleys, and turned the entire tide of the match by winning five of the next six games and then went on to take the set at 9-7.

For the first several games of the deciding set neither could win his service, but Richardson's aggressive tactics had taken more out of him than had Jacobs' well rounded game, so the Baltimore youth came through in the crisis.

Loses on Errors.

Richardson, always the last ditch fighter, carried the last two from love-40 to deuce before he lost on errors, traceable to near exhaustion.

O'Dowd Fouls Shea in Second Round of Bout

countal, implicating him, Mr. Dolan replied with such noncommital phrases as "Who? Me?" and "What was that again, judge?"

The others named by the O'Connell boy were much more alert mentally. They said O'Connell was a liar, and as it was one man's word against theirs, these defendants got the benefit of a small but long lived doubt. So the unfortunate outfielder, who was a gullible bumpkin of the type who hold the bag for the snipe on spring training trips, and the old house dick of the Giants were barred from baseball and the others were acquitted under a verdict reading, in effect, "Not guilty so far as we know."

Good Natured Kidding.

But doubt always has persisted because of various curious circumstances. For instance, Mr. Frisch, the captain, elaborated his testimony to say that while there was absolutely no guilty scheming in the Giants' clubhouse, there had been a lot of good natured kidding around among the boys. The boys' idea of humor ran pretty much to innocent sallies about how pleasant it would be if their opponents would refrain from bearing down, but nevertheless it was all kidding in the best of nature. Some people seem to be kidding when they are quite in earnest, others seem to be in earnest when they are only kidding around, and the question always has remained for each person to answer for himself: "Were they kidding or were they conniving?"

Another remarkable circumstance was the tolerant patience with which one of the athletes named by O'Connell submitted to a violent personal denunciation of himself, his immediate forbears, his tastes in diversion and other affairs too intimate to mention, as O'Connell's parting word to organized baseball. The subject of O'Connell's remarks was a quick tempered fighting ball player who would have been expected to kill O'Connell for less than half of what he said in the presence of various other persons. But O'Connell delivered these respects unchallenged, leaving all present to infer what they might infer.

Still on McGraw's List?

Then, also, Mr. Dolan seemed to live on quite comfortably for one whose means of a livelihood suddenly had been canceled, and there was much interested speculation as to the possible source of his income. His relations with the ball club ceased, of course, but I do not believe McGraw renounced him personally. Mr. McGraw is rather stubborn and not a man to permit official authority to censor his calling list.

It puzzles me to hear from the Hon. Francis Xavier McQuade's counsel that McGraw may be asked, at this late date, to give further details of the scandal of the good natured kidders. He undoubtedly means to imply that Mr. McGraw never told all he knew, and from this I take it that Judge McQuade must know something about the affair which he never has told before. If that is the case, I wonder what deterred him from telling it long ago, in view of his status as a baseball magnate, a steward of clean sport in the national game, and a judge of the New York police court.

Of course, one does not look to police magistrates for any fastidious standard of personal or professional ethics or conduct. Even if it should transpire that McQuade has been withholding information of a sinister nature in this case, finally disclosing it only as a means to win a civil law suit, he is to be reproached only in his capacity as a baseball magnate. There is no reproaching a magistrate any more. The very title has become its own reproach.

Wrestlers Near Condition for Bouts Monday Night

Gus Sonnenberg and Charley Midget Fisher, claimants of the heavyweight and middleweight wrestling championships, who are going to help Doc Krone begin the wrestling year in a big way at the Coliseum on Monday night, will put in their final hard training licks today and tomorrow.

"It has been a long time since two world's champions wrestled in the same ring on the same night," Promoter Krone declared last night. "But my public gets only the best. I'm sorry I can't present a dozen world champions at this first big mat carnival of 1930."

Mack Disqualified; French Fight Fans Riot, Wreck Arena

MARSEILLES, France, Jan. 1.—Following the disqualification of the American boxer, Georgie Mack, during a bout with Kid Francis in the Marseilles bull fight arena this afternoon, more than 1,000 spectators rioted and practically demolished the arena. The fans believed the bout was fixed.

After tearing up the seats and demolishing the ring the crowd attempted to set the place on fire. The police and firemen arrived just in time and managed to disperse the crowd by using clubs.

The crowd became excited when Mack laid down twice, apparently feigning a knock out. When he was disqualified the fans hooted and demanded their money back and began to wreck the arena, beating up the fighters and their seconds.

ILLINI CAGERS TEST BUTLER'S POWER TONIGHT

Maroons Next Foe for Indianapolis Five.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—Two of Illinois' best basketball teams one coached by Craig Ruby at Champaign and the other by Nels Norgren at Chicago, are the next in the procession of outstanding basketball fives to invade the Butler university fieldhouse. The Illini form the opposition tomorrow night and the Maroons on Saturday. Butler has only once been defeated in two seasons.

Central Normal of Danville provided the annual holiday upset that Butler has come to expect. Then Butler Monday proceeded to turn back Nebraska. Coach Hinkles' men among other teams previously had disposed of Manchester, Purdue, Montana State and Vanderbilt.

Loyola of Chicago will play here Jan. 24. In other games involving Hoosier state teams the week saw another defeat for Notre Dame and finally an Irish victory over Northwestern. Purdue repulsed Vanderbilt and Evansville lost to Millikin. Indiana conference record to date follows:

MARQUETTE FIVE DEFEATS NORTH DAKOTA AGGIES

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—The Marquette university basketball team overcame an early lead tonight to defeat North Dakota Aggies, 26 to 17. Marquette's starting team included three reserves, but the regulars were rushed in after five minutes of play with the local cagers trailing. Marquette led at the half, 10 to 9.

SHIRES IS ILL; DETROIT FIGHT DECLARED OFF

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—The Great Art Shires, who was to have shown Detroit his ability as a boxer tonight, is in bed at his hotel. His trainer, A. J. Katz, has been replaced by a doctor and the bout, of course, has been declared off.

Shires' ailment is a cold that had its inception Tuesday. Last night it settled in his neck and this morning his neck was so stiff he could not turn his head. Shires' manager, Nessie Blumenthal, says he will be confined to his room for a day or two and kept out of the present wet, foggy weather.

FIGHTS IN ST. PAUL, JAN. 7.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Charles Arthur [The Great] Shires has been matched to fight Tony Faeth, former pitcher for the St. Paul association team, here Jan. 7. "I never did like pitchers," said Shires, "and I know enough about that one to know that I can hit him in the box or in the ring."

D. J. KINNANE, ONE OF POLICE "FOUR HORSEMEN," DIES

Rites for Veteran Will Be Held Tomorrow.

Another of the "four horsemen" of the Chicago police force is dead. Detective Daniel J. Kinnane, 68 years old, of the bureau of identification, one of the three oldest policemen in point of service, died on Tuesday at the Augustana hospital, following an operation.

Capt. James Gleason died on Nov. 16, and now only two of the "four horsemen"—Thomas H. Moran and John E. Ptacek—remain to recount the traditions of the "famous 300" that joined the force 45 years ago Dec. 15, when telephones were unknown, and when brawny policemen propelled an efficient fist in preference to a gun, and got their man.

Detective Kinnane was a fingerprint expert in the identification bureau. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Nora Kinnane, 3246 Jackson boulevard.

Called "Famous 300."

Members of the force recalled that the "famous 300," who joined the force Dec. 15, 1884, were so named because it was the largest body of men up to then that had joined the police department at one time. Before twenty years had passed more than half had died or left the force. Some had given their lives in the Haymarket riot, some died natural deaths, some moved away, and others were discharged. In recent years the four survivors of the 300 became known on the force as the "four horsemen."

At the bureau yesterday Kinnane's favorite story was retold. Back in 1887, only three years after he joined the force, Kinnane came upon a stick-up man at work at Polk and Federal streets. The hold-up man whipped out a gun and shot the policeman through the body. Despite his wound, Kinnane grappled with the robber and dragged him four blocks to the police station at Harrison and La Salle streets.

Drags Robber to Station.

"Here's your man," he gasped as he shoved the bandit into the station. The robber got 20 years at Joliet, and Kinnane carried a bullet in his spine to his death.

Funeral services will be conducted at 9:30 a. m., Friday, with solemn requiem mass at St. Catherine's Catholic church, Oak Park. Burial will be in All Saints' cemetery.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: When a Job Goes Begging

Elmer Finds Little on Air to Rave About

Gibbons Talk on Coolidge to His Liking.

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

Nothing phenomenal could be expected from the radio on New Year's night, and the expectation was correct. There was not much to whoop about.

Camillo Osias of the Philippine Islands in a talk over W-G-N from 8 to 8:15 o'clock painted a rosy picture of the climate, educational progress and natural resources of his native land. He made a plea for independence.

I thought last evening's talk by Floyd Gibbons, from New York through W-G-N from 9:30 to 10 o'clock was one of the best he has yet given. He described a visit he had with President Coolidge four years ago.

I have heard nothing in the last 48 hours that was musically more lovely than the song "You Were Meant for Me and I Was Meant for You," sung by the Revelers male quartet on the New York program through W-G-N from 8:30 to 9:30 o'clock last evening. The number is frequently sung by this quartet but last evening's lack of important musical offerings made it stand out prominently.

CHICAGO BANKS ENJOY LARGER INCOME IN 1929

High Interest Rates Big Factor.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Chicago's big banks enjoyed larger earnings last year as the result of high interest rates and profitable operations of their investment subsidiaries.

Several of the larger institutions issued their annual reports yesterday. They show higher earnings than in 1928, although it is probable larger sums were set aside from profits for reserves and contingent funds.

The Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, which is a merger of the Continental and Commercial banks and the Illinois Merchants Trust company, effected early in 1929, reported net earnings of $20,443,167, after setting aside $5,500,000 for taxes and providing liberal reserves. This was equivalent to 27.3 per cent on the capital stock and to 12.5 per cent on total invested capital of $164,060,156. The combined net earnings of the component banks in 1928 were $16,527,945. After paying $12,000,000 in dividends the bank added $8,443,168 to undivided profits.

Has Over 8 Millions Net.

The First National bank and its affiliate, the First Union Trust and Savings bank, which combined with the Union Trust company early in the year, reported net earnings of $8,240,144, which was equivalent to $2.96 per cent on the capital stock and to 11.9 per cent on average invested capital.

Invested caipital at the end of the year was $73,044,437. Net earnings of the component banks in 1928 were $7,881,000. After paying $4,955,000 in dividends the National bank added $2,285,000 to undivided profits.

The Foreman-State National bank and its affiliate, the Foreman-State Trust & Savings bank, representing a consolidation of the Foreman banks and the State Bank of Chicago during the year, reported net earnings of $3,-161,184, equivalent to 33.74 per cent on the capital stock and to 11.24 per cent on average invested capital.

Insull Utilities Investments, Inc., one of the Insull investment companies, will raise about $60,000,000 additional capital through an issue of ten year 6 per cent debentures, which will be offered publicly by Halsey, Stuart & Co. and associates. The proceeds will be used to pay all current indebtedness, incurred in the acquisition of securities, and also to acquire securities which have been contracted for, and to give the corporation about $20,000,000 of free cash in its treasury.

Debentures Are Exchangeable.

Each $1,000 debenture may be exchanged for common stock at $65 a share this year and at increasing prices thereafter up to and including 1934, but if so surrendered after this year, the holders of each debenture also may purchase 10 additional shares of common stock at $10 a share below the conversion price. In addition, each debenture will carry a warrant giving the holder the right to purchase 10 shares of common stock during this year at $65 a share.

"Insull Utility Investments began business at the start of 1929 as a $27,000,000 corporation," the official announcement says. "When the present financing is concluded it will be a $163,000,000 corporation. Its earnings for 1929 were more than $12,000,000 and estimated earnings for 1930 are $13,450,000."

The Associated Apparel Industries, Inc., issued its annual report last night covering the eleven months ended Nov. 30 because of a change from calendar to fiscal year. Net income for the eleven months was $1,-224,964, including $167,869 profit from the sale of capital assets.

After making surplus adjustments of $149,943 and paying dividends of $607,497 the statement shows total surplus at $1,965,467. The company has 207,500 shares of non-par stock outstanding. Sales for the fiscal period total $14,674,112.

INTERNATIONAL SHOE COMPANY REPORTS RECORD 1929 SALES

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 1.—(AP)—The International Shoe company, with net earnings of $17,031,434.58 in its fiscal year 1929, had the most successful year in its history and the start of 1930 finds the company in a stronger position than ever before, says the annual report to stockholders, made public today.

Effective today, the company announced an increase in the dividend rate of $2.50 to $3 per share a year.

From forty-four factories in thirty-nine states, the International produced 54,730,685 pairs of shoes in 1929, a gain of 6,000,000 pairs over the previous year and, the reports adds, was the largest shoe output ever to come from a single organization.

Net sales in 1929 were $132,110,-129.80, a gain of $9,145,597.79 over 1928. Net income, after providing for preferred dividends, showed earnings of $4.37 a share on the common stock compared with $4.03 a year ago.

FIELD COMPANY SEES SUCCESS IN HARD WORK

"Concerning the coming year, we can only say that success crowns the efforts of those who are willing to put all they have into their jobs. We shall try to be one of that number," Marshall Field & Co. asserted through John McKinlay, vice president.

"During 1929 we expanded our business in many ways. We opened two fine branches of our retail store, one in Oak Park and one in Evanston. We purchased the Frederick & Nelson store in Seattle, as well as a number of retail stores in Wisconsin, Illinois and Ohio which are being operated under our wholesale management.

"The Merchandise Mart, in which our wholesale business and that of many of our competitors will be housed, is well along toward completion. The important thing is that it brings under one roof in Chicago a large proportion of the manufacturers and distributors of our own and similar lines."

Fewer Failures in 1929, but Liabilities Heavier

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 1.—Total failures in the United States in 1929, as compiled today by Bradstreet's Journal by telegraphic reports from all offices, decreased 3.2 per cent in number, but increased 21.4 per cent in total liabilities, as compared with the failures in 1928. The compilation showed that there were 19,703 failures during the full calendar year with liabilities of $628,990,633. Failures in Canada for the full calendar year totaled 2,092, with liabilities of $31,863,932, an increase of 11.6 per cent in number, but a decrease of 12.7 per cent in liabilities as compared with 1928.

FURNITURE MEN PREDICT UPTURN IN THE NEW YEAR

Home Building May Help Trade.

Poised on the threshold of the new year, officials of the American Furniture mart yesterday laid aside the rose colored glasses for a conservative look at the perspective of business down the next twelve months. What they found, using furniture as a barometer of business progress and carefully avoiding unjustified optimism, indicates much that is interesting and little that is pessimistic.

Their present predictions, they pointed out, are based on estimates provided by large financial and bond houses and by a firm of construction statisticians of New York, whose figures in former years have been surprisingly accurate.

Promise Definite Report.

A definite report on the actual status of business will be forthcoming, it was promised, on the completion of the three weeks' furniture market opening here Jan. 6 and closing the 25th. This event, being the first real test of market conditions in any important industry for the new year, will reveal the direction in which the business wind is blowing.

V. L. Alward, president of the mart, refused to exhibit any exultation over the preregistration figures for this market, which already have passed by more than 1,000 those for the largest previous such event. There is reason to believe the market will be the greatest ever held, he admitted, but he pointed out that late registrations sometimes swell the number of buyers considerably. Unless this year's percentage holds good after the show opens the former record may not be broken.

On the basis of the estimates submitted, the furniture officials voiced the consensus that the second six months of 1930 will be a better business period than the first half. This reverses the situation in 1929, during which the first six months showed a larger business volume than the latter six. The same statisticians who provided this estimate predicted the "adjustment between stocks and bonds" that marked the last few months of 1929, but they had expected that it would fall in the earlier half of the year.

Cite Building Figures.

"The construction statisticians tell us," Roscoe Rau, head of the National Retail Furniture association, commented, "that during 1930 there will be approximately $6,825,000,000 worth of building in this country, an increase of about $500,000,000 over 1929 by present available figures. They also say that industrial building, which was brisk in 1929, will probably slump somewhat and that residential building will show the increase.

"By their estimates, about $3,000,-000,000 worth of residential building will be done throughout the country during 1930. Now if we take only 10 per cent of that amount to allow furniture for these residences, which is a conservative estimate because furniture is used by every man, woman and child in the land, we can expect to dispose of approximately $300,000,-000 worth of our stocks in the twelve months. So it's a hopeful forecast."

U. S. FUNDS INVESTED ABROAD IN 1929 SHOW DROP OF NEARLY 22%

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 1.—American funds invested abroad in 1929 aggregated $1,678,439,400, a decline, of almost 22 per cent, as compared with the total of 1928, according to a compilation made by Dr. Max Winkler, vice president of Bertron, Griscom and company. America's total foreign investments, exclusive of intergovernment debts, amounted at the end of 1929 to $16,604,052,000, a gain of about 6.50 per cent over the previous year.

"The outstanding feature of our 1929 foreign investments," said Dr. Winkler, "was the pronounced decline in publicly offered loans, a direct result of the speculative tendency of the last year or more, and the prevailing high money rates.

"Owing to the speculative mania, purchases were confined almost exclusively to 'equities,' while high money rates rendered it practically impossible for American banking houses to underwrite and successfully market fixed income bearing securities, both domestic and particularly foreign. Thus, the bulk of American investments abroad during 1929 was represented by the acquisition of and the investment in foreign properties."

File Opposition Ticket for Mercantile Exchange

A members' ticket has been filed against the regular nominees for officers and directors of the Chicago Mercantile exchange. The opposition slate is headed by Harry H. Field for president and includes Oscar Olson for first vice president and C. B. Ford for director. The remaining nominees are identical with those on the regular ticket, which is headed by Lawrence E. Davis, at present secretary of the exchange, with Harry C. Wimple running for first vice president and C. E. Cromer as the director with opposition. The election takes place Jan. 8.

John R. Thompson Co. Has Record Sales for 1929

The John R. Thompson company established record sales in 1929 with a total in excess of $14,000,000, John R. Thompson Jr. announced yesterday. He said the restaurant chain would begin an important expansion program in 1930.

REVENUE FREIGHT LOADINGS FOR WEEK DECLINE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 1.—Loading of revenue freight for the week ended on Dec. 21 totaled 842,483 cars, the American Railway association announced today.

Compared with the corresponding week in 1928, this was a decrease of 58,137 cars, but an increase of 12,673 cars above the corresponding week in 1927. The total for the week of Dec. 21 was a reduction of 80,757 cars under the preceding week. Miscellaneous freight loading for the week of Dec. 21 totaled 282,344 cars, 34,251 cars below the same week in 1928, but 5,403 cars above the corresponding week in 1927.

Grain Traffic Improves on Northwestern Road

Grain traffic on the Chicago and North Western railway has improved considerably during the last few days, according to Vice President H. W. Beyers of that road. "Shipments out of elevators has made room for additional grain which we are now carrying and it will continue to the extent of the space offered, we believe," Mr. Beyers said.

Chicago Wholesalers' Gross Estimated at $750,000,000

BY HOWARD CARSWELL.

Bringing the buyer to the great central wholesale market in Chicago instead of sending the merchandise to the merchant is the merchandising principle which is promoting Chicago to a prominent position as a world mart. This merchandising principle will find its physical embodiment this year in the gigantic merchandise mart —the world's largest building—which will be opened about May 1.

Chicago as a wholesale center has grown by rapid strides during the last six years. Because of this city's inherent advantage as a transportation center and its central location geographically, merchants from all parts of the middle west and Pacific coast are beginning to appreciate the saving in time, expense, and freight charges realized by doing their buying in this compact wholesale district.

Volume Is Surprising.

The federal census of distribution for 1926 revealed that gross sales of the Chicago wholesale market for that year were about $4,850,000,000 for the widest variety of commodities, including foods, mercantile lines, hardware, and agricultural equipment, etc. Wholesale dry goods sold in Chicago that year amounted to $292,600,000. The best opinion estimates that Chicago's annual gross volume in dry goods, apparel, and kindred mercantile lines exceeded $750,000,000 in 1929. The magnitude of this volume surprised even the leading figures of the Chicago market, according to Franklyn Hobbs, director of research for the Central Trust company.

The 1930 federal census of distribution should reveal for the first time Chicago's position as a world mart by comparison with the annual wholesale business transacted in other cities, notably New York. Tangible figures on Chicago, both as a retail and wholesale market center, for such a comparison will become available for the first time, according to Mr. Hobbs.

Offers Conveniences.

The concentration of so many manufacturers' lines in one building, the merchandise mart, will be a convenience of far reaching consequence to merchant-buyers of the central west. Annual sales of this single building should exceed $500,000,000, in the opinion of C. A. Welles, its general manager. Its proximity to the rest of the wholesale district west of the loop should react to the benefit of the Chicago market district as a whole.

"While industries usually concentrate in certain locations, we are concentrating our industry in a different manner. The merchandise mart will be a concentration within a city. This principle will even be carried out within the building itself, for men's apparel, women's apparel, dry goods, giftware and the different lines will concentrate their displays in certain sections of the building," said Mr. Welles.

Chicago & Eastern Illinois Reduces Freight Rates

Reduced through freight rates from Chicago and other Illinois points to the Pacific coast by way of the Panama canal were announced yesterday by the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railway. The reduction will save shippers, approximately 30 cents on each 100 pounds of merchandise compared with all-rail rates, it was stated. The new rates will apply on iron and steel products, canned goods, soap and soap powder, lye, tinplate and similar articles. Steamship terminals to be used by the railroad are Mobile and New Orleans. The rates are effective Feb. 1.

BRIGHTER FARM PROSPECTS NOW, ARNOT ASSERTS

Board of Trade Chief Looks Ahead.

[President Chicago Board of Trade.]

American finance and industry are more strongly entrenched than ever before. A remarkable, sound credit situation exists. Business is fair to good. Large programs of construction and development are in the offing. Farm conditions continue to improve.

It is reasonably safe to predict that we shall look back upon the year of 1930 as a year of prosperity and smile at the momentary fears occasioned by the slump in the inflated price structure of the securities market.

Signs all point to the fact that this nation, which has entered an era of

U. S. LIVE STOCK INDUSTRY IN 1929 NEARS A RECORD

Animals Slaughtered May Reach 110 Millions.

BY ARNOLD ERICKSON.
[The Tribune's Live Stock Editor.]

The year of 1929 goes down in the history of the live stock industry as one of the greatest on record, both for production and profits to the producer. With the exception of cattle, near record numbers of live stock were slaughtered in the United States during the year.

The total for the entire country, including estimates of animals slaughtered on farms as well as by packers, may reach 110 million head, which has been exceeded very few times before.

High Level of Prices.

Some of the highest average prices for normal peace times were paid to producers for their year's crops of live stock. The advanced cost of handling was more than offset by the high level of prices paid out by packers, who, by the way, report a smaller margin of profit for themselves for the twelve month period.

Although most live stock men enjoyed a profitable year, those marketing supplies during the first six months received the highest prices, a reversal of conditions existing in most branches of the trade in 1928, when the last six months of the year were highest, as a whole.

An optimistic view regarding the live stock industry for 1930 is taken by leading stockyards interests, in spite of the fact that some classes of stock finished below the price level in vogue at the close of 1928. The whole situation has more "backbone" than at any time since the war, according to some leaders in the trade. Producers have had a good year and naturally are in a bullish mood.

It is almost a certainty that the cattle supply during most of next year will be below normal, judging from decreased shipments back to the country for future marketing. The government prediction of an 8 per cent decrease in the number of pigs on hand last spring has not materialized yet, but market experts feel that the next four months will show the shortage.

If the hog market follows the 1929 trend the $11.00 hog should arrive soon after January. That the $12.00 hog probably will appear earlier than in 1929 is the opinion of many in the trade.

Cattle Break Late in Year.

Cattlemen were somewhat disappointed in the market during the last half of 1929, when top prices at times fell as much as $1.50 below the same period in 1928, and $3.00 lower than in 1927. The year, as a whole, however, averaged $13.40, the fourth highest on record and only $2.10 below the record average in 1919. There has been only one other yearly average above $11.70 since 1920. Average for 1926 was down to $9.70, indicating the sharp advance in the market during the last three years, which has been due largely to the low ebb to which production of bovine stock has fallen in late years.

Hog raisers fared well all year, but made their biggest profits during the first six months. The year's average at $10.20 stands third highest since 1920, prices in 1925 and 1926 averaging higher, due to much shorter supplies. The average in 1928 was $9.30 and in 1927, $10.05. Receipts through 1929 were the most stabilized on record, farmers distributing supplies evenly all year. At eleven of the principal markets there was a difference of only 700,000 between totals for the first half and last half of the year. The two totals in 1928 were 3,878,000 apart.

Hog production is on a much larger scale than most people realize. In the United States during the last seven years a total of 511,199,000 hogs have been slaughtered, indicating immensity of the business. Nearly 45 per cent of this total number has been killed during the last three years, at the rate of about 72,500,000 yearly. Packers carried immense stocks of pork products through most of 1929. Although the total number of hogs slaughtered in 1929 was below a year ago, stocks in storage houses were greater than a year ago during seven months of the year. With the exception of two months, packers had larger holdings of lard in storage than in 1928.

Lamb Values Erratic.

Fluctuations in the lamb market were the most erratic since the debacle of 1920, but the year's market, as a whole, equaled the third highest since 1920. Corn belt feeders made some of the largest profits on record during the first half of the year, while western producers during the last half were paid $2,700,000 less for their shipments to Chicago than during the season of 1928. General average for the whole year was $14.30, compared with $14.60 in 1928 and with $13.90 in 1927 and 1926. The average in 1921 of $9.85 was lowest from 1916 to date.

523 MILLIONS PAID FOR 1929 LIVE STOCK BY CHICAGO PACKERS

Chicago packers paid out enough money in 1929 to make live stock raisers fairly happy. Aggregate payments for all live stock brought here were $523,157,017, an increase of $605,408 over 1928, and $30,529,546 more than in 1927.

Hogs brought farmers $16,086,942 more than in 1928, but other classes of live stock sold at a lower total than in the previous year, owing to smaller arrivals.

There have been only six years since the opening of the Chicago stockyards in 1866 when packers paid out more money than during the last year. In only six years during that period have valuations been higher, this period being directly after the world war when prices were abnormal. Before 1916 the highest yearly valuation at Chicago was $409,134,674, while the highest previous payments were $253,836,502 in 1900. Details for two years follow:

Warner Bros. Pictures.

Net profit for the fiscal year was $14,514,628, against $2,044,841 in the preceding year. After provision for preferred and common dividends there remained a surplus for the latest year amounting to $11,625,450. The year before no dividends were reported.

Earnings in the latest year were equal to $50.39 per share on 288,056 no par preferred shares and $5.23 per share on 2,627,405 no par common shares.

In the preceding year earnings were equivalent to $4.97 per share on only 350,860 common shares. In that year there were also outstanding 199,140 no par class "A" shares.

Current assets were $34,947,191 and current liabilities were $18,632,519 as of Aug. 31, 1929. This left a net working capital of $16,314,672. A year before current assets were $9,166,742 and current liabilities were $8,775,675.

The company has been named defendant in a anti-trust action brought under the Clayton act and filed in the Federal court by U. S. Attorney General William D. Mitchell.

In a recent statement to stockholders, the president of the company said that the action instituted by the government against the company does not allege that the company is a monopoly or trust and that no attempt is made to dissolve the company. He stated that the only question involved is the legality of the ownership of First National Pictures, Inc., and that the suit is directed solely to that question.

With the payment of a quarterly dividend of $1 per share on Dec. 3, 1929, the annual dividend rate was increased from $3 to $4. This increase appears to have been warranted in view of the company's earnings in the latest fiscal year.

Kentucky Utilities.

C. W. C.: Kentucky Utilities company first lien 5 per cent bonds, series "G," due Feb. 1, 1961, are secured equally with series "D, F, H, and I," by a first mortgage upon all properties, rights, and franchises now owned or hereafter acquired with the proceeds of these bonds.

Earnings in the last five years have averaged $2,245,505, or 1.6 times interest charges on all series outstanding.

Additional bonds may be issued in series for not exceeding 75 per cent of the actual cash of permanent improvements made or new properties acquired by the company. No additional bonds may be issued, however, unless the net earnings of the company shall have been not less than 1.75 times the annual interest charges on all bonds outstanding, including those applied for.

Smith Agricultural Chemical.

A. R. G.: Smith Agricultural Chemical company, incorporated in Ohio in 1899, manufactures commercial fertilizers and sulphuric acid and also manufactures and imports agricultural chemicals.

Net profit in the year ended Oct. 31, 1929, was $133,180, equal to $53.69 per share on 3,412 preferred shares, par $100, and $35.58 per share on 4,573 common shares, par $100. In the preceding year net profit was $203,542.

As of Oct. 31, 1929, current assets were $958,179, and current liabilities were $52,972. Profit and loss surplus was $529,277.

Board of Trade Has 3,000 Out of Town Visitors in '29

That Chicago's attraction for sightseers applies to widely separated communities as well as to adjacent centers of population is illustrated by a survey of 1929 visitors to the Chicago Board of Trade. In the year just ended more than 3,000 residents of the forty-eight states, the District of Columbia, Alaska, Hawaii, and twenty-one foreign countries signed the visitors' book at the exchange.

LOCATES IN AMSTERDAM.

The American Produce corporation has been established in Amsterdam, Holland, with a capital of $400,000, financed by American, Swiss and Dutch capital.

COTTON SUPPLY WILL BE AMPLE, SAYS OBSERVER

Manufacturers Seem Sure of Raw Materials.

BY T. A. CARTER.

It is impossible to tell at this date the exact size of the season's production of cotton, but it is not too early to make an estimate which should be approximately correct. From information at hand it is evident that production has been large enough to insure ample supplies unless the volume of business this season should run well above last year, and that no anxiety need be felt in manufacturing centers over supplies.

The carry-over of American cotton from last season was 4,474,000 bales, and the crop this year, according to last estimates by the government, is 14,919,000 bales, giving a total of 19,393,000 bales available for the season, compared with a total last season of 19,643,000 bales. The average amount available for the last four crops in America was 20,831,000 bales.

Too Early to Predict.

Consumption of American grown cotton last season was 15,169,000 bales; for the last two years, 15,500,000 bales; and the average for the last four years was 15,108,000 bales. It is too early to predict accurately the amount which will be consumed this season, but current estimates rather generally fall below last season. With financial conditions unsettled, compared with a year ago, the outlook seems less bright for the textile industry.

Production of cotton outside the United States this season may closely approach 11,200,000 bales. The carry-over of "other production" from last season was approximately 4,470,000 bales, and the total available this season should be around 15,670,000 bales. Consumption of foreign grown cotton last season was 10,640,000 bales; for the last two years, 9,867,000 bales; for the last three years, 9,756,000 bales; and the average for the last four years has been about 10,060,000 bales.

Normal Supplies Likely.

From the figures given above it can be seen that supplies will be large enough to provide for the average consumption of the last several years and still provide a normal surplus to carry into the next season.

Cash Grain Deliveries 33,512,000 Bu. for Month

Cash grain deliveries on sales on the Chicago Board of Trade during the month of December set a high mark, 33,512,000 bushels, of which 22,101,000 bushels were wheat, and 6,768,000 bu rye. In December last year the total deliveries were 18,173,000 bu.

BANK MERGER MOVEMENT HAS RECORD YEAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 1.—The movement toward consolidation of banking resources gained considerable impetus in 1929 with the consummation of a number of huge bank mergers in New York City.

Among the most noteworthy of these were the merging of the National Bank of Commerce with the Guaranty Trust company, of the National Park bank with the Chase National bank, the Seaboard National bank with the Equitable Trust company, the Farmers' Loan and Trust company with the National City bank, the Hanover National bank with the Central Union Trust company, the United States Mortgage and Trust company with the Chemical National bank and the private banking house of Blair & Co. with the Bank of America National association.

Several other large mergers were tentatively announced but failed to be consummated. These included the proposed merger of the Chatham Phoenix National Bank and Trust company with the Bank of America and the proposed consolidation of the Corn Exchange Bank Trust company with the National City bank.

The United States developed its first $2,000,000,000 bank in 1929 when resources of the National City bank crossed that level following the merger with the Farmers' Loan and Trust company.

Brokers' Loans Deflation Surpasses All Precedent

The reduction last October and November of $4,500,000,000 in New York brokers' borrowings was commonly regarded as surpassing all precedent in credit deflation. Brokers' loans were reduced $726,000,000 between Nov. 1, 1919, and Feb. 1, 1921, a cut of 41⅓ per cent in fifteen months; but even on the percentage basis, this autumn's cut amounted to 50 per cent in eight weeks. The federal reserve's note circulation was reduced $1,101,000,000 between Oct. 1, 1920, and Nov. 1, 1921, but that reduction was only 32⅝ per cent in fourteen months.

FLOUR AND GRAIN PRICES LOWER IN CHICAGO IN 1929

A lower range of prices for flour, wheat, oats, rye and barley, as well as a drop in lard and meat prices were important factors in the Chicago market during the last year. The range of values in Chicago for 1928 and 1929 follows:

'TOO MANY SHIPS' IS COMPLAINT OF SIR WM. CURRIE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 1.—There are too many ships afloat, according to Sir William Currie, president of the chamber of shipping of the United Kingdom, who advocates a policy of withdrawing the older vessles in order to relieve the depression in the shipping industry.

"There is at present 68,000,000 tons of shipping afloat compared with 49,000,000 tons before the war. Trade with the world is not sufficient to provide full employment for this tonnage," declared Sir William Currie. "If one is to assure that the expenditure in running ships has reached as low level as is consistent with safety and efficiency, than it would appear that unless prosperity comes quicker than it is at present anticipated, further schemes for tonnage rationalization must be evolved."

A good year for investors

For those having surplus funds to invest the present appears to be a time of opportunity.

Until very recently the average price of sound bonds had, for two years, steadily declined. With money again in supply, indications are that a greater demand for bonds is developing and that bonds are at bargain levels.

For safety and income we recommend sound bonds for the investment of surplus funds. We shall gladly send to those interested our current list without obligation.

In the investment account of those prepared to assume greater risk there is often a place for carefully selected investment stocks—the proportion of stocks to bonds depending on individual circumstances.

Such stocks may be bought now at much more favorable prices than a few months ago.

The N. W. Harris Company, controlled by the Harris Trust and Savings Bank, will be glad to suggest to those interested, stocks which may be purchased at favorable prices. The N. W. Harris Company may be addressed at 115 West Monroe Street, Chicago.

Our recommendations are based on our conviction that this country has a bright and prosperous future for many years ahead.

Larger Earnings

Many of the great American corporations are now doing a larger business than ever before. Earnings of Cities Service Company, a $900,000,000 corporation, have increased every year since 1921, and prospects for next year are exceedingly bright. We recommend the purchase of Cities Service Common Stock at the present market to yield over 7%.

BRIGHTER FARM PROSPECTS NOW, ARNOT DECLARES

vast industrial expansion, will continue its forward sweep for many years to come, not blindly and extravagantly, but with reason and judgment. Those industries having vision and confidence will prosper; the weak and fearful ones that search for depression probably will find it and wither.

Condition of Farmers.

Total income of farmers for the 1929-'30 crop year will equal that of the previous season.

Grain farmers have done fairly well. The wheat crop is smaller than in 1928, but the gross return may be larger. So far this season wheat prices have been higher than for the previous year. This reduction is somewhat offset by a larger carryover.

Reports on world production outside Russia and China in 1929 indicate about 3,400,000,000 bushers, or 500,000,000 less than the record crop of 1928. The department of agriculture says that as the carryover was larger than the previous crop year the total world supply for 1929-'30 is only about 360,000,000 bushels less than the supply available in 1928-'29. But the indicated reduction has raised the world price level.

In the live stock industry further improvement has been noted. This is likewise true of the dairy industry.

Value of farm property has increased in the last two seasons. In the last year land values slipped slightly. But personal property, including live stock, increased enough to raise the estimated current value of agricultural real estate and personal property to $58,645,000,000.

Calls Outlook Bright.

Generally speaking, the whole agricultural outlook is bright. In this difficult grain marketing year—difficult from the standpoint of political activities, changing crop conditions, and the crash in the stock markets—the Chicago Board of Trade, central grain market, has given a good account of itself. Pressure on the market naturally came about with stock liquidation. In a single market day it was necessary to absorb two hundred million bushels of grain, which proceeded in an orderly manner, with the ticker never a minute behind and with sharp price recoveries soon registered.

Because of a large carryover, the price of May wheat sunk to a low level early last spring.

A renewal of farm relief discussions tended to steady values and then there was a considerable enhancement. Pressure of actual wheat, however, caused the price to decline below the dollar mark.

Wheat Price Improves.

A price upturn in wheat came when the federal farm board fixed certain basic prices on which it would loan government funds to coöperative agencies. In the stock market liquidation, which seriously affected commodities prices, Chicago December wheat sold about 7 cents under the basic loan price of the farm board.

In a summary of world conditions on Nov. 16 the department of agriculture expressed a belief that on the basis of supply and demand wheat would sell 25 cents higher within the following two months. This naturally encouraged considerable buying.

Because of various conditions such as those referred to the market has not at all times been left free to function in a normal way, being subjected to quick swings by reason of political pronouncements and other eventualities having a temporary influence.

Generally speaking, however, the exchange has operated in a highly satisfactory manner throughout the year.

From the standpoint of general interest the launching of the new securities market on the Board of Trade was the outstanding development of the year.

Our new 44 story home, nearing completion, at the head of La Salle street, will have adequate facilities for securities trading which have not been available in the temporary quarters now occupied. With the slump in stock prices memberships on all exchanges declined substantially. Board of Trade memberships, some of which have sold around $25,000 recently, offer an excellent investment opportunity, for it is generally conceded that with the development of the large security market, which is inevitable, these memberships should have a value of from $100,000 to $200,000.

F. H. SCOTT SEES GOOD YEAR FOR WHOLESALERS

Carson Pirie Scott & Co., wholesale, will increase production in its manufacturing plants this year from 33 1-3 per cent to 50 per cent, declared F. H. Scott, vice president, in a New Year's statement.

"Distribution has been on a huge scale, yet we believe there has been no overproduction of commodities during 1929. Inventories of textiles and kindred lines, as related to sales, have never been as low. Style will still hold its leading place and newsy presentation through continued advertising will be a tremendous factor," said the statement.

PROMOTES PECKENPAUGH.

Announcement is made from the Burlington railroad offices at Galesburg that C. D. Peckenpaugh, general superintendent of lines at St. Louis, has been promoted to general superintendent of Illinois lines, with headquarters at Galesburg. Mr. Peckenpaugh succeeds J. H. Aydelott, who goes to Fort Worth, Tex., as superintendent of Texas lines.

A Bit of Sound Advice for the New Year

If you have a will, see that it is suited to your present circumstances.

If you have no will, have one drawn at once by a competent lawyer.

Create a trust of your life insurance, rather than having it payable to your dependents in a lump sum.

Assure an income for yourself and for your dependents by placing a portion of your securities in a present trust, beyond the reach of speculative hazards.

IMPORT TRADE RECORD BROKEN BY U. S. IN 1929

Increases Reported by Chamber of Commerce.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 1.—[Special.]—American import trade for the first nine months of 1929 was the largest for any similar period in the history of the country, the foreign commerce department of the chamber of commerce of the United States, announced today. The trade for the nine months period, as shown in a bulletin entitled "Our World Trade," amounted to three and a quarter billion dollars.

The bulletin discloses that the United States bought more raw silk, sugar, furs, newsprint paper, coffee, tin, wool, wood pulp, diamonds, raw cotton, gasoline, flaxseed, meats, lumber and numerous other products than in the same period a year ago, which also was a time of exceptional import trade.

More Crude Materials Received.

"Imports of crude materials, principally raw silk, wool, cotton and furs," the report points out, "showed an increase of 6.4 per cent. The greatest increases among imports were registered in finished and semi-finished manufactures, 12.7 per cent and 21 per cent respectively. Dressed furs, newsprint paper, tin, copper, leather, gasoline, lumber, chemicals, vegetable oils, and rayon manufactures, included in these two classes, showed substantial gains.

"Imports of manufactured foodstuffs were 8 per cent larger than a year ago, due, to a great extent, to larger receipts of sugar and meats. The crude foodstuffs group showed a loss of 2 per cent. Imports of cocoa beans, nuts, tea, wheat, and spices accounted for most of this decline.

36.4 Per Cent Increase in Cane Sugar.

"Imports of cane sugar reached the record total of 8,442,383,000 pounds, 36.4 per cent greater than a year ago. The value, $180,247,000, was 4 per cent larger than in 1928.

"Imports of crude petroleum increased 5.7 per cent in volume over last year, but declined 11.3 per cent in value, owing to lower prices. Cocoa beans increased 21.2 per cent in quantity, but were off 7.1 per cent in value."

FOOD INDUSTRY TO ADVERTISE MORE IN 1930

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 1.—A group of important American food producers and distributers join in predicting a prosperous new year and in promising larger appropriations for advertising and expansion in the Jan. 1 issue of Food Securities Review, published by Chandler & Co. The Review quotes the heads of such food units as Standard Brands, General Foods, Kroger Groceries, and National Dairy.

"We feel optimistic over the outlook for 1930, particularly the food business," says Joseph Wilshire, president of Standard Brands. He goes on to say that the best evidence his company can give of confidence in business for 1930 is by putting into effect the most extensive advertising and expansion program in the history of the various units of Standard Brands.

Loose-Wiles Biscuit company has increased its advertising appropriation and is planning to enlarge merchandising and servicing facilities. B. L. Hupp, president, regards the new year's outlook as promising and looks for an increase in sales.

Colby M. Chester, president of General Foods corporation, says his company is increasing its advertising appropriation and looks for 1930 to be the best year in the company's history.

Improved condition of the farmer, the strong position of American industry in general, and the fact that chain grocery stores deal in necessities are reasons advanced by William H. Albers, president of Kroger Grocery and Baking company, for good sales for such companies during the new year.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today, 6,000 cattle, 24,000 hogs, and 11,000 sheep.

Live stock on the Chicago market opened the new year yesterday anywhere from $2.50 lower to 50c higher than a year ago. Top hogs at $9.75 compared with $9.25 on the first market day of 1929.

Top cattle at $16.00 stood $1.00 lower than on the first of 1929, while lambs at $13.50 compared with $16.00 a year ago and ewes at $6.00 compared with $8.50 in 1929.

All classes were in good demand. Hogs ruled steady to 10c higher yesterday, the meager supply available clearing quickly on early rounds. Only 3,000 pen holders and inferior kinds remained at the close, the high point of the day.

Adds Zest to Buying.

An advance estimate of only 24,000 for today added zest to late buying. Outsiders bought 6,500, while some of the larger houses were almost out of the market, due to the shortage. The extreme top moved up 5c at $9.75, while the general average was up 5c at $9.45, comparing with a top of $10.10 and average of $9.60 Thursday of last week.

A few cattle on sale were out of first hands soon after the opening, at stronger prices. Fancy 865 lb yearlings reached $16.00, the day's top, while 1,205@1,247 lb steers sold at $15.25. Bulk sold at $11.50@13.50. Calves ruled weak to unevenly lower, most sales showing losses of 50c@$1.00.

Lambs Sell Quickly.

Only 4,000 sheep and lambs were unloaded yesterday and sold quickly at strong to 25c higher prices, best kinds showing the most gain under brisk competition among eastern buyers. Choice handy weights brought $13.50, which is $2.50 lower than the top a year ago and 25c lower than two years ago. Bulk of good grades brought $13.00@13.25. Aged sheep advanced 25c, with best at $6.00.

WHAT WILL YOU HAVE One Year from Today?

THIS is a good time to think straight about what you are going to accumulate in 1930. To make the year "net" you a substantial surplus, saving is the first step.

But safeguarding the money you save by investing it wisely is equally important. This institution will help you plan and follow through a program of systematic safe investment, based upon your own circumstances and income, no matter how large or small. Write, phone or call.

Chicago Tribune-Federal $7,500.00 Travel Accident Insurance Policy

Now $1.25 a year

—still the biggest accident insurance bargain in America

THE tremendous increase of 63 per cent in automobile accidents during the past three years, with its corresponding increase in payments to policyholders and beneficiaries, has made an increase of 25 cents necessary in the price of the Chicago Tribune-Federal Life Insurance Company $7,500.00 Travel Accident Insurance Policy. The price now is $1.25 for a full year's protection—new policy or renewal.

More than $1,670,000.00 in actual cash has been paid to the holders and beneficiaries of these policies. This is undeniable proof of their great value. This is by far more insurance money than ever has been paid to the readers of any other newspaper in America.

The issuance and maintenance of these Chicago Tribune-Federal Accident Insurance Policies has cost the Tribune to date in excess of $600,000.00 By this expenditure the Tribune has rendered a service of incalculable value to its readers.

The 25 cent increase, which is payable to the Federal Life Insurance Company will make up, in part at least, for the greatly increased claim payments.

At $1.25 for a full year's protection the Tribune-Federal Accident Insurance Policy still is the biggest insurance bargain in America. It is offered exclusively to Tribune readers. It cannot be obtained anywhere else.

Don't fail to renew your policy for another year. If you haven't a policy, get one. Send $1.25 with the coupon on page 3 as directed.

WE MAKE SECOND MORTGAGES

You don't have to go so far back as grandfather's day to find second mortgage loans — especially second mortgage loans on home—in the class of obligations we fully understood financial transactions.

Second mortgage loans on homes do not now fit in that classification. We have put them on the same plane with other standardized financial practices. Our plan is well organized and practical. Our terms are reasonable, and our rates the lowest in the city on this type of loan. We charge interest at 7% which accrues monthly, and commissions which work out as follows:

$90 per $1,000 for 3 Years.
